1. Introduction

Access arrangements allow people to show what they know and can do without changing the demands of the assessment. For example, through the use of readers, scribes and extra time for an assessment.

Access arrangements are agreed before an assessment. They allow apprentices with special educational needs, disabilities or temporary injuries to access the assessment.

The Equality Act 2010 requires City & Guilds to make reasonable adjustments where a learner, who is disabled within the meaning of the Act, would be at a substantial disadvantage in comparison to someone who is not disabled. Access arrangements is a wider term, which includes adjustments made for learners who are not disabled.

This document describes the evidence required to apply for access arrangements for apprenticeship end-point assessments. It should be used in conjunction with the following documents:

- Individual end-point assessment packs,
- Reasonable adjustments – EPA Pro guide,
- JCQ Access Arrangements and Reasonable Adjustments.

Providers should consider the following points when determining suitable access arrangements:

- what arrangements are suitable for the assessment,
- the apprentice's normal way of working (eg support normally given on-programme or in the workplace),
- the details of how specific access arrangements would work in an assessment.

This document does not cover all possible arrangements. If an apprentice needs an access arrangement not mentioned in this document, the provider should discuss it with City & Guilds. Access arrangements will be permitted by City & Guilds if they are appropriate for the assessment and for the apprentice.

1.1. Compliance with assessment plans

No access arrangement can be permitted where it conflicts with the specific requirements of the assessment plan. For example, if an assessment plan states an assessment must take place in person, we could not permit remote assessment even as an access arrangement.

2. Overview of evidence to support access arrangements

Providers must keep evidence on file for access arrangements for a minimum of three years after the assessment date. City & Guilds may ask to see copies of the evidence held for specific apprentices. Providers must keep copies of access arrangements confirmations from City & Guilds on file (including those from the Walled Garden and email correspondence).

The apprentice must be consulted by the provider before an access arrangement application is submitted to City & Guilds.

There are two different types of evidence as described in the sections below:

2.1. Evidence of need

This is required where an access arrangement could give an unfair advantage to someone without a genuine need. For example, extra time might help someone without a disability to spend more time on their answers, whereas a Communication Professional would only help apprentices who use sign language.

Examples of documents that could be used to provide evidence of need include:

- Education, Health and Care Plan (EHCP), or the equivalent for Wales / Northern Ireland,
- a letter from a hospital consultant or a psychiatrist,
- a letter from a Speech and Language Therapist,
- Educational Psychologist's report,
- JCQ Form 8.

All evidence must:

- be dated,
- be from when the apprentice was at least 12 years old,
- include details of the author (eg name, position),
- be relevant (for example, if a provider is applying for a reader and no other arrangements, there would be no reason to include the results of a spelling test),
- specify the apprentice's disability/diagnosis.

2.2. Normal way of working

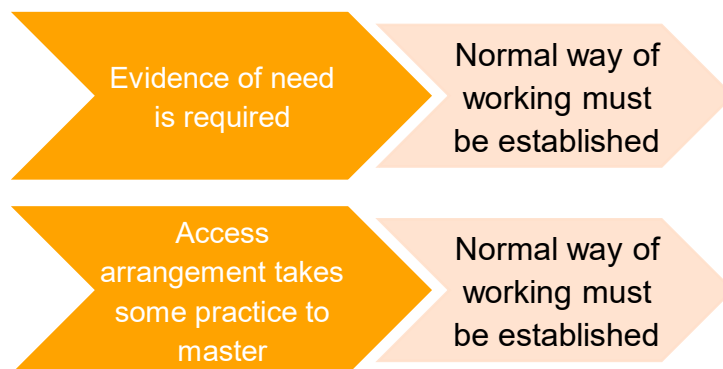

The arrangement(s) put in place for the EPA must reflect the support given to the apprentice when preparing for their EPA, for example:

- for any on-programme qualifications or Functional Skills,
- during any teaching or preparation for their EPA,
- when putting together any portfolios or other work for their EPA,
- in the workplace,
- during any mock or practice tests.

This is referred to as ‘normal way of working’. The evidence must be put together by a member of staff at the provider. It should ‘paint a holistic picture of need’, including:

- support given to the apprentice when preparing for their EPA (as described above),
- if known, arrangements made at school (for example for GCSEs),
- comments and observations from teaching staff and support staff who have noted the apprentice’s difficulties,
- intervention strategies (e.g. individual education/learning plans),
- screening test results,
- the apprentice’s self-reported difficulties.

Normal way of working evidence is designed to show how the apprentice will benefit from the access arrangement, for example, that they know how to work with a reader or scribe, as it does take some practice.

Normal way of working evidence can be in the form of a note written by the provider on headed paper. It must be signed¹ and dated. Alternatively, the JCQ forms can be used.

Normal way of working evidence is not required for access arrangements where it is put in place due to a temporary injury or impairment where it would not be possible to establish normal way of working.

 - prepared in English for other qualifications, e.g. IELTS qualifications, Preliminary English Tests,
- the apprentice has to refer to the bilingual translation dictionary so often that examination time is used for this purpose, delaying the answering of questions,
- the provision of extra time reflects the apprentice's normal way of working with the dictionary.

4. Other access arrangements

To use an arrangement that is not listed in the drop down, select “other” in the list and add a description, as shown below:

The screenshot shows a form titled "Add reasonable adjustment". It has two main sections: "Arrangement Type *" and "Type Info". The "Arrangement Type *" section contains a dropdown menu with "Please select" as the current selection. A yellow arrow points from the text "Arrangement Type: A separate request is required for each arrangement" to this dropdown. The "Type Info" section is a text area. A yellow arrow points from the text "Type Info: Only complete this field if 'Other' was selected for the Arrangement Type" to this text area. Below the text area, there is a note: "Required if arrangement type is set to 'Other'".

Examples of possible access arrangements are listed in the sections below, the fact that it is not listed does not mean it is not permitted. City & Guilds makes every effort to provide detailed information to providers, but it is not possible to list every possible access arrangement an apprentice may need.

5. Making applications

For instructions on how to use epaPro, please refer to the Reasonable Adjustments epaPRO – Centre Guide.

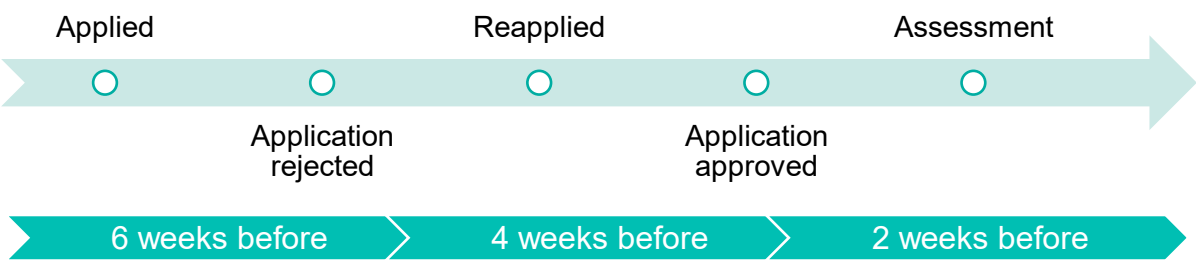

5.1. Deadlines for applications

5.1.1. Long term access arrangements

Please use “reasonable adjustment” to apply for long term access arrangements.

Applications must be made at least one month before the assessment.

We recommend all applications are made pre-Gateway and can be made at any time after registration. If an application is rejected, a new application is required and this could take another two weeks to be reviewed:

For this reason, we recommend early applications as the best way to ensure the apprentice receives the access arrangements they need.

If applications are made less than one month before the assessment, even in the case of reapplying after a rejection, we cannot guarantee it can be reviewed before the assessment date. If an access arrangement has not been approved, the apprentice will need to complete the assessment without it.

5.1.2. Temporary access arrangements

Please use “Special consideration – short term/ temporary due to injury” to apply for temporary access arrangements. For example, this can be used where an apprentice has broken their arm and needs a scribe. However, apprentices should not attempt an assessment unless they are well enough to do so.

Applications for temporary access arrangements should be made as early as possible. However, providers may also want to consider rescheduling the assessment in the case of a temporary injury.

5.2. Applying for multiple access arrangements

A separate application must be made for each access arrangement. For example, if the apprentice needs 25% extra time, supervised rest breaks and a prompter, then three applications are required:

Please do not add additional access arrangements to the “type info” or “additional information” box, as these may be missed and not put in place for the assessment.

5.3. Making applications for specific assessment components

An application can either be made for:

- all assessment components, or
- a specific assessment component.

5.3.1. Determining when access arrangements are needed

If an application is made for all assessments, it may still be that the apprentice only needs the access arrangement for certain types of assessment. For example:

- A reader would not be needed for a professional discussion, where there is no written material to read.
- Extra time may be needed in a practical assessment, for an apprentice with a physical disability or a sensory impairment which has a substantial and adverse effect on their manual dexterity or their physical coordination. However, extra time may not be required in a practical assessment for an apprentice with learning difficulties.
- Extra time is not required where the assessment is not timed, for example, for a project which must be completed within 12 weeks. The 12 weeks is not the duration of the assessment, as the apprentice is not completing it continuously during the 12 weeks. More time can be given to the apprentice, within those 12 weeks, without approval.

5.3.2. Risks to consider when applying extra time

It's possible for extra time to be counter-productive in terms of fatigue. This may be a risk

- where an apprentice has over 50% extra time, or
- when applying extra time to very long assessments (eg 6 hours or more).

Other access arrangements may be more helpful to the apprentice in this case, and you may want to consider rest breaks as an alternative.
