Ready for Social Care

Co-designed with employers, this course shines a light on social care. It helps learners discover the breadth of jobs and opportunities in the sector, giving them the motivation to succeed in their studies and build a career.

The course features a number of leading employers to give learners a real sense and flavour of what it's like working in social care and the skills, attitudes and behaviours employers are looking for when recruiting.

The course is delivered as self-directed learning and takes no longer than three hours to complete. It is suitable for a wide range of learners with no prior knowledge of or work experience in social care.

The content includes two feature videos on social care, a series of clips with employers, interactive tasks and a self-reflection exercise.

Additionally, at the end of each main topic, learners have an opportunity to complete an optional task which will help them explore the topic they have learnt in a bit more detail, in their own time.

The course also showcases partner employers who will be keen to hear from learners once they have completed their qualification and are ready to enter the sector.

Digital credential

On completion of the course participants will earn a digital credential. These can be shared on social media or included on their CVs to showcase their interest in working in social care and help them stand out among other applicants once they have completed their qualification. Digital credentials will be issued once a week, on Fridays.
