1 Introduction

This document tells you what you need to do to deliver the qualification:

Area	Description
Who is the qualification for?	This qualification is aimed at learners wanting to work within a business support role where they may specialise in one key area or where their role requires skills that fall across more than one area to support the business.
What does the qualification cover?	The qualification covers key skills needed in business administration, customer service and retail. Each specialist pathway also allows you to choose units from one of the other pathways to ensure you are gaining the mix of skills modern business require. There are also units to be taken that will cover employability skills to help you prepare for interviews and gaining employment.
What opportunities for progression are there?	This qualification can help you gain work within any business that requires the skills and knowledge within administration, customer service and retail. You can progress onto a Level 2 qualification specialising in one of the three areas to gain a more in depth understanding.

Total Qualification Time

Total Qualification Time (TQT) is the total amount of time, in hours, expected to be spent by a Learner to achieve a qualification. It includes both guided learning hours (which are listed separately) and hours spent in preparation, study and assessment.

Title and level	GLH	TQT
Level 1 Diploma in Business Support Services	255	380

2 Centre requirements

Approval

There is no fast track approval for this qualification; existing centres who wish to offer this qualification must use the standard Qualification Approval Process.

To offer this qualification, new centres will need to gain both centre and qualification approval. Please refer to the Centre Manual - Supporting Customer Excellence for further information.

Centre staff should familiarise themselves with the structure, content and assessment requirements of the qualification before designing a course programme.

Resource requirements

Centre staffing

Staff delivering this qualification must be able to demonstrate that they meet the following occupational expertise requirements. They should:

- be occupationally competent or technically knowledgeable in the area for which they are delivering training and/or have experience of providing training. This knowledge must be to the same level as the training being delivered
- have recent relevant experience in the specific area they will be assessing
- have credible experience of providing training.

Centre staff may undertake more than one role, eg tutor and assessor or internal quality assurer, but cannot internally verify their own assessments.

Assessors and Internal Quality Assurer

Assessor/Internal Quality Assurer TAQA qualifications are valued as qualifications for centre staff, but they are not currently a requirement for the qualification.

Continuing professional development (CPD)

Centres must support their staff to ensure that they have current knowledge of the occupational area, that delivery, mentoring, training, assessment and verification is in line with best practice, and that it takes account of any national or legislative developments.

Learner entry requirements

City & Guilds does not set entry requirements for this qualification. However, centres must ensure that learners have the potential and opportunity to gain the qualification successfully.

Age restrictions

There is no age restriction for this qualification.

3 Delivering the qualification

Initial assessment and induction

An initial assessment of each learner should be made before the start of their programme to identify:

- if the learner has any specific training needs,
- support and guidance they may need when working towards their qualification.
- any units they have already completed, or credit they have accumulated which is relevant to the qualification.
- the appropriate type and level of qualification.

We recommend that centres provide an induction programme so the learner fully understands the requirements of the qualification, their responsibilities as a learner, and the responsibilities of the centre. This information can be recorded on a learning contract.

Aim:	The aim of this unit is for the learners to develop the knowledge and skills to identify and complete routine task undertaken by administrators.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know what activities are routinely undertaken by administrators.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 identify routine administrative tasks.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Be able to follow instructions to carry out administrative tasks.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 check understanding of instructions and ask for clarification where necessary 2.2 follow instructions to complete a limited range of administrative tasks accurately.

Unit 013 Working in business and administration

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate will need to identify a minimum of five routine administrative tasks. These may include answering the telephone, post received or sent, taking messages, photocopying, sending a fax, using a computer system to update information, creating a letter, sending an email or filing.

For 2.1 the candidate will need to show that for three different routine administrative tasks, they know what to do, when to do it by and for whom and what equipment should be used and the procedures that need to be followed. If any part of the task is unclear, the candidate should ask questions for clarification.

For 2.2 the candidate will need to carry out a minimum of three different routine administrative tasks as instructed. Each task must be completed within the timescale agreed, meet the requirements and follow organisational procedure throughout.

Aim:	The aim of this unit is for the learners to develop the appropriate behaviour when working in a business environment.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know how to behave in an office environment.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 communicate appropriately with colleagues 1.2 use appropriate language for the workplace.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know about the rules that organisations have relating to confidentiality and security.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 give examples of rules that relate to confidentiality and security

Unit 014 Professional behaviour in an office environment

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate shows that they can communicate with three different colleagues using methods appropriate to the situation eg face to face, telephone, e-mail, notice board, taking messages, at meetings.

For 1.2 Appropriate language includes body language, tone of voice, written language in a tone and style appropriate to the situation.

For 2.1 the candidate can give five examples of good practice from their own organisation eg passwords, locking filing cabinets, locking keyboards, keeping sensitive information out of sight, security passes.

Aim:	This unit gives the learners an overview of what working in business administration can be like. In particular understanding roles of those they are working with, how to carry out routine tasks and the appropriate way to present themselves.

Learning outcome
The learner will:
1. Understand the role of an administrator within an office.
Assessment criteria
The learner can:
1.1 describe different activities carried out by administrators
1.2 state how the work of an administrator helps a team achieve its goals.

Learning outcome
The learner will:
2. Be able to carry out routine administrative tasks.
Assessment criteria
The learner can:
2.1 follow instructions to complete routine administrative tasks
2.2 use key equipment according to organisational procedures

Learning outcome
The learner will:
3. Be able to present themselves positively.
Assessment criteria
The learner can:
3.1 dress appropriately
3.2 adopt a positive manner in dealings with colleagues and/or customers

Learning outcome

The learner will: 4. Be able to organise their work effectively.

The learner can: 4.1 use simple tools to organise their time 4.2 prioritise tasks in discussion with supervisor or manager

Learning outcome
The learner will: 5. Know the importance of confidentiality of information.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 5.1 state the reasons why it is important to keep some information confidential 5.2 give examples of information that should be kept confidential

Unit 105 Working in business and administration

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate will need to describe a minimum of five different administrative activities. Activities may include: answering the telephone, photocopying, handling the post, using office equipment, creating letters and other documents, updating spreadsheets and databases, making appointments, reception duties etc.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to show they understand that an administrator helps the team mainly by providing support. They may wish to make a statement about teamwork or use examples of how their own work has helped their team achieve its goals.

For 2.1 the candidate can give five examples of good practice from their own organisation eg passwords, locking filing cabinets, locking keyboards, keeping sensitive information out of sight, security passes.

For 2.1 the candidate will need to carry out a minimum of three routine administrative tasks as instructed. If any part of the task is unclear to the candidate they should ask questions for clarification. Each task needs to be completed to correct timescale, using safe working methods and following their organisations procedures.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to use a minimum of three different types of equipment following their organisations procedures. They need to successfully use the equipment to carry out a task as instructed. Key equipment may include: telephone, photocopier, printer, computer, shredder, fax machine etc.

For 3.1 the candidate must comply with their organisation's dress code. The candidate must be wearing clothes appropriate for their working environment.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to show a positive attitude, displaying qualities such as being enthusiastic, polite, respectful and helpful.

For 4.1 the candidate must use two different tools appropriate to their workplace eg diary (electronic or manual) "to do" list, priority list.

For 4.2 the candidate must use one of the tools from 4.1 to organise their time in discussion with their supervisor.

For 5.1 the candidate needs to state one reason, appropriate to their organisation and why it is important to keep some information confidential.

For 5.2 the candidate needs to give three examples from their workplace of information that should be kept confidential eg personal information, details of salaries, medical records, accounts records, sales information, outstanding debts.

Aim:	The aim of this unit is for the learners to develop the skills to identify and produce a variety of business documents.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know that there are different types of business document
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 identify different types of business document and when they might be used 1.2 state why templates are used for some business documents

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know why it is important to use the right communication style, in business documents
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 give examples of when to use a formal or informal communication style 2.2 state why some businesses adopt a 'house style' for certain documents

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to produce routine business documents
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 produce routine business documents using the appropriate communication style 3.2 check documents for accuracy

Unit 106 Creating business documents

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate must identify a minimum of six different types of business document. These might include: a letter, memo, fax header, application form, agenda, minutes, contract, order form, invoice, claim form etc. The candidate must identify at least one valid use for each type of document.

For 1.2 the candidate must show they understand that most organisations have some of their documents in template format to provide consistency and professionalism. They may wish to use examples referring to their organisation's business documents.

For 2.1 the candidate needs to identify situations when it is most appropriate to use formal and informal communication styles within the documents. For example, an email to a colleague is likely to be in an informal style. A letter to a customer or information sent to senior management would in a formal style.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to show they understand what a house style is and state why an organisation may adopt one. For example: uniformity, professionalism, quality, presentation and image. The candidate may refer to the layout of documents for instance: the logo, position of the date, font style etc.

For 3.1 the candidate must produce a minimum of three different types of straightforward business documents, these may include: a letter, invoice, agenda, memo or document produced from a template etc. When producing each document, the candidate should demonstrate consistency in layout such as spacing between each paragraph, amount of spaces after commas and full stops etc.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to check each document that they have produced for accuracy by carrying out a range of techniques. These may include: spell and grammar check, proof reading the document prior to and after printing, checking the document with the person whom it is for or by using a dictionary. The candidate should not be relying on spell check alone.

Aim:	This unit aims to develop the learner's knowledge, skills and understanding of administrative tasks associated with welcoming visitors.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Be able to welcome visitors in a positive way.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 welcome visitors and establish the purpose for their visit 1.2 follow organisational procedures for receiving visitors 1.3 answer routine questions 1.4 make visitors feel welcome during any period of waiting 1.5 use appropriate tone and language, including body language, when dealing with visitors

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know why it is important to an organisation that visitors are made welcome.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 state how treating visitors politely and in a positive way benefits the organisation

Unit 107 Welcome visitors

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to greet a minimum of five visitors establishing the purpose of each visit. The candidate needs to use the organisation's greeting if appropriate.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to follow their organisational procedures when receiving each visitor. These may include displaying a name badge, security procedures, issuing a pass, completing the necessary paperwork, ensuring that visitors are accompanied around the building, notifying a colleague of a visitor's arrival.

For 1.3 the candidate needs to show that they can answer routine questions. These might include: opening times, information about what the organisation does, the organisation's email address, what time a colleague may be back in the building. If the candidate cannot answer a question, they need to refer to the correct place or person to find the information.

For 1.4 the candidate needs to show they are making an active effort to make visitors feel welcome. Examples of this may include, directing the visitor where to sit, keeping them informed of how long their wait is likely to take, offering them something to read or to drink.

For 1.5 the candidate needs to use appropriate language such as "Can I help you, please?" rather than saying "What do you want?" or "Can I take your name, please?" rather than "who are you?" The candidate's tone and body language (eg smile, good eye contact) needs to relay to visitors that they are welcome.

For 2.1 the candidate needs show they understand that treating visitors politely and in a positive way will create a positive impression of themselves and the organisation as a whole. The candidate needs to show that they understand how this can benefit an organisation. For example repeat business, maintaining good a reputation, customer satisfaction etc.

Aim:	This unit aims to develop the learner's knowledge, skills and understanding of administrative tasks associated with making and receiving telephone calls.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Be able to make calls.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 identify the purpose of the call 1.2 confirm the name and number of the person to be contacted before making the call 1.3 make a call communicating basic information clearly and accurately

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Be able to receive calls.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 answer the call promptly and politely, observing any organisational procedures 2.2 identify the caller, where they are calling from and the reason for their call 2.3 follow any organisational procedures relating to confidentiality and security 2.4 take short messages

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Know why it is important to an organisation that calls are handled appropriately.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 state how appropriate tone and language create a positive impression

3.2 state how creating a positive impression during a call benefits the organisation

Unit 108 Making and receiving calls

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate should clarify with the assessor, the reason for the call.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to show that they can find the name and number from the correct source. Sources may include the person requesting the call to be made, directory, database, answer phone message etc.

For 1.3 the candidate needs to communicate who they are, where they are calling and successfully carry out the purpose of the call. The candidate needs to speak at a suitable speed and with clarity.

The candidate needs to demonstrate a minimum of ten calls over a period of time. These can be internal and/or external calls.

For 2.1 the candidate needs to answer each call following their organisations procedures, which may include: using their organisations preferred opening greetings, answering within a certain number of rings, offering an apology if appropriate (eg for length of time taken to answer call). In every case the candidate needs to answer the promptly, using a clear and polite tone.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to ask appropriate questions to collect accurate information from each caller, taking notes where necessary.

For 2.3 the candidate needs to follow their organisation's procedures, which might include: not giving out personal numbers, not giving out personal information, asking security questions. In all cases the candidate must adhere to the Data Protection Act.

For 2.4 the candidate needs to write clear messages which are passed to the correct person with accurate information.

For 3.1 the candidate needs show an understanding of the appropriate tone and language used within a professional environment. This may include using a polite tone and professional language (eg no slang). The candidate needs show they understand that using the appropriate tone and language will create a positive impression of themselves and the organisation as a whole.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to show an understanding of how the impression they create during calls can benefit an organisation. For example repeat business, maintaining good a reputation, customer satisfaction etc.

Unit 109

Handling mail

UAN:	A/502/4008
Level:	1
Credit value:	2
GLH:	20
Aim:	This unit aims to assist the learner to develop skills in handling mail and aspects associated with it.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know why it is important for a business to handle mail efficiently and securely.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 state how efficient distribution of mail benefits a business 1.2 state why inaccuracies or delays can have negative impact 1.3 identify procedures to protect confidential information

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Be able to deal with incoming mail.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 sort incoming mail appropriately 2.2 state how to deal with suspicious or damaged items 2.3 distribute incoming mail accurately and to a given deadline

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to deal with outgoing mail.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 collect and sort outgoing mail accurately and on time 3.2 dispatch outgoing mail on time

Unit 109 Handling mail

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to show they understand that mail is usually received on a daily basis and an efficient system must be in place to maintain the effective flow of communication.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to state some mail contains important items and give the possible consequences of delays or inaccuracies. For example, invoices (leading to stopped supplies), cheques (needing to be banked) and complaints that need to be processed quickly in order to retain customer loyalty.

For 1.3 the candidate needs to show they are aware of their organisations' procedures that are in place to help conform to the Data Protection Act. These may include do not open letters that are marked as 'private and confidential' or 'to be opened by addressee only', do not discuss the content of mail etc.

For 2.1 the candidate needs to sort mail (internal and/or external) appropriately according to organisational procedures. Sorting appropriately may include: sorting letters marked urgent first, ensuring the mail goes into the correct pigeon holes or piles, date stamping post etc.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to show they can identify when a letter or parcel is damaged or suspicious. The candidate needs to show they know their organisations procedure of how to deal with this, for example: report this immediately to an appropriate person.

For 2.3 the candidate needs to meet their organisation's set timescale for distributing mail. The candidate needs to distribute the mail through the correct channels ensuring the mail is delivered to the right person(s)/department(s).

For 3.1 the candidate needs to collect the mail from the correct person(s)/department(s) at the time(s) agreed by the organisation. The candidate needs to sort the mail into the correct categories as required by their organisation. Categories may include class, special delivery, internal/external, fragile etc.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to meet their organisation's set timescales and procedures for dispatching outgoing mail.

Unit 110

Individual rights and responsibilities

UAN:	K/502/0472
Level:	1
Credit value:	1
GLH:	10
Aim:	To introduce the learner to ways in which they can reflect on their own personal development and how their personal skills, abilities and behaviours can be improved.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Understand their individual rights.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 give examples of their rights as an individual 1.2 give examples of barriers which may prevent the exercise of their rights 1.3 identify sources of support and information about rights and responsibilities and describe how these could help

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Understand their individual responsibilities.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 identify their responsibilities to themselves 2.2 state their responsibilities to others 2.3 demonstrate how they take responsibility for themselves

Unit 110 Individual rights and responsibilities

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to give examples of more than one of their rights as an individual (eg as an employee they must have a written statement of particulars, as a citizen they have the right to hold their own religious beliefs). These examples could be given in group discussion as long as the candidate's own contribution is recorded.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to give examples of more than one barrier which may prevent the exercise of their rights. These might include lack of awareness of entitlements or the cost or inconvenience of pursuing rights that are being denied. These examples could be given in group discussion as long as the candidate's own contribution is recorded.

For 1.3 the candidate needs to identify sources of support and information about rights and responsibilities, as well as describing how these could help. Examples might include: line managers, Citizens' Advice Bureau, trade union, Directgov website, Health and Safety Executive, voluntary organisations. The candidate must clearly describe how the source of help would assist them in exercising their rights. This could be in the form of advocacy, information, signposting to resources etc.

For 2.1 the candidate must identify their responsibilities to them self eg for their own health.

For 2.2 the candidate must state their responsibilities to others. These could include parental responsibilities, responsibilities to work colleagues, spousal responsibilities.

For 2.3 the candidate must demonstrate how they take responsibility for them self. In order to fulfil this criterion, the candidate must be clear about exactly which of the responsibilities identified in 2.1 they are referring to and how they currently meet them.

Guidance

Delivery should take into account learners' broader learning programme. The focus should be on those rights and responsibilities of most interest to the learners themselves. These will depend on learners' circumstances, age, interests, housing situation amongst other things.

It may be possible to bring in guest speakers such as a trade union official or Health and Safety officer based at the provider who could give a workplace-specific example of rights and responsibilities. It may be beneficial to organise a trip to a local charity that provides advice (eg Crisis or Shelter) or to the local Citizens' Advice Bureau.

This unit is about rights and responsibilities in general. The unit deliverer is not expected to be a case worker, and care should be taken if learners bring specific queries from their own lives to ensure that any information given has a caveat attached. Any learners with particular issues should be signposted to appropriate expert advice.

UAN:	J/502/0463
Level:	1

GLH:	20
Aim:	To help the learner to understand how to identify and work towards goals appropriately

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Be able to identify and explain their goals.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 describe own strengths and what they need to improve 1.2 identify at least one goal which is important for their development 1.3 explain why achieving this goal is important 1.4 agree the goal with an appropriate person

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Prepare an action plan to meet their goal.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 identify the activities needed to work towards the goal 2.2 identify timescales and deadlines for the achievement of the goal 2.3 identify the resources needed to support them in achieving the goal

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to review progress towards achieving their goal
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 follow the activities outlined in the action plan 3.2 regularly review the activities and outcomes with an appropriate person 3.3 identify what has been achieved and what still needs to be done 3.4 amend the action plan to reflect their progress

Unit 111 Working towards goals

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to describe at least two personal strengths. Strengths are a candidate's skills (generic skills eg communication, time-keeping, team-working and vocational skills eg using machinery, dealing with customers) and positive qualities (attitudes and behaviours eg patience, conscientiousness, respect for self and others, enthusiasm.) Candidates also state what they need to improve (eg to obtain employment or progress in education/training).

For 1.2 the candidate needs to identify at least one goal which is important for their development (from 1.1) (eg using a particular tool to industry standard, creating a positive image, improving their listening skills).

For 1.3 the candidate needs to explain why achieving the goal identified in 1.2 is important (eg to obtain employment or progress in education/training).

For 1.4 the candidate needs to agree the goal with an appropriate person (eg assessor, tutor, or supervisor).

For 2.1 the candidate needs to identify the activities needed to work towards the goal (eg to develop listening skills, activities could include: listening for meaning, practising not interrupting/appropriate responses in role plays, observing appropriate behaviour on videos, practising with friends and family).

For 2.2 the candidate needs to identify timescales and deadlines for the achievement of the goal. They should state when they will complete each activity by and when they hope to have achieved their goal.

For 2.3 the candidate needs to identify the resources needed to support them in achieving the goal. Resources can include people (eg assessor, tutor, supervisor, colleagues, friends or family) and other resources (eg textbooks, videos, internet, etc).

For 3.1 the candidate needs to follow the activities outlined in their plan. Evidence could be a learning log with entries confirmed by a tutor or supervisor. Other forms of evidence could include annotated photographs or witness statements.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to regularly review the activities and outcomes with an appropriate person (eg assessor, tutor, supervisor).

For 3.3 the candidate should identify in the review what has been achieved and what still needs to be done.

Evidence for both 3.2 and 3.3 could be gathered during tutorials but a written or taped record of the discussion must be available for verification.

For 3.4 the candidate needs to amend the action plan to reflect their progress. These amendments should be agreed by the assessor.

Guidance

Delivery should recognise learners' particular circumstances and their broader learning programme. Once the learner has agreed a goal, the activities can be completed in the workplace, at the centre or at other suitable locations.

Tutors should ensure the unit is delivered in a positive way and learners are encouraged to realise the wealth of strengths they already possess prior to deciding what they could do to improve. The emphasis is on motivating the learner and helping them to achieve a goal and learners should recognise their achievements even if the actual goal is not met yet. Learners may identify each others' strengths or work with a tutor or other appropriate adult(s) to do so, as long as the learner is able to take on board what others come up with and accept their judgements as accurate. Many learners at this level struggle to see what they are good at without prompting from others.

Tutors could use group discussions to elicit the skills and qualities needed for employment/study generally, or a particular trade, to focus the learner prior to their individual choice of short-term goals.

Unit 112

Producing documents in a business environment

UAN:	F/600/5017
Level:	2
Credit value:	6
GLH:	40
Aim:	This unit covers the knowledge and understanding learners need to produce high quality, attractive documents to agreed specifications. It also covers the practical application of this knowledge and understanding.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know about the production of business documents.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 outline why it is important to produce high quality and attractive documents 1.2 describe the different types of documents that they may be asked to produce and the document styles they should use 1.3 describe the different formats in which the text may be presented 1.4 describe the different types of technology (including software) available for inputting, formatting and editing text and the main features of this technology 1.5 identify the types of resources they may need to produce high quality and attractive documents

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know how to produce business documents.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 outline why it is important to confirm the purpose, content, style, quality standards and deadlines for the document 2.2 describe how to organise the content needed for the document 2.3 describe how to integrate and lay out text and non-text 2.4 describe how to check for accuracy and correctness – including spelling and grammar 2.5 outline why accuracy and correctness are important 2.6 outline why it is important to store the document safely and securely

The learner can: 3.1 confirm the purpose, content, style, quality standards and deadlines for the documents 3.2 prepare the resources needed 3.3 organise the content needed 3.4 make efficient use of the technology available 3.5 produce documents in the agreed style 3.6 integrate non-text objects in the agreed layout 3.7 check for accuracy, editing and correcting as necessary 3.8 seek clarification when necessary 3.9 store the document safely and securely in an approved location 3.10 present the document in the required format within agreed deadlines and quality standards

Unit 112 Producing documents in a business environment

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to outline the importance of producing high quality and attractive documents. For example, to demonstrate professionalism, convey the company image, meet quality standards and provide information effectively to the recipient.

For 1.2 the candidate must describe a minimum of six different types of documents they may be asked to produce and the document styles they should use. These could include a letter, fax header, memo, report, agenda, minutes of a meeting, newsletter, flyer, action plan, poster or a document produced from a template.

For 1.3 the candidate needs to describe a range of formats used for presenting text. For example, text can be presented in a presentation, in a word processed document or template, in an email, a database table or spreadsheet.

For 1.4 the candidate needs to describe a minimum of three different types of technology including software and describe their main features. Candidates could include Microsoft Word, Outlook, Power Point, Excel or Access.

For 1.5 the candidate needs to identify different types of resources they may need to create high quality and attractive documents. This may include which computer software packages and office equipment is used, using headed paper, downloading company logos or completing templates for letters/fax headers and memos.

For 2.1 the candidate needs to outline why it is always necessary to check the full requirements of the document with the person they are producing it for – confirming the purpose, content, style, quality standards and deadlines.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to describe how to organise the content needed for the document. This may include describing what resources or information is needed and from whom, how will the document be presented and when it will be completed by.

For 2.3 the candidate needs to describe how to integrate and lay out text and non-text. This should include where and how to download the non textual item and include the choices for positioning the text and non-text within a document eg centring the company logo on a letter or using a picture as the main focus on a leaflet accompanied by columns of text.

For 2.4 the candidate needs to describe the visual, manual and technological checks that are necessary when producing documents – proof reading, using a dictionary, checking the document with the person it is for and operating the software spell and grammar checks. This must include spelling and grammar checks.

For 2.5 the candidate needs to outline why it is essential to thoroughly check that documents are correct and free from errors eg to maintain professional image of organisation.

For 2.6 the candidate needs to outline why it is important to store documents safely and securely for both paper and electronic documentation. For example, to ensure confidential or sensitive information is not accessible by all, to return information to a central secure location so others can access it either manually, by key or by a password.

For 2.7 the candidate needs to outline why it is essential to safeguard confidentiality and follow data protection procedures when producing and storing documents. They must pay attention to the organisational reasons for the safety of document and the legal reasons briefly detailing all eight

For 2.8 the candidate needs to outline why it is important to produce documents in the required format, with accurate contents, in line with quality standards and style and within the deadlines agreed.

For 3.1 the candidate must confirm the purpose, content, style, quality standards and deadlines for a minimum of four documents with the person it is for.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to show they have prepared resources for a minimum of four documents. This can include accessing computer software packages, stationery used, preparing the printer and headed paper, using office equipment like the photocopier and fax machine, downloading logos or any supplementary information that was used within the completed document.

For 3.3 the candidate needs to show how the contents of the four documents have been organised. This may include draft copies of the document to show changes made to the layout or contents, a diary or 'things to do' list detailing tasks planned, paper based or computerised notes, information provided by others, logos, attachments or headers used or copied.

For 3.4 the candidate must make efficient use of the technology available eg from selecting the correct computer software packages, using the pre-selected template, using different functions eg mail merge, macros, formula or shortcuts.

For 3.5 the candidate must produce a minimum of four different types of documents in the agreed style. These could include a letter, fax, memo, report, agenda, minutes of a meeting, newsletter, flyer, action plan, poster or a document produced from a template.

For 3.6 the candidate needs to integrate a minimum of two non-text objects into two different documents. For example, they could use a company logo, a picture or photograph, a graph or table.

For 3.7 the candidate needs to check that each of the four documents produced are accurate. This may include spelling, grammar check, proof-reading the document before and after printing, using a dictionary and checking the document with the person who requested it. Where possible, they should also show editing and correcting. If no corrections are necessary, then 'what if' questions may be asked to confirm ability.

For 3.8 the candidate needs to seek clarification from others. This could be on issues such as querying the contents, document style, layout or font, amount of copies needed, final deadline or who to send it on to. If no clarification is necessary, then 'what if' questions may be asked to confirm understanding.

For 3.9 the candidate must store all four documents produced safely and securely in an approved location. These can be manually stored or saved directly to a computer file.

For 3.10 the candidate must present all four produced documents to the persons requesting the documents within the deadline agreed, in the required format and in line with the quality standards requested.

The learner will: 1. Know how to make telephone calls.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 describe the different features of telephone systems 1.2 outline why it is important to identify the purpose of a call before they make it 1.3 describe the different methods they can use to obtain the names and numbers of people they have to make contact with 1.4 describe how to use telephone systems to make contact with people inside and outside their organisation 1.5 describe how to follow the organisation's procedures when making telephone calls 1.6 outline why it is important to project a positive image of oneself and the organisation when making calls 1.7 outline why it is important to summarise the outcomes of a telephone conversation before ending the call

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know how to receive and transfer telephone calls.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 describe the procedures to follow when answering calls 2.2 outline why it is important to project a positive image of yourself and the organisation when receiving calls 2.3 outline why it is important to identify the caller and their needs 2.4 outline why it is important to give accurate and up-to-date information to callers 2.5 outline why confidentiality and security are important when dealing with callers

- 2.6 identify the types of information that could breach confidentiality and security
- 2.7 describe how to handle confidential information
- 2.8 describe how to identify the appropriate person to whom they should transfer a call
- 2.9 describe the information they should give when transferring calls and leaving messages

Learning outcome

The learner will:

- 3. Know how to use message systems.

Assessment criteria

The learner can:

- 3.1 describe the different types of message systems and their main features
- 3.2 outline why it is important to keep message systems up-to-date
- 3.3 identify when it is appropriate to delete or discard messages
- 3.4 outline why it is important to leave clear and accurate messages for colleagues.

Learning outcome

The learner will:

- 4. Be able to make telephone calls.

Assessment criteria

The learner can:

- 4.1 identify the purpose of the call
- 4.2 obtain the name and numbers of the person to be contacted
- 4.3 make contact with the person
- 4.4 communicate information to achieve the purpose of the call
- 4.5 project a positive image of themselves and their organisation
- 4.6 summarise the outcomes of the conversation before ending the call

Learning outcome

The learner will:

- 5. Be able to receive and transfer telephone calls

Assessment criteria

The learner can:

- 5.1 answer the phone according to their organisation's procedures
- 5.2 project a positive image of themselves and their organisation
- 5.3 identify the caller, where they are calling from and what they need
- 5.4 provide accurate and up-to-date information whilst protecting confidentiality and security
- 5.5 transfer calls where requested
- 5.6 take and relay messages according to the caller's needs
- 5.7 summarise the outcomes of the conversation before ending the call

Learning outcome
The learner will: 6. Be able to use message systems.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 6.1 keep message systems up-to-date 6.2 check for callers' messages 6.3 respond to callers' messages within agreed timescales 6.4 delete/discard messages when they are no longer needed 6.5 leave clear and effective messages for other people

Unit 113 Using a telephone system

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate should describe call transfer and call hold, plus four other features of the telephone system from the following list: automated attendant, conferencing, music on hold, voicemail, caller identification, phone directory, speed dial, DND – Do Not Disturb.

For 1.2 the candidate should briefly outline why it is important to identify the purpose of the call before making it.

For 1.3 the candidate should describe five methods that can be used eg directory, internet, intranet, directory enquiries, customer database, file or business card.

For 1.4 the candidate should describe the difference between making internal and external calls.

For 1.5 the candidate should describe how to follow their own organisation's procedures when making telephone calls.

For 1.6 the candidate should describe the effect of projecting a positive image on present and future customers.

For 1.7 the candidate should outline the reasons for summarising a call before ending it eg to clarify key points and confirm data.

For 2.1 the candidate should describe procedures for answering both internal and external calls eg opening greeting, answering within a certain time frame.

For 2.2 the candidate should briefly outline reasons for projecting positive image eg efficiency, customer service, future business, company image.

For 2.3 the candidate should outline reasons why it is important to identify the caller and their needs eg transfer them to the right person.

For 2.4 the candidate should outline reasons why it is important to give accurate and up-to-date information to callers eg clarity, customer service, so not to misinform the caller.

For 2.5 the candidate should outline why confidentiality and security are important when dealing with callers eg to comply with the Data Protection Act and company protection.

For 2.6 the candidate should identify five types of information that could breach confidentiality and security eg name, date of birth, address, telephone number, whereabouts, financial status, health issues.

For 2.7 the candidate should describe how confidential information should be handled according to organisation procedures.

For 2.8 the candidate should explain how to question a caller to identify the purpose of the call so it can be transferred appropriately.

For 2.9 the candidate should describe any information that they would give to the caller when transferring a call and any information taken when leaving messages eg company name, caller name, caller number, reason for call.

For 3.1 message systems can include answer machine, voicemail, written messages, telephone message form, email.

For 3.2 the candidate can outline why it is important to keep message systems up to date eg to ensure call backs are made and messages are followed through.

For 3.3 reasons can include: when the message has been passed on, inaudible answer machine messages.

For 3.4 reasons can include: customer service, team spirit, prevent delays in returning calls.

For 4.1 the candidate should be confident about the purpose of the call and identify why they are making it

For 4.2 the candidate should obtain the name and number from an appropriate source.

For 4.3 the candidate should make at least six internal or external telephone calls and keep a telephone log. The assessor/witness should observe at least three telephone calls.

For 4.4 the candidate should communicate the purpose/information for the call obtained in 4.3.

For 4.5 the candidate should be positive when making the call eg put a smile in your voice.

For 4.6 the candidate should summarise the main points of the call to ensure understanding and agreement with the person contacted.

For 5.1 the candidate should use their own organisation's procedures to answer the phone on six occasions eg answer within three rings, use company greeting. The assessor/witness should observe at least three.

For 5.2 the candidate should put a smile in their voice and project a positive image when answering the calls in 5.1.

For 5.3 the candidate should ask appropriate questions during the calls in 5.1 to obtain the identity of the caller and find out what they need or information that they want to give.

For 5.4, the candidate must use company procedures regarding security and confidentiality when providing information on at least one call. If no security and confidentiality procedures are used, then 'what if' questions can be used to confirm competence.

For 5.5 the candidate must transfer at least three calls.

For 5.6 the candidate must take and relay at least three messages in accordance with their organisation's procedures.

For 5.7 the candidate should summarise the main points of the calls to ensure understanding received in 5.1.

For 6.1 the candidate should keep the message system up-to-date according to organisation's procedures eg changing outgoing message, delete/update received messages responded to.

For 6.2 the candidates must check at least five callers' messages eg voicemail, e-mail, paper-based.

For 6.3 the candidate must respond to callers' messages in 6.2 within their own organisation's guidelines and agreed timescales eg this can be passing a message on or responding themselves.

For 6.4 the candidate must delete/discard at least five messages when they are no longer needed.

For 6.5 the candidate must leave at least two clear and detailed messages on other peoples systems eg on a colleague's answer phone (messages can include internal/external and manual/electronic systems).

Unit 114

Operating and maintaining office equipment

UAN:	J/600/5004
Level:	2
Credit value:	4
GLH:	27
Aim:	This unit covers the knowledge and understanding learners need to operate and maintain a range of office equipment. It also covers the practical application of this knowledge and understanding.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know how to select office equipment for administrative tasks.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 describe the different types of office equipment 1.2 describe the features and uses of different types of office equipment 1.3 describe how to choose equipment and resources that are appropriate for a range of administrative tasks

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Understand how to operate office equipment.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 explain why it is important to follow manufacturers' instructions when operating equipment 2.2 describe the health and safety guidelines for the equipment they use 2.3 explain why it is important to follow the health and safety guidelines 2.4 outline why it is important to keep waste to a minimum 2.5 describe the correct procedures for minimising, disposing of, reusing and recycling waste 2.6 explain why it is important to meet work standards and deadlines

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Know how to maintain office equipment.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 outline why it is important to keep equipment clean and hygienic 3.2 describe the appropriate standards for the cleanliness and hygiene of office equipment 3.3 outline why it is important to follow manufacturers' instructions and organisational procedures when dealing with equipment faults 3.4 identify the types of equipment and resource faults they are likely to experience 3.5 describe how they should deal with equipment and resource faults 3.6 outline why it is important to leave the equipment, resources and work area ready for the next user 3.7 describe the appropriate standards when leaving the equipment, resources and work area ready for the next user

Learning outcome
The learner will: 4. Be able to operate office equipment.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 4.1 locate and select the equipment and resources they need for a range of administration tasks 4.2 follow the manufacturer's operating instructions 4.3 waste as few resources as possible 4.4 follow agreed procedures for the disposal, reuse and recycling of waste 4.5 maintain the health and safety of themselves and others 4.6 make sure final work product meets agreed standards 4.7 produce work product within agreed timescales

Learning outcome
The learner will: 5. Be able to maintain office equipment.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 5.1 keep the equipment clean and hygienic 5.2 deal with equipment and resource problems according to the manufacturer's and organisational procedures 5.3 make sure the equipment, resources and work area are ready for next user

Unit 114 Operating and maintaining office equipment

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to describe six different types of office equipment.

Types of equipment described may include: telephone, answering system, photocopier, computer, fax machine, franking machine, shredder, filing system, printer, guillotine etc.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to describe the main features and uses for each type of office equipment selected for 1.1.

For 1.3 the candidate needs to know the difference between equipment and resources in order to choose the appropriate items for a range of administrative tasks. Candidates should describe this for four tasks. See further resources.

For 2.1 the candidate needs to explain why it is important to follow manufacturers' instructions when operating equipment, including what could be the result of not doing so eg risk to self or other's, invalidating the manufacturer's guarantee, damage to equipment etc. Their explanation must include relevant examples of equipment from their workplace - minimum of three.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to describe the health & safety guidelines for the equipment they used in 2.1 eg PPE, COSHH, Display Screen Act, manual handling, hygiene.

For 2.3 the candidate needs to explain the importance of following the health & safety guidelines including employee responsibilities under the Health and Safety Act 1974.

For 2.4 the candidate needs to outline why it is important to keep waste to a minimum for commercial (saving money) and environmental reasons.

For 2.5 the candidate needs to describe how waste can be minimised, how it is disposed of and the procedures in place for either reusing and/or recycling various waste created in their workplace.

For 2.6 the candidate needs to explain the work standards and deadlines involved in operating office equipment and the importance of meeting these.

For 3.1 the candidate needs to outline the reasons why it is important to keep equipment clean and hygienic eg Health & Safety considerations, cost implications, wastage, minimise risk of infection, etc.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to describe how to keep three types of office equipment clean and hygienic.

For 3.3 the candidate needs to outline the importance of following manufacturers' instructions and their organisational procedures when dealing with equipment faults.

For 3.4 and 3.5 candidate needs to identify the types of equipment and resource faults they may experience from the equipment and resources from 3.2 and describe how they should deal with these faults.

For 3.6 and 3.7 the candidate needs to explain the reasons why equipment, resources and work areas need to be left ready for the next user and any appropriate organisational procedure that may apply when leaving equipment, resources and work areas ready for the next user.

For 4.1 the candidate must locate and select the equipment and resources for a range of four administrative tasks. (see Appendix 1 for example form)

For 4.2 the candidate must show how they follow the manufacturer's operating instructions whilst they are using the equipment to carry out the tasks in 4.1.

For 4.3 the candidate must show how they minimise waste as much as possible in all the tasks they do eg by proof reading, print preview, recycling, etc.

For 4.4 the candidate must show how they reuse, recycle and dispose of any waste correctly and appropriately, following agreed procedures.

For 4.5 the candidate must show how they ensure the health & safety of themselves and others is maintained whilst they are carrying out various tasks in the workplace eg correct posture, taking breaks, safe working procedures.

For 4.6 the candidate must ensure their final work meets the agreed standards eg by checking with the person who issued the task.

For 4.7 the candidate must produce work to agreed deadlines eg evidence of deadlines being met.

For 5.1 keep equipment operated in 4.1 clean and hygienic. This could be evidenced by assessor observation or witness testimony.

For 5.2 the candidate needs to provide evidence detailing how they have dealt with at least one equipment and one resource problem according to the manufacturer's and organisation procedures. If no problems occur, then 'what if' questions can be asked to confirm competence.

For 5.3 the candidate needs to make sure that equipment, resources and work areas are left ready for the next user. This could be evidenced by assessor observation or witness testimony.

Unit 115

Maintaining customer relations in a business environment

UAN:	A/600/4982
Level:	2
Credit value:	4
GLH:	27
Aim:	This unit covers the knowledge and understanding learners need to use a telephone system, including transferring calls and managing messages. It also covers the practical application of this knowledge and understanding.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know about customer service in a business environment.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 outline what is meant by 'customer' in a business environment 1.2 outline why customer service is important in a business environment

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know how to develop customer relationships in a business environment.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 identify who their customers are 2.2 outline why it is important to build positive working relationships with customers 2.3 describe how to build positive working relationships with customers

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Know how to deliver customer service in a business environment.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 describe how to identify and confirm customer needs

- 3.2 describe the types of quality standards that are appropriate to their responsibilities
- 3.3 describe how to agree timescales and quality standards with customers
- 3.4 describe how to meet timescales and quality standards for customers

Learning outcome

The learner will:

- 4. Know how to respond to customer problems.

Assessment criteria

The learner can:

- 4.1 describe the problems that customers may experience
- 4.2 describe how to deal with customer problems
- 4.3 describe the procedures they should follow to deal with customers' complaints
- 4.4 identify the response times they should meet when dealing with customer complaints, problems and general enquiries

Learning outcome

The learner will:

- 5. Be able to deliver customer service in a business environment.

Assessment criteria

The learner can:

- 5.1 build positive working relationships with customers
- 5.2 identify and confirm customer needs and expectations
- 5.3 agree timescales, quality standards or procedures to follow
- 5.4 provide services to agreed timescales and quality standards
- 5.5 check customer needs and expectations are met
- 5.6 resolve or refer customer complaints in a professional manner and to a given timescale

Unit 115 Maintaining customer relations in a business environment

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to describe six different types of office equipment.

Types of equipment described may include: telephone, answering system, photocopier, computer, fax machine, franking machine, shredder, filing system, printer, guillotine etc.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to describe the main features and uses for each type of office equipment selected for 1.1.

For 1.3 the candidate needs to know the difference between equipment and resources in order to choose the appropriate items for a range of administrative tasks. Candidates should describe this for four tasks. See further resources.

For 1.1 the candidate must explain that a customer is somebody that you help in any shape or form, or somebody who expects you to provide a service to them.

For 1.2 the candidate should be able to explain at least two valid reasons why customer service is important. For example customer retention, less complaints, increased business etc.

For 2.1 the candidate needs to be able to accurately list who their customers are. These could be internal, external or both. For example delivery drivers, staff from other branches, general public, groups with special requirements.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to explain that by building positive relationships, they gain customer trust; they will retain their custom, and their customers will be loyal.

For 2.3 the candidate must describe at least three effective ways to build positive relationships. For example respect, communication, honesty, reliability, ability to quickly solve problems, build trust, keeping promises, always being happy to help, ability to recognise their customer needs, worries and feelings.

For 3.1 the candidate must explain how to identify customer's needs whether it is written, verbal or face to face. Customers vary in terms of how much they need to know, their capability to communicate this to you, their behaviour and attitude and how important they are (or like to be treated). The candidate should be aware of the organisation's questioning techniques or procedure for establishing what the customer wants, they should be able to ask the right questions to establish and confirm the requirements. If the candidate confirms the customer needs, they are more likely to respond quickly and appropriately to the request.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to describe more than one type of quality standard relating directly to the organisation. Schools, for example have Ofsted targets to meet, other organisations may have a service level agreement or charter that states how quickly they will provide a service. The organisation may pledge to offer a discount if the customer is not seen to within a set timescale, answer the telephone within three rings, never leave a customer waiting at the counter, or carry out a task by an agreed deadline.

For 3.3 the candidate has to be aware of how to negotiate a timescale or follow a set timescale used within the organisation that meets both the customer requirements and organisational needs. Some quality standards and timescales may not be able to be negotiated because they have been written down by the organisation, in which case, it is up to the candidate to ensure that this is met. On the other hand, the candidate needs to agree a timescale to respond to a complaint, help a colleague, initiate a customer call back or respond to a letter.

For 3.4 the candidate needs to explain methods of meeting timescales and quality standards. Examples could include, planning their workload to prioritise tasks, allocating enough time and resources, diarising and creating 'to do lists' to ensure that the task meets quality standards for customers.

For 4.1 the candidate must be able to explain four different problems that a customer could experience. For example rude staff, timescales not met, problems with products, lack of communication or incorrect information received, human error etc.

For 4.2 the candidate needs to describe the stages they should follow to effectively deal with a range of customer problems.

For 4.3 the candidate must explain their organisations procedures for handling and resolving customer problems.

For 4.4 the candidate must outline the appropriate organisation response time for handling problems, complaints or enquiries. If the organisation has no set guidelines then the candidate must be able to identify the importance of handling a complaint quickly.

For 5.1 the candidate must demonstrate a friendly and welcoming approach with a minimum of three customers (either internal or external). Examples could include using the customer name when appropriate, creating a rapport with their customers, retaining eye contact, positive body language or a helpful disposition. There should be signs of mutual respect, trust and honesty between the candidate and customer.

For 5.2 the candidate must identify and confirm the needs and expectations of a minimum of three customers (these could be the same customers as in 5.1). The candidate must apply listening skills, questioning techniques and the ability to read the customer's body language or tone in order to gain an understanding of what the customer needs or expects.

For 5.3 the candidate must agree timescales, quality standards or procedures with two customers (internal or external, these could be the same customers as in 5.1) If there are no procedures or quality standards and the candidate is unsure what to do, they should be seen to refer to a more senior member of staff or supervisor.

For 5.4 the candidate must provide services to agreed timescales and quality standards for a minimum of two customers (internal or external, these could be the same customers as in 5.1)

Examples of quality standards might include, photocopying for colleagues, collated or stapled and within the agreed time, quality food served within a reasonable timescale, refunds processed quickly and accurately.

For 5.5 the candidate must check on least two occasions that customers needs have been met. Examples could include, courtesy call to customer, questionnaire, or by asking the customer if they are happy with their service (these could be the same customers as in 5.1).

For 5.6 the candidate should be assessed resolving or referring a minimum of two complaints within the organisations timescales in line with its customer charter (eg 5 working days). Alternatively, if there is no timescale or charter the candidate must be able to resolve or pass it onto somebody in a professional way. This could include, making eye contact, displaying signs of empathy, staying calm, listening carefully and getting all the facts, displaying open body language and explaining to the customer precisely what they are going to do about it. This could involve asking for advice from a senior team member or passing the complaint over with a full explanation.

Level:	2
Credit value:	4
GLH:	27
Aim:	This unit covers the knowledge and understanding learners need to manage and update manual and electronic diary systems. It also covers the practical application of this knowledge and understanding.

Learning outcome
The learner will:
1. Understand different diary systems.
Assessment criteria
The learner can:
1.1 outline why it is important to use diary systems
1.2 describe the uses of different types of diary systems
1.3 compare the advantages and disadvantages of different diary systems

Learning outcome
The learner will:
2. Know how to update diary systems.
Assessment criteria
The learner can:
2.1 outline why it is important to obtain relevant information about requested diary entries and changes
2.2 identify the types of information they must obtain to make entries and changes
2.3 outline why it is important to prioritise requests
2.4 describe how to prioritise requests
2.5 identify solutions to different types of problems that may occur when requests are made
2.6 outline why it is important to try to balance the needs of all those involved when making entries and changes
2.7 outline why it is important to communicate changes to those affected by entries and changes
2.8 outline why it is important to keep the system up to date

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Know how to maintain security and confidentiality of diary systems.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 outline why security and confidentiality issues are important when operating a diary system 3.2 identify the types of security and confidentiality issues that are relevant to diary systems 3.3 describe how to manage security and confidentiality issues

Learning outcome
The learner will: 4. Be able to manage diary systems.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 4.1 obtain the information they need about requested diary entries 4.2 make diary entries accurately and clearly 4.3 prioritise requested changes 4.4 identify the implications of any changes for existing entries 4.5 solve problems by negotiating alternative arrangements 4.6 record agreed changes in the diary 4.7 communicate agreed changes to those affected 4.8 keep the diary up-to-date 4.9 maintain the security of diary systems

Unit 116 Managing diary systems

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to explain how diary systems are important to help plan and coordinate work related activities, people and resources.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to describe the way manual, electronic and shared diary systems work. This may include using a manual diary to record annual leave, an electronic diary to record time out of the office and a shared diary to coordinate people's attendance to a meeting.

For 1.3 the candidate must give a minimum of two advantages and disadvantages of using different types of diary systems, covering manual and electronic systems. For example, manual diaries can be displayed in the office, updated quickly and are accessible by all of the team but if misplaced, the information recorded is only in one place. Electronic diary systems can record information in one secure location accessible via a password but everyone must update it regularly for it to be effective.

For 2.1 the candidate needs to explain why obtaining current, relevant and up to date information is important. For example, to ensure there are no clashes, that people or resources are available and that it meets everyone's needs.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to list five different types of information needed to make entries and changes. For example - the date, time, location, length of the meeting, number of people, equipment needs and resources required.

For 2.3 the candidate needs to explain why requests need to be prioritised. This could be because equipment or a location needs to be booked, a deadline needs to be met for others or resources need organising.

For 2.4 the candidate needs to describe how they organise and prioritise requests. For example, is there a deadline to meet, does equipment, resources or a venue need to be booked or is it a priority for the manager, department or business?

For 2.5 the candidate needs to explain ways of solving problems when requests are made. This could be coming up with alternatives to avoid clashes in the venue, changing the time, date or individual schedules, offering others the opportunity to attend, budget or catering problems.

For 2.6 the candidate needs to describe the reason it is important to consider the needs of all those involved when making diary entries and changes. In answering this, the candidate could consider what it would be like if their needs were not considered when diary changes were made without consultation on for example, annual leave.

For 2.7 the candidate needs to explain why it is necessary to communicate any diary changes to those people affected. In answering this, the candidate should consider what it would be like if they were not updated about changes in their schedule and how it would affect their work, attendance and morale.

For 2.8 the candidate needs to explain why diary systems should be kept up to date. For example, to ensure the location of people is noted - who is in work and who is not, where meetings are being held, at what time and for how long, who is attending, what resources are arranged or required.

For 3.1 the candidate needs to give reasons why security and confidentiality are important when operating a diary system. These may include the type of the information being recorded, who can read or change diary entries and where and how the diary is located and accessed.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to describe the security and confidentiality issues for manual and electronic diary systems eg where they are stored, who has access, how often they are updated, what types of information is enclosed.

For 3.3 the candidate needs to state ways of managing security and confidentiality issues. These may include password protection for electronic diary systems, locking away manual diaries, making shared electronic diary systems read only.

For 4.1 the candidate needs to obtain a minimum of five different pieces of information needed in order to make diary entries eg the date, time, location, number of people, length of meeting, any equipment needs, catering required and resources required.

For 4.2 the candidate needs to enter a minimum three diary entries accurately and clearly using both manual and electronic systems where possible.

For 4.3 the candidate needs to prioritise a minimum of two changes to diary entries such as the date, time or location, length of meeting, attendees, equipment or resources. (The candidate can use the same diary entries as 4.2.)

For 4.4 the candidate needs to explain the consequences of the two requested changes and how they have affected people, dates or times, resources or venues. (The candidate can use the same diary entries as 4.2.)

For 4.5 the candidate needs to resolve a minimum of two different diary entry problems demonstrating negotiation of alternative arrangements like a different time, date, location, alternative attendees or materials. (The candidate can use the same diary entries as 4.2.)

For 4.6 the candidate needs to record two changes in the diary system either manually or electronically. (The candidate can use the same diary entries as 4.2.)

For 4.7 the candidate needs to show how these two changes were communicated with those affected. This may include communication via an email, note, memo, verbally within a meeting, telephone call or face to face communication. (The candidate can use the same diary entries as 4.2.)

For 4.8 the candidate needs to ensure that the diary is kept up to date and where possible use both manual and electronic systems. This may include 'before and after' diary pages showing the completed updates.

For 4.9 the candidate needs to show how the security of the diary system has been maintained on both manual and electronic diary systems where possible. This should include who has access to the diary system, is it password protected for electronic diary systems or locked away for manual diary systems, do shared electronic diary systems have 'read only' applied, where and how is the information stored.

Unit 117

Collecting and storing information

UAN:	H/600/4989
Level:	2
Credit value:	3
GLH:	20
Aim:	This unit covers the knowledge and understanding learners need to collect and store information using manual and electronic information systems. It also covers the practical application of this knowledge and understanding.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Understand information storage systems.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 explain why it is important to collect and store information as requested 1.2 describe different types of information systems and their main features regarding information storage 1.3 describe the legal and organisational requirements covering the collection and storage of information

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know how to collect and store information.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 outline why it is important to confirm information to be collected and stored 2.2 describe the methods they can use to collect required information 2.3 describe the procedures they should follow to access different information systems 2.4 describe the procedures they should follow to store information in different types of systems 2.5 outline why it is important to make sure information is accurate 2.6 identify the problems that may occur with the collection and storage of information 2.7 describe how to deal with problems relating to the collection and storage of information

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to collect and store information
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 identify and collect required information 3.2 follow agreed procedures and legislation to maintain security and confidentiality 3.3 store information accurately in approved locations

Unit 117 Collecting and storing information

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate should know that listening to or reading the information carefully will avoid the wrong information being collected and stored, and save time and resources.

For 1.2 the candidate should know about a range of different types of storage for both paper and electronic information. Paper systems that the candidate may be aware of are: vertical, horizontal, lateral filing systems or card indexes. Electronic systems could include information stored on CD rom, information on the company computer database, or systems that convert paper data into computer images that are then stored on the company information database. The candidate must explain a minimum of two systems for each.

For 1.3 the candidate must be able to outline the eight main principles of the Data Protection Act and explain the statutory retention periods for key information that their organisation holds.

For 2.4 the candidate must explain their organisations procedures for storing information in manual and/or electronic information systems. For example, stored to a deadline, recorded alphabetically, numerically, chronologically etc .

For 2.5 the candidate must be aware that inaccurate information is going to waste time for both the candidate and the person asking for the task to be done. They must state why the information to be collected and stored has to be accurate.

For 2.6 the candidate must explain a minimum of three problems. Problems could include, failure to locate the electronic or manual file, incomplete information filed, failure to gain access to the system, information destroyed or archived etc.

For 2.7 the candidate must be able to explain three ways to resolve problems. For example, look in the obvious places, ask somebody else or see if it is filed in the wrong place (eg filed by first name instead of surname). Alternatively, if files go missing regularly there may be a problem with the system, in which case, the candidate must be aware to report it.

For 3.1 the candidate must be able to demonstrate on a minimum of four occasions that they have been able to accurately identify and collect the information that they were required to.

For 3.2 the candidate must show in each of the four occasions in 3.1 that they have followed their organisational procedures for maintaining security and confidentiality as well as the data protection act. For example locking and unlocking their computer to keep electronic information safe, relocking a filing cabinet and returning the key to its correct location (if this meets the company procedures), storing confidential information that they aren't currently working on in a drawer or keeping sensitive information out of sight if away from their desk for any period of time. Procedures can relate to verbal, face to face or written communication.

For 3.3 the candidate must show on each of the four occasions in 3.1 that they have followed organisational procedures to store information accurately either manually and/or electronically.

UAN:	Y/600/4990
Level:	2
Credit value:	2
GLH:	13
Aim:	This unit covers the knowledge and understanding learners need to locate and retrieve information in manual and electronic information systems. It also covers the practical application of this knowledge and understanding.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Understand information retrieval systems.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 explain why information may need to be retrieved 1.2 describe different types of information systems and their main features regarding information retrieval 1.3 describe the legal and organisational requirements covering security and confidentiality in relation to retrieving information

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know how to retrieve and provide information.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 outline why it is important to confirm information to be retrieved 2.2 describe the procedures they should follow to access different information systems 2.3 describe the methods they can use to retrieve information in different information systems 2.4 describe the problems that may occur with information retrieval 2.5 describe how to deal with the problems that may occur with information retrieval 2.6 outline why it is important to provide information in the required format and within agreed timescales

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to retrieve and provide information.
Assessment criteria

The learner can:

- 3.1 confirm information for retrieval
- 3.2 comply with procedures and legislation for accessing an information system
- 3.3 locate and retrieve the required information
- 3.4 identify problems with information retrieval
- 3.5 report problems with information retrieval
- 3.6 provide information in the agreed format and within agreed timescales

Unit 118 Retrieving information

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate must explain giving at least three examples of why information may need to be retrieved eg when amendments have to be made, to add to the information, to review or refer to previous recorded data or to pass the information on to another person, to resolve a query etc.

For 1.2 the candidate must describe at least three different types of information systems and how information is retrieved from each eg computer databases, paper files, CD Rom, indexes, spreadsheets, lever arch files.

For 1.3 the candidate needs to describe their organisational confidentiality and security requirements for retrieving information and briefly describe the legislative guidelines to follow under the Data Protection Act /Freedom of Information.

For 2.1 the candidate needs to outline reasons why they would need to confirm what information is to be retrieved eg what is required, who it is required by and when it is required.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to describe the procedures they would need to follow in order to access the different information systems outlined in 1.2 eg is permission needed to access the information systems, does the information have to be returned by a deadline, do they have to log its removal?

For 2.3 the candidate needs to describe the methods they would use to retrieve information from the information systems given in 2.2.

For 2.4 the candidate needs to describe various problems which may occur when retrieving information eg mis-filed documents, information not located where it should be or incomplete information.

For 2.5 the candidate needs to describe how they would deal with the problems listed in 2.4 eg who they would report the problem to and what steps would be taken to remedy the problems.

For 2.6 the candidate needs to outline why it is important to provide information in the required format and within the agreed time scales eg so that it meets the needs of the person requesting it, demonstrates their ability to work efficiently, effectively and to follow instructions.

For 3.1 the candidate must confirm the information for retrieval on four different occasions with the person requesting it. This could be confirmed verbally, face to face or in writing.

For 3.2 the candidate must demonstrate how they comply with organisational procedures and legislation when accessing the chosen system for the information in 3.1. If there are no procedures in place, 'what if' questions can be asked to check understanding.

For 3.3 the candidate must demonstrate how they have located and retrieved the information required in 3.1.

For 3.4 the candidate needs to identify 2 problems encountered with the information retrieved in 3.3. If no problems were encountered, then 'what if' questions may be asked to confirm competence.

For 3.5 the candidate needs to report two problems to the correct individual in their organisation. If no problems were encountered, then 'what if' questions may be asked to confirm competence.

For 3.6 the candidate must demonstrate how they provide the required information within the time agreed and in the correct format on at least two different occasions.

Customer Service Units

The following section contains the content of the customer service units.

Unit 119

Create a good impression to customers

UAN:	R/601/6068
Level:	1
Credit value:	2
GLH:	18
Aim:	The aim of this unit is to help the learner to show they can dress, present themselves and communicate in a way that gives customers the right impression.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Be able to dress appropriately for a customer service job.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 describe appropriate dress requirements in different customer service jobs 1.2 identify inappropriate dress in different customer service jobs 1.3 dress in a way that meets customer expectations in a particular job

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Be able to demonstrate an appropriate appearance for a customer service job.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 state the importance of making a good first impression on customers 2.2 identify personal appearance that may cause a negative reaction from customers 2.3 present self in a way that makes a positive impression on customers

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to relate effectively to customers.
Assessment criteria

The learner can:

- 3.1 describe methods of communicating with customers
- 3.2 describe why offensive language should be avoided when dealing with customers
- 3.3 use appropriate methods of communication when dealing with customers

Unit 119 Create a good impression to customers

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to list three different customer service based jobs and describe how the employees dress appropriately in order to create the right impression. Candidates could consider organisations who issue uniforms, name badges and/or specific clothing to meet health and safety requirements.

For 1.2 the candidate must identify inappropriate dress in two different customer service jobs. They could use examples from their own experiences as a customer, paying attention to areas such as a failure to wear uniform/name badge, untidy or dirty clothing, clothing too revealing or dressing without consideration to health and safety risks.

For 1.3 the candidate must comply with the organisation's dress code and be wearing clothes appropriate for their working environment, for example:

- Overalls (eg garage staff, decorators, supermarket)
- Special clothing for hygiene purposes (eg hats to keep hair tucked in, plastic gloves if working with food)
- Smart suit (worn in offices or banks to show professionalism)
- Trendy clothing (worn in a shop to advertise that shop's latest fashion)
- Clothing that fits a colour scheme to match the organisation's colours. Dress code could also vary to indicate more senior management eg a shirt, tie and formal trousers/skirt in a fast-food restaurant might signify more responsibility whereas staff at a lower level might wear a colour polo shirt and more robust trousers.

For 2.1 the candidate must understand that you only get one change to make a good first impression to customers; whether this is verbally, in writing or face-to-face with internal or external customers. They must consider how their behaviour and attitude influences customer trust, satisfaction, loyalty and whether the customer chooses to do business with your organisation.

For 2.2 the candidate must explain three types of appearance that could cause a negative reaction for example, somebody with dirty nails, unkempt hair, untidy appearance, too much makeup/perfume and revealing clothing. They should understand that appearance also incorporates attitude so a person who serves a customer with a scowling face could mean that they have no particular interest in the customer.

For 2.3 the candidate must make a positive impression on two different occasions showing they have presented themselves smartly, professionally, helpfully and politely. This could be observed by an appropriate witness in the workplace or assessor.

For 3.1 the candidate needs to describe three different methods of communicating with customers and should use examples from written eg letter, email, text message, and verbal communication methods eg telephone, face-to-face.

For 3.2 the candidate must describe what might constitute offensive language, (swearing, slang, inappropriate comments relating to gender, race, culture, age or disability) and why they should never use any offensive language with customers regardless of how angry or aggressive the communication received becomes or if confrontation develops eg it will upset or aggravate the customer, it is not professional.

For 3.3 the candidate must demonstrate three occasions where they have chosen or adopted the most appropriate communication method to suit the situation and the needs of the customer. The candidate could demonstrate when they have chosen telephone communication over email in order to explain answers to questions quickly so that complaints are minimised or when it has been appropriate to clarify information on product or service options and prices in writing to the customer so that they have a permanent record.

Outcome	Possible forms of evidence
1.3, 2.3, 3.3	Observation of performance demonstrating how the candidate presents themselves and communicates appropriately with customers. Work products such as emails, messages they have written and other written communication carried out for the customer by the candidate. Confidential and/or product evidence can be seen by the assessor, their locations referenced and remain in the workplace. Witness testimony from the teacher or a reliable person in the workplace confirming candidate actions and/or confirmation of verbal, face-to-face or written communication. Written statement from the candidate describing performance that has taken place and confirmed by a reliable person in the workplace or a teacher.
1.1, 1.2, 2.1, 2.2, 3.1, 3.2	A well-planned guided discussion between the candidate and assessor (This could be digitally recorded). Written questions, workbook, well-planned discussion, assignment or candidate statement, written around the assessment criteria to test the knowledge.

Apply legislation, regulation and organisational procedures for customer service

UAN:	R/601/6071
Level:	1
Credit value:	3
GLH:	24
Aim:	The aim of this unit is to help the learner to comply with legislative and regulatory requirements and follow organisational procedures when involved in delivering customer service.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Be able to follow customer service procedures for a particular job.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 describe the limits of own responsibility and authority for a particular job in customer service 1.2 carry out steps in customer service procedures for a particular job

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Be able to protect the security of property and information when delivering customer service.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 observe organisational procedures for the security of property when delivering customer service 2.2 observe organisational procedures for the security of information when delivering customer service

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Know the health and safety requirements of delivering customer service.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 describe the health and safety rules that relate to delivering customer service

3.2 describe the main health and safety risks for customers and colleagues when delivering customer service

Learning outcome

The learner will:

- | |
|--|
| 4. Know other external rules that impact on customer service delivery. |
|--|

Assessment criteria

The learner can:

|--|
| 4.1 describe the key legislation and external regulations relating to customer service delivery |
| 4.2 describe actions to avoid because of legislation and regulation when delivering customer service |
| 4.3 describe the importance of treating customers equally when delivering customer service |

Unit 120

Apply legislation, regulation and organisational procedures for customer service

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to select one customer service job and describe three limits of responsibility. The candidate must describe what they are allowed to do as defined within the job description and also when and from whom they need to gain authority. Candidates could use their job specification, job description or appraisal.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to follow through customer service procedures in three customer service tasks. These could be, eg taking payment, giving customers product/service information, updating customer information, logging enquiries, scheduling delivery, responding to problems, processing refunds or returns, dealing with faulty items or registering complaints. Candidates should show how they have followed organisational procedures when delivering customer service on, for example, processing refunds, returns or exchanges.

For 2.1 the candidate must show they have followed the organisational procedures in place for the security of property on two different occasions when delivering customer service. This could include using entry codes to access restricted areas, ensuring visitors sign in and are escorted to their destination, wearing name badges, securely storing personal possessions or restricting the carrying of money onto the shop floor, ensuring premises are locked and windows shut at the end of the day.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to demonstrate that they have followed and adhered to organisational procedures for the security of information on two different occasions when delivering customer service. They must pay attention to the Data Protection Act prior to giving the customer information. The candidate must show that they have met the requirements of their/the organisation to ensure that information is protected eg locking computers when away from work stations, not sharing passwords and keeping sensitive information out of sight.

For 3.1 the candidate must understand the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 (HASWA) when delivering customer service. The candidate needs to understand that health and safety rules are there to prevent injury and describe three Health and Safety rules that apply when delivering customer service. For example what to do, or who to report to in the event of an accident or fire, keeping themselves and their customer safe by spotting and reporting hazards/risks, wearing personal protective clothing and using safe working methods (safe VDU usage, correct manual handling techniques etc), following personal hygiene requirements if applicable.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to describe three main health and safety risks for customers and colleagues. For example wet floor, abusive or aggressive customers, dangerous stairways, obstructions, poor heating/lighting/ventilation. Reference may be made to the risk assessment procedure in place.

For 4.1 the candidate must describe three pieces of legislation or regulations relating to customer service delivery for example: The Sale of Goods Act 1979, Supply of Goods and Services Act 1982, Trade Descriptions Act 1968, Consumer Protection Act 1987, Data Protection Act, the Consumer Protection (Distance Selling) Regulations 2005, The Financial Services Act, The Health and Safety at Work Act. Regulations might apply to the items that must not be sold to people under a certain age such as knives, harmful substances, tobacco, alcohol or lottery tickets.

For 4.2, using the information from 4.1 the candidate must describe three actions that should be avoided because of the guidelines within the legislation and regulations listed above. The candidate should consider things they should not do such as sharing confidential customer information with unauthorised people (Data Protection Act), describing goods that don't correspond with their description (Sale of Goods Act 1979), providing a service that is not at the proper standard (Supply of Goods and Services Act 1982) or misleading the customer on what the product can do and its quality (Trade Descriptions Act 1968).

For 4.3 the candidate needs to describe why it is important to treat customers equally regardless of sexuality, race, age, gender, disability, social status, general physical appearance. They should ensure that they pay attention to following company procedures and legislation when delivering customer service, treating all customers politely, professionally and helpfully at all times so that every interaction meets the customer's expectations.

Outcome	Possible forms of evidence
1.1, 3.1, 3.2, 4.1, 4.2, 4.3	Written questions, candidate statements, workbooks or assignments written around the assessment criteria to test the knowledge of the candidate. A well-planned guided discussion between the candidate and assessor (This could be digitally recorded). For 1.1, a job description, contract of employment, job specification or appraisal could be used. For 3.1 and 4.1 reference could be made to websites containing information on customer service regulations: www.dti.gov.uk, www.instituteofcustomerservice.com, www.hse.gov.uk, www.direct.gov.uk/customer, www.ico.gov.uk
1.2, 2.1, 2.2	Observation of performance. Work products such as emails, letters to/ from customers, notes taken and computer update screens,

information sought from colleagues, other departments or companies, visitor book/badges, password screens, company procedures on customer service delivery, security of property and information, research about the Data Protection Act (1.2, 2.1, 2.2).

Confidential and/or product evidence can be seen by the assessor with their locations referenced and remain in the workplace.

A diary of tasks performed accurately over time.

Witness testimony from the teacher or a reliable person in the workplace confirming candidate actions and/or confirmation of verbal/face-to-face communication.

Written statement from the candidate describing performance that has taken place and confirmed by a reliable person in the workplace or a teacher.

Unit 121

Deal with queries and requests

UAN:	H/601/6074
Level:	1
Credit value:	3
GLH:	22
Aim:	The unit is about helping the learner to gain knowledge of the products and services and use that knowledge when dealing with customer queries and requests.

Learning outcome
The learner will:
1. Know the services and products of a section or department.
Assessment criteria
The learner can:
1.1 describe the services and products of a selected section or department
1.2 list the key features and benefits to customers of the services and products of a selected section or department

Learning outcome
The learner will:
2. Know the customer's interests about the services and products of a section or department.
Assessment criteria
The learner can:
2.1 describe the features and benefits of services and products that most interest customers
2.2 identify questions that customers frequently ask about services and products and the preferred answers to those questions

Learning outcome
The learner will:
3. Be able to clarify customer queries or requests.
Assessment criteria
The learner can:
3.1 listen closely to questions and responses from customers
3.2 clarify queries and requests from customers

Learning outcome

The learner will: 4. Be able to deal with queries or requests from customers
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 4.1 deal with a query or request in a positive way 4.2 seek information or support if the query or request is outside of their own knowledge or authority

Unit 121 Deal with queries and requests

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to select one organisation and choose one section or department within this company describing one product and one service it provides. The candidate should be aware that some organisations only provide a product or a service and others provide both.

For 1.2 the candidate must list two key features and describe their corresponding benefits to the customer of the products or services that the section or department identified in 1.1 provides. For example a feature of a washing machine is that it has a half load option and the benefit of this is more economical and environmentally friendly, after sales care on electrical goods the benefit is a helpline provided.

For 2.1 the candidate must describe the key features and benefits of two of the most popular products or services provided (these could be the products/services identified in 1.1). Benefits to customers could include: saving money, user friendly, child friendly, long-term product life, for security/peace of mind, to save time, for flexibility, status/luxury.

For 2.2 the candidate needs to identify four frequently asked customer questions and their preferred answers. These may include questions on opening times, contact details, delivery timescales, information or specifications on the product or service, payment methods, company procedures for refunds, returns or exchanges or the complaints policy. The candidate could use the organisation's 'frequently asked questions' detailing preferred answers if there is one in place.

For 3.1 the candidate needs to show they have listened closely to four questions and responses from customers by paying full attention, making eye contact, avoiding distractions, perhaps taking down notes and confirming/summarising customer's response.

For 3.2 the candidate must show they have confirmed or clarified two requests and queries from customers in order to ensure they have understood it correctly. They could take notes or log the customer query and their response.

For 4.1 the candidate needs to deal with three customer requests or queries in a positive and professional way. This may include queries on payment methods, special offers, company procedures for refunds, returns or exchanges or product/service availability and/or specifications ensuring that the query is resolved successfully. The candidate should aim to follow company procedure correctly and could use the requests clarified in 3.2.

For 4.2 the candidate must show they have sought information or support from another colleague for one query or request which is outside their level of authority or knowledge base. This could involve passing the enquiry on to a senior team member or seeking advice from them.

Outcome	Possible forms of evidence
1.1, 1.2, 2.1, 2.2	Written questions, candidate statements, workbooks or assignments written around the assessment criteria to test the knowledge of the candidate. For 2.2, the candidate could use the organisations 'frequently asked questions' detailing preferred answer if there is one in place. A well-planned guided discussion between the candidate and the assessor (this could be digitally recorded). Candidates could use evidence gathered in Unit 106 assessment criteria 2.1 & 2.2.

Unit 122

Record and communicate customer problems

UAN:	K/601/6075
Level:	1
Credit value:	2
GLH:	18
Aim:	The aim of this unit is to help the learner to collect detailed information from a customer when there is a customer problem and communicate it accordingly.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Be able to collect detailed information from a customer with a problem.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 question a customer to collect detailed information about a problem 1.2 check why the customer believes that their expectations are not being met

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Be able to record detailed information about a customer problem.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 keep a record of details about a customer service problem 2.2 confirm the accuracy of the record of a customer problem with the customer

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to communicate a customer problem to a colleague and a customer.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 select information about the customer and the problem, that is sufficient for a colleague to understand it 3.2 inform a colleague about the customer problem 3.3 give the customer information about the steps being taken to deal with the problem

Unit 122 Record and communicate customer problems

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate must question one customer in order to collect three pieces of detailed information about their problem for example, customer reference/contact details, what happened, when, with whom, what action(s) have been taken and what the customer wants. This can be on the telephone or face-to-face and could be observed by the assessor/witness. The candidate must ensure they have followed the guidelines of the Data Protection Act before discussing or revealing confidential customer information.

For 1.2 the candidate must check the reason why the customer is not happy, confirming why their expectations have not been met and ensure that they listen to their explanations. A 'customer' could be internal or external.

For 2.1 the candidate must record the details of one customer service problem following organisational procedures and timescales and/or deadlines where applicable. These problems could be related to the quality of product or service, delays experienced, incorrect information sent out or quoted, attitude of staff, procedures or payment issues.

For 2.2 the candidate must clarify the details of the customer service problem from 2.1, repeating to confirm the customer's reference number, personal and contact details and summarising the problem to ensure they have recorded all of the information accurately (eg who, what, how, when and/or why a problem happened).

For 3.1 the candidate must select the most relevant details of one customer problem, summarising this problem so that a colleague can understand it, for example, considering who, what, how, when and/or why the problem happened and include customer reference/contact details.

For 3.2 the candidate must inform a colleague of the customer service problem identified in 3.1 ensuring that they have understood it. This could be communicated face-to-face, on the telephone, within written notes, diary pages, computerised file notes, database or spreadsheet recording or email. The colleague/s can be within their department or located elsewhere in the organisation.

For 3.3 the candidate must inform the customer what is going to happen next for the problem detailed in 3.1/3.2. The candidate will need to inform the customer what is happening, who is dealing with it and when they will be contacted so that the problem is dealt with effectively. Candidates may need to consider applying organisational procedures and/or follow legislation.

1.1, 1.2, 2.1, 2.2	Observation of performance demonstrating how the candidate collects information about problems from customers	Candidates could use evidence gathered in Units 103 and 106; full explanations of the criteria is explained below:
3.1, 3.2, 3.3		For 1.1 candidates could use evidence gathered in Unit 106 (Answer telephone calls from customers) assessment criteria 2.1. For 3.2 candidates could use evidence gathered in Unit 103 (Deal with queries and requests) assessment criteria 4.2 and unit 106 (Answer telephone calls from customers) assessment criteria 2.3.
		Observation of performance demonstrating how the candidate collects information about problems from customers.
		Work products such as written notes, computerised file notes, database or spreadsheet recording, telephone log, email, letters or a diary of tasks performed accurately over time.
		Witness testimony from the teacher or a reliable person in the workplace confirming candidate actions and/or confirmation of verbal, face-to-face or written communication.
		Written statement from the candidate describing performance that has taken place and confirmed by a reliable person in the workplace or a teacher.
		A well-planned guided discussion between the candidate and the assessor (This could be digitally recorded).
		Confidential and/or product evidence can be seen by the assessor, their locations referenced and remain in the workplace.

Level:	1
Credit value:	2
GLH:	18
Aim:	The aim of this unit is to help the learner understand their role in a customer service environment .

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know the customer service principles that affect a customer related job.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 state the service offer of the organisation 1.2 describe the role of a selected job holder in delivering the service offer

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know what is required of a particular job holder to meet customer expectations.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 describe the information the job holder needs to meet customer service expectations 2.2 describe how the behaviour of somebody in a customer service job affects the customer experience

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Know the outline of entry level customer service jobs.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 identify jobs delivering customer service 3.2 identify the customers for those jobs 3.3 describe what customers expect from somebody doing those jobs

Learning outcome
The learner will: 4. Know the outline of customer service jobs that may be accessible after experience in first step jobs.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 4.1 identify jobs that may follow from experience in first step customer service 4.2 identify the customers for those jobs 4.3 describe what customers expect from someone doing these jobs

Unit 123 Working in customer service

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate should understand the service offer of the organisation and summarise the customer charter if applicable. Alternatively, the candidate can choose one company and describe what it does, how it provides its products or services and who its customers are. The company could be in retail, hospitality, airport, travel agent, leisure centre, telesales, tour operator, local authority, NHS, insurance company, bank or a call centre. This could be a small or large organisation based locally, nationally or internationally who deals with customers face-to-face or on the telephone. The candidate can choose an organisation that interests them.

For 1.2 the candidate must select one customer service job role within this company and describe the job role and the responsibilities that go with this job role. Candidates could use a job description, contract of employment or job specification to detail how they deliver the service on offer.

For 2.1 the candidate must describe four pieces of information that they need to know in order to meet the customer's expectations. These may include knowledge of the range of products or services, their prices, how to check product/service availability, special offers and discounts, email addresses, payment methods, directions, company policies or legislation that have to be followed.

For 2.2 the candidate must describe how their body language, tone of voice, gestures, appearance and the use of proper words affect the customer's experience. They must consider how their behaviour and attitude influences customer trust, satisfaction, loyalty and whether the customer chooses to do business with your organisation.

For 3.1 the candidate needs to identify three entry level customer service based jobs. This may include entry positions in companies such as clearing tables in a café, stacking shelves in a shop, delivering newspapers and mail, students assisting at school/college open evenings, cleaning and/or general housekeeping. The candidate could use local or national press to identify these positions.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to use the three entry level customer service based jobs identified in 3.1 and describe who the customers are. This could include the service they provide to colleagues working elsewhere in the company (internal customers), or to members of the general public or any customers or companies outside your organisation (external customers).

For 3.3 the candidate must use the customers identified in 3.2 and describe what their expectations are. This could include their enquiry being dealt with swiftly, processing basic customer service information, a prompt service being offered, accurate product information provided, staff that are helpful or who offer a service which is easy to use. The candidate should use their own positive experiences as a customer.

For 4.1 the candidate must use the three customer services based jobs identified in 3.1 and describe the next step for career development for example, trainee sales assistant, salon assistant and glass collector. The candidate should consider how and where they could progress to give them more responsibility and a wider variety of tasks. The candidate could use local or national press to identify these positions.

For 4.2 the candidate needs to use the three next step customer service based jobs identified in 4.1 and describe who the customers are. These could include internal and external customers and should show the expansion of job responsibilities where the position may offer more decision-making, fewer routine tasks and the ability to work on own initiative.

For 4.3 the candidate must use the customers identified in 4.2 and describe what their expectations are. These may include answering enquiries, explaining company procedures, following up messages, taking payment, meeting deadlines, solving small problems, processing customer service information, describing and selecting products or services.

Outcome	Possible forms of evidence
1.1, 1.2, 2.1, 2.2	Written questions, candidate statement, workbooks or assignments written around the assessment criteria to test the knowledge of the candidate. A well-planned guided discussion between the candidate and the assessor (This could be digitally recorded). The organisation selected could be a small or large organisation based locally, nationally or internationally who deals with customers face-to-face or on the telephone in any industry. For 1.2, a job description, contract of employment or job specification could be used. For 2.1, websites containing information on customer service regulations: www.dti.gov.uk, www.instituteofcustomerservice.com, www.hse.gov.uk, www.direct.gov.uk/customer

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Be able to greet customers calling on the telephone.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 explain why an appropriate greeting is needed for customers 1.2 use the appropriate greeting when answering customer calls

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Be able to deal with incoming customer telephone calls.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 use questions to clarify customer wishes and needs during telephone calls 2.2 deal with the customer's requests within the limits of own authority 2.3 pass on calls from customers to appropriate colleagues when customer needs are outside their own authority

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to respond to requests from customers.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 exchange information with customers over the telephone 3.2 summarise information from customers to check they have heard requests correctly

Unit 124 Answer telephone calls from customers

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to describe why it is vital to use an appropriate greeting when answering the telephone to customers. They should consider the importance of first impressions, setting the stage for the company and how this first call influences whether the customer will do business with the company.

For 1.2 the candidate must say the appropriate greeting when answering the telephone to four customers (internal or external). At least two of these calls should be observed by the Assessor/Witness and could be recorded or detailed on a telephone log. Where there is no preferred organisational greeting in place, the candidate could follow basic polite and professional principles for example hello/good morning/ good afternoon, the company name or department, their name and ask how they can help.

For 2.1 the candidate must ask appropriate questions to confirm two caller's needs or requests, taking notes where necessary. This should include clarifying or repeating key points the customer has said to confirm accuracy and to show they have listened; spelling any difficult words. They should apply 'open' questioning techniques by asking who, what, when, how and why.

For 2.2 the candidate must handle two customer requests within the limits of their own authority. These could include verbally communicating prices or descriptions of products or services, agreeing to send out information to the customer, simplifying company procedures, taking a booking, providing email addresses, directions or contact details.

For 2.3 the candidate must pass on two calls to other colleagues where the customers' requests or needs fall outside their area of responsibility. They need to ensure they have selected the correct person to refer the request on to and transfer the call successfully. These colleagues may be located within their own department or elsewhere in the organisation.

For 3.1 the candidate needs to show how they exchanged information over the telephone with three different customers. These could include prices, product or services available, opening hours, special offers, directions, contact details, company procedures, payment methods etc.

For 3.2 the candidate must verbally repeat and summarise two pieces of information from customers to ensure that they have confirmed their requests correctly. This could include personal data, customer reference numbers, payment details, date of birth, addresses, colours, sizes etc. Please note the candidate should not disclose any confidential customer information such as customer passwords or payment details.

1.1	Written question, guided discussion or candidate statement written around the assessment criteria to test the knowledge.
1.2, 2.1, 2.2, 2.3 3.1, 3.2,	Candidates could use evidence gathered in Units 103 and 107; full explanations are explained below: For 2.1, candidates could refer to evidence gathered in Unit 103 (Deal with queries and requests) assessment criteria 3.1 and 3.2. For 2.2, candidates could refer to evidence gathered in Unit 103 (Deal with queries and requests) assessment criteria 4.1 and Unit 110 (Work in a customer-friendly way assessment criteria 1.4. For 2.3, calls could be observed by the assessor/witness. Unit 125

Positive communication with customers

UAN:	A/601/6078
Level:	1
Credit value:	2
GLH:	20
Aim:	The aim of this unit is to help the learner to understand that the way they communicate makes for a positive customer service experience.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Be able to hold conversations with customers.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 use questions to develop a customer conversation 1.2 describe how to listen actively to customers 1.3 listen actively to customers 1.4 close a conversation with a customer

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Be able to respond to requests from customers.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 exchange information with customers in a conversation 2.2 summarise information from customers to check they have heard requests correctly 2.3 pass information from customers to colleagues

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to use body language when dealing with customers.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 identify types of body language that affect customers positively 3.2 identify types of body language that affect customers negatively 3.3 use positive body language when dealing with customers

Unit 125 Positive communication with customers

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate must ask three customers appropriate questions to develop a customer conversation. This can be on the telephone or face-to-face and could be observed by the assessor/witness. The candidate could use notes taken and could apply 'open ended' questioning techniques by asking who, what, how and why.

For 1.2 the candidate needs to describe three active listening techniques, for example, by making eye contact where possible, focussing fully on what the customer is saying by nodding/verbally agreeing, not being preoccupied, showing interest and checking their own understanding.

For 1.3 the candidate must listen actively to three customers demonstrating the techniques described in 1.2.

For 1.4 the candidate needs to close three conversations politely and professionally. Candidates could use the same customer as in 1.3.

For 2.1 the candidate must exchange information over the telephone or face-to-face with three customers. These could include prices, details of product or services available, colours, styles, sizes, opening hours, special offers, directions, contact details, company procedures, payment methods etc.

For 2.2 the candidate must repeat and summarise three pieces of information from customers to ensure that they have confirmed their requests correctly. This could include personal data, customer reference numbers, payment details, date of birth, addresses, spelling of difficult words, colours, styles, sizes etc. Please note the candidate should not enclose any confidential customer information such as passwords or payment details.

For 2.3 the candidate must pass on two pieces of information from customers to colleagues. They need to ensure they have selected the correct person to refer the request on to and ensure that the information clarifies and summarises key points for their colleagues. The information could be passed on to colleagues verbally or in writing (eg telephone message, email).

For 3.1 the candidate needs to identify three types of body language that affect customers positively, paying attention to body posture, gestures and facial expressions/eye movements eg standing up straight, not fidgeting, holding head up, relaxing shoulders, paying attention to the customer, using hands confidently, smiling, speaking carefully and slowly and maintaining eye contact etc.

For 3.2 the candidate needs to identify three types of body language that affect customers negatively; paying attention to body posture, gestures and facial expressions/eye movements eg folding arms, being preoccupied, sounding or appearing bored, aggressive behaviour/bad language used, avoiding eye contact, fidgeting, frowning, raising eyebrows.

For 3.3 the candidate must be assessed on three occasions using positive body language when dealing with customers.

Outcome	Possible forms of evidence
1.1, 1.3, 1.4, 2.1, 2.2 2.3, 3.3	Candidates could use evidence gathered in Units 103, 106 and 110; full explanations of the criteria is explained below: For 1.1, candidates could refer to evidence gathered in Unit 106 (Answer telephone calls from customers) assessment criteria 2.1. For 1.3, candidates could refer to evidence gathered in Unit 103 (Deal with queries and requests) assessment criteria 3.1. For 1.4, candidates could refer to evidence gathered in Unit 110 (Work in a customer-friendly way) assessment criteria 3.4. For 2.1, candidates could refer to evidence gathered in Unit 106 (Answer telephone calls from customers) assessment criteria 3.1. For 2.2, candidates could refer to evidence gathered in Unit 106 (Answer telephone calls from customers) assessment criteria 3.2. For 2.3, candidates could refer to evidence gathered in unit 106 (Answer telephone calls from customers) assessment criteria 2.3. Observation of performance where candidates ask customers questions, listen to their needs and exchange information using positive body language. Note-taking or telephone logs can be used as evidence but the candidate should not enclose any confidential customer information such as passwords or payment details. Confidential and/or product evidence can be seen by the assessor, their locations referenced and remain in the workplace. A diary of tasks performed accurately over time. Witness testimony from the teacher or a reliable person in the workplace confirming candidate actions and/or confirmation of verbal/face communication. Written statement from the candidate describing performance that has taken place and confirmed by a reliable person in the workplace or a teacher.

A well-planned guided discussion between the candidate and assessor (This could be digitally recorded).

Unit 126

Contribute to effective customer service

UAN:	F/601/6079
Level:	1
Credit value:	2
GLH:	20
Aim:	The aim of this unit is to help the learner to understand the factors that contribute to effective customer service.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know customer service terms and language.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 define key customer service terms and language 1.2 describe the connections between customer service, customer expectations and customer satisfaction

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know what contributes to good customer service in an organisation.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 describe how company procedures contribute to good customer service 2.2 describe how good teamwork contributes to good customer service 2.3 describe the main points in a customer service process that influence customer satisfaction

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to work effectively with colleagues in a customer service team
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 describe why friendliness and helpfulness are useful in customer service teamwork

- 3.2 describe the importance of not distracting colleagues when dealing with customers
- 3.3 identify what leads to effective team work
- 3.4 work effectively within a team when carrying out routine customer service tasks

Unit 126 Contribute to effective customer service

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate needs to define at least five of the key customer service terms contained in the Glossary of Terms. They should also give three examples of customer service language used in order to introduce themselves, welcome the customer, enquire how they can help or thank the customer, for example, 'Do you need help with your packing?' 'Is there anything else I can help you with?' 'Sorry to keep you waiting?' Candidates could use standard greetings implemented by their organisations. Customer service language should be positive, delivered with the appropriate tone and positive body language and use phrases in order to make sure every contact with the customer counts.

For 1.2 the candidate should describe that customer service can make or break every customer interaction. They should explain that by delivering a good level of customer service they can meet the customer's expectations and satisfy the customer's needs. This helps to retain the customer's business, maintains a good organisational reputation, sets them apart from their competitors and attracts new customers.

For 2.1 the candidate must describe how important it is to follow company procedures in order to provide a consistent level of customer service. They should consider how procedures in place provide guidance on how to conduct business, what they can do for the customer, explain the customer's rights and are a source of information for the team and the customer.

For 2.2 the candidate must describe how good teamwork contributes to effective customer service. (T.E.A.M – Together, Everyone Achieves More). They should consider agreeing common goals, supporting each other, using open communication styles, showing mutual respect, each knowing their role and where they fit in, team commitment to improving performance, all being team players.

For 2.3 the candidate needs to describe the main points in a customer service process that affect whether the customer is satisfied. This should include identifying the customer's need, searching for information on product or services and giving the customer options.

For 3.1 the candidate should describe why being friendly and helpful to colleagues is useful in a customer service team, for example so that colleagues communicate better, support and respect each other, work well together and create a pleasant and enjoyable working environment.

For 3.2 the candidate must describe why it is important not to distract colleagues when dealing with customers. If distracted colleagues are not able to focus on the needs of the customer, they can seem disinterested which can create a bad customer service experience.

For 3.3 the candidate needs to identify what elements lead to effective team-work. They should consider having agreed common goals, supporting and making time for each other, using helpful and open communication techniques, showing mutual respect to all levels of customer service employees, listening to each other's opinions and suggestions, recognising and appreciating each other's role and all the team committing to improve performance.

For 3.4 the candidate must demonstrate that on two occasions, they have worked effectively within a customer service team carrying out routine customer service tasks. This must show what they have done, who they have involved, the procedures they may have followed and how they communicated. Routine customer service tasks could include sorting through mail, responding to product or service enquiries, checking availability, communicating special offers, passing on information to colleagues, processing payments, updating customer service information or agreeing delivery.

Unit 127

The customer service experience

UAN:	T/601/6080
Level:	1
Credit value:	2
GLH:	20
Aim:	This unit about helping the learner to understand the customer service model by relating it to personal experience.

Learning outcome
The learner will: 1. Know about the customer service experience.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 1.1 describe customer service situations 1.2 describe steps in a customer service process 1.3 describe the feelings of being a customer at different stages of the customer service process

Learning outcome
The learner will: 2. Know how customer satisfaction is achieved.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 2.1 describe the link between customer expectations and customer satisfaction 2.2 describe service delivery that provides customer satisfaction 2.3 describe customer service that does not meet customer expectations and the reasons why

Learning outcome
The learner will: 3. Be able to demonstrate a positive attitude when dealing with customers.
Assessment criteria
The learner can: 3.1 demonstrate willingness when dealing with customers 3.2 speak clearly to customers and put them at their ease in different situations 3.3 recognise customer feelings and establish a rapport with them 3.4 show respect to customers 3.5 show reliability to customers

Unit 127 The customer service experience

Supporting information

Evidence requirements

For 1.1 the candidate must describe four different customer service situations. These could be on the telephone or face-to-face. It could also involve internal or external customers. The candidate could use their own positive or negative experiences as a customer when describing these customer service situations.

For 1.2 the candidate must describe the steps of the customer service process explaining each stage followed from:

- Identifying the customer's need – what they require, by when, gathering information through questioning
- Searching for information or product/service specifications – researching choices or options, looking for solutions
- Giving the customer options – offering choices to meet the desired outcome, dealing with requests or queries
- Confirming the customer's decision – selecting a product or service or a solution to the request or query
- Ensuring the customer is satisfied – meeting the desired outcome, offering alternatives or follow ups when customer satisfaction is not achieved

For 1.3 the candidate needs to describe how the customer feels at each of the above five stages of the customer service process. This could include being confused at the beginning until they have received further explanations on the product or service to being happy with the final product or service completed on time.

For 2.1 the candidate must explain customers expect a certain level of service and by delivering a good level of customer service, they can meet the customer's expectations and satisfy the customer's needs. This helps to retain the customer's business, maintains a good organisational reputation and sets them apart from their competitors.

For 2.2 the candidate must describe three elements of service delivery which contribute to the customer being satisfied. This could include their query being answered effectively, a prompt service being received, problems resolved swiftly and positively, service is easy to use, the staff are knowledgeable and helpful. The candidate could use their own positive experiences as a customer.

For 2.3 the candidate must describe three negative areas of customer service which contribute to customers not being satisfied. This could include long delays, staff being unavailable, unhelpful or lacking knowledge, incorrect product or price information, additional costs added on, confusing jargon, products or services advertised are not available, or misleading advertisements. The candidate could use their own negative experiences as a customer.

For 3.1 the candidate must show how they dealt with three customers enthusiastically and helpfully. This could be face to face or on the telephone, providing a service for internal or external customers.

For 3.2 the candidate must speak clearly, politely and professionally to the three customers dealt with in 3.1 showing that they have used appropriate language ('How can I help you?'), adopted a professional and helpful tone and positive body language (e.g. smiling and retaining eye contact). They should not use jargon and must demonstrate dealing with customers with different requests in various situations.

For 3.3 the candidate must recognise when customers are happy, upset, confused and angry and demonstrate how they have developed a rapport with customers by showing interest in the customer, using their name as appropriate, etc. They should consider how they empathise, thank the customer and apologise to them when things go wrong.

For 3.4 the candidate must demonstrate how they have showed respect to the three customers identified in 3.2 by using the customers' names professionally, listening and/or empathising with their requests, treating customers the same, paying attention to their needs, using a polite tone and appropriate language, asking questions to gain confirmation or clarification, being non-confrontational and thanking the customer.

For 3.5 the candidate must show how they have been reliable and helpful to the three customers identified in 3.4 by demonstrating that they have met the customer's needs, delivered the service reliably, met the deadlines or timescales agreed and provided the customer with the information, product or service when agreed.

Outcome	Possible forms of evidence
3.1, 3.2, 3.3, 3.4, 3.5	Candidates could use evidence gathered in Units 105 and 110; full explanations of the criteria is explained below: For 2.2 Candidates could use evidence gathered in Unit 105 (Working in customer service) assessment criteria 2.2. For 2.3 Candidates could use evidence gathered in Unit 110 (Work in a customer-friendly way) assessment criteria 3.1. For 3.1 Candidates could use evidence gathered in Unit 110 (Work in a customer-friendly way) assessment criteria 1.5. 3.2 Candidates could use evidence gathered in Unit 110 (Work in a customer-friendly way) assessment criteria 1.2. 3.3 Candidates could use evidence gathered in Unit 110 (Work in a customer-friendly way) assessment criteria 2.1 and 2.2. Observation of performance demonstrating how the candidate demonstrates a positive attitude when dealing with customers.

Work products such as emails, messages they have written and responded to and other written communication carried out for the customer by the candidate. Confidential and/or product evidence can be seen by the assessor; their locations referenced and remain in the workplace.

A diary of tasks performed accurately over time.

Witness testimony from the teacher or a reliable person in the workplace confirming candidate actions and/or confirmation of verbal or face-to-face communication.

1.1, 1.2,
1.3, 2.1,
2.2, 2.3

Written statement from the candidate describing performance that has taken place and confirmed by a reliable person in the workplace or a teacher.

Centre Manual - Supporting Customer Excellence contains detailed information about the processes which must be followed and requirements which must be met for a centre to achieve 'approved centre' status, or to offer a particular qualification, as well as updates and good practice exemplars for City & Guilds assessment and policy issues. Specifically, the document includes sections on:

- The centre and qualification approval process
- Assessment, internal quality assurance and examination roles at the centre
- Registration and certification of candidates
- Non-compliance
- Complaints and appeals
- Equal opportunities
- Data protection
- Management systems
- Maintaining records
- Assessment
- Internal quality assurance
- External quality assurance.

Our Quality Assurance Requirements encompasses all of the relevant requirements of key regulatory documents such as:

- SQA Awarding Body Criteria (2007)
- NVQ Code of Practice (2006)

and sets out the criteria that centres should adhere to pre and post centre and qualification approval.

Access to Assessment & Qualifications provides full details of the arrangements that may be made to facilitate access to assessments and qualifications for candidates who are eligible for adjustments in assessment.

The centre homepage section of the City & Guilds website also contains useful information such on such things as:

- Walled Garden: how to register and certificate candidates on line
- Events: dates and information on the latest Centre events
- Online assessment: how to register for e-assessments.
