Showcase the quality of your training programmes

Employees and learners look for trusted training that can add value to their careers. Assured provides this credibility through the expertise and authority of the City & Guilds and ILM brands.

Our benchmark – the quality standard that recognises excellence

Our Assured consultant will assess your training programme against our five core components.

If the content is leadership and management focused, it will be reviewed holistically against ILM criteria.

We can recognise both face-to-face and digital learning, assessed or non-assessed training and even training delivered in your local language in any industry area.

We offer digital credentials

As part of our recognition service, we offer digital credentials, which are a digital representation of an achievement.

Unlike a paper certificate, digital credentials are easily shareable, verifiable and trackable all in one click. This allows your participants to easily share their achievements electronically and online, on sites such as LinkedIn.

Making sure the issuing of digital credentials is seamless for you, we will manage the end-to-end process. We will also provide annual reports on how your credentials have been accessed and shared, demonstrating the impact of your brand.
