1 Introduction

This qualification is for people involved in the delivery of learning to learners in the workplace. The Level 4 Certificate in Managing Learning has been developed using units from the Learning and Development qualifications. The qualification is designed for use across the UK.

The units and qualification will provide people who carry out learning and development roles in their organisation with the opportunity to develop and improve their practice as well as achieving a professional qualification for the role. They are available to anyone working in: accredited learning; non accredited learning (where people may train and assess skills but do not assess for a qualification); the NQF and the QCF.

Achievers of these units will learn how to:

- identify organisation learning needs
- develop learning and development programmes
- manage learning and development in groups
- evaluate and improve learning and development provision.

This handbook tells you what you need to do to deliver the 6318 -09 Level 4 qualification.

Area	Description
Who is the qualification for?	For learners who work as trainers/tutors/assessors in a range of sectors
What does the qualification cover?	The Level 4 Certificate in Managing Learning allows learners to learn, develop and practise the skills required for employment and/or career progression as a trainer/tutor/assessor of individual learners in many sectors.
Is the qualification part of a framework or initiative?	All of the units in the Level 4 Certificate in Managing Learning also appear in the Level 4 Diploma in Learning and Development.
Who did we develop the qualification with?	The units that form much of this qualification were developed by The Learning and Skills Improvement Service - LSIS (formerly LLUK), the SSC for learning and development
What opportunities for progression are there?	These qualifications allow learners to progress into employment or to the following City & Guilds qualifications: Level 4 Award and Diploma in Learning and Development.

Structure

This qualification is closely related to other qualifications in the Learning and Development suite. All four of the units in this qualification are optional units in the Level 3 Certificate in Learning and Development and two of them (008 and 009) are optional units in the Level 3 Award in Facilitating Learning and Development.

To achieve the Level 4 Certificate in Managing Learning (6318-09), learners must achieve 24 credits in total from (003, 005, 010 and 013).

2 Centre requirements

Approval

If your Centre is approved to offer the 7318 qualifications you will have automatic approval to run all the 6318 qualifications – including the Certificate in Managing Learning. You do not have to take any action.

Existing centres who are not approved to run 7318 and wish to offer this qualification must use the standard Qualification Approval Process.

To offer these qualifications, new centres will need to gain both centre and qualification approval. Please refer to the Centre Manual - Supporting Customer Excellence for further information. Centre staff should familiarise themselves with the structure, content and assessment requirements of the qualifications before designing any course programmes.

Resource requirements

Physical resources

Centres will need appropriate training facilities and where assessing applied units - opportunities to assess learners in an appropriate work environment.

Centre staffing – LSIS (formerly LLUK) assessment guidance

City & Guilds expects that these qualifications will be delivered by highly skilled practitioners of learning delivery, assessment and quality assurance.

Practitioners should be able to fulfil all of the following functions to ensure a quality learning experience for the learner:

- identify training and development needs of the learner
- plan for, design and develop learning and development opportunities
- provide high quality learning opportunities
- facilitate and support learner progress and achievements
- assess learner performance
- review the effectiveness of learning opportunities
- contribute to the quality assurance process.

In addition, all those who assess these qualifications must have:

- up-to-date working knowledge and experience of best practice in Learning and Development
- be occupationally competent in the units that they are assessing
- show current evidence of continuing professional development and practice in assessment and learning and development.

plus hold one of the following qualifications or their recognised equivalent:

- Level 3 Award in Assessing Competence in the Work Environment or
- Level 3 Certificate in Assessing Vocational Achievement, or
- A1 Assess learner performance using a range of methods, or
- D32 Assess learner performance and D33 Assess learner using differing sources of evidence.

All those who provide internal quality assurance for these qualifications must have:

- up-to-date working knowledge and experience of best practice in Learning and Development
- be occupationally competent in the units that they are quality assuring
- show current evidence of continuing professional development and practice in learning and development, assessment and quality assurance.

plus hold one of the following qualifications or their recognised equivalent:

- Level 3 Award in Assessing Competence in the Work Environment or
- Level 3 Certificate in Assessing Vocational Achievement, or
- A1 Assess learner performance using a range of methods, or
- D32 Assess learner performance and D33 Assess learner using differing sources of evidence.

plus hold or be working towards one of the following internal quality assurance qualifications or their recognised equivalent:

- Level 4 Award in the Internal Quality Assurance of Assessment Processes and Practice or
- Level 4 Certificate in Leading the Internal Quality Assurance of Assessment Processes and Practice, or
- V1 Conduct internal quality assurance of the assessment process, or
- D34 Internally verify the assessment process.

Centre staff may undertake more than one role, eg tutor and assessor or internal quality assurer, but cannot internally quality assure their own assessments. In addition, practitioners delivering these qualifications must meet the statutory and contractual arrangements of the nation in which they work.

It is not permitted for unqualified assessors to assess these qualifications.

Continuing professional development (CPD)

Centres must support staff to ensure that they have current knowledge, skills and expertise in assessment and internal quality assurance practice if they carry out these roles. In addition it is the centre's responsibility to ensure that learning delivery, coaching, mentoring, training, assessment and internal quality assurance in the centre is in line with best practice and that it takes account of any national or legislative developments.

Quality assurance

A comprehensive approach to quality and quality assurance

It is in everyone's interest for the delivery of training, assessment and quality assurance of qualifications in the UK to be of the highest quality.

At City & Guilds we are committed to supporting centres to improve levels of quality. In line with this we view the content of these qualifications – and their delivery - as being fundamental to ensuring the quality of all vocational learning and qualifications.

Quality is the 'degree of excellence of something'.

Quality assurance is 'a system of maintaining and improving standards'.

High quality learning, assessment and quality assurance are required to get the most out of all qualifications. There are tangible benefits for all from this approach as it means:

- improved learner experience
- raised learner achievement rates
- increased learner retention rates
- more cost effective programmes
- regulatory requirements are met
- support for other planning and monitoring processes such as self-assessment.

To achieve this - quality and quality assurance must be included from the planning stage of programmes of learning – as they are integral to the programmes themselves. A useful way of looking at this is:

'Quality and quality assurance must be built into centre delivery from the start – it is much more difficult to audit poor quality out than build good quality in...'

This needs to be firmly in mind when planning the delivery of these qualifications. Quality and quality assurance measures need to be built into all processes in the learner journey – these include the:

- recruitment process
- induction process
- initial assessment
- learning plans
- teaching
- facilitating learning
- reviews of progress
- assessment processes
- achievement
- progression planning.

Quality matters everywhere in the 'Learner Journey'.

If you are an existing centre for the 6317, 7317 and 7318 Learning and Development qualifications then you will already have relevant experience and resources such as:

- skilled learning, assessment and quality assurance practitioners
- existing internal quality assurance processes.

Internal quality assurance systems

All centres must have effective quality assurance systems to ensure optimum delivery and assessment of qualifications.

Quality assurance includes initial centre approval, qualification approval and the centre's own internal procedures for monitoring quality. Centres are responsible for internal quality assurance while City & Guilds is responsible for external quality assurance.

For these qualifications centres must develop a sampling strategy and plan which must be implemented by all those undertaking the internal quality assurance role. Centres with experience of offering N/SVQs will find that their internal verification process can be adapted to establish an internal quality assurance (IQA) system for these qualifications.

This IQA system needs to contain:

- sample planning based on the principles of 'CAMERA', ie plans must include sampling of all types of:
 - Candidates
 - Assessors
 - Methods of assessment
 - Evidence or Elements
 - Records
 - Assessment sites
- effective communication
- interim sampling
- summative sampling
- monitoring of assessor practice (including observation)
- standardisation activities
- sound administration
- records of the above.

Whoever is responsible for internal quality assurance in a centre will need to ensure that all factors related to quality assurance are covered in the centre. These include ensuring that:

- quality assurance systems are 'fit for purpose' and do actually monitor the quality of the learner journey
- quality assurance sampling is planned for and carried out throughout the learner journey and not just at the end
- learning and training that is delivered models 'best practice' and meets all requirements – and that this is monitored

- all practice (including training, assessment and IQA) is in line with the current NOS for Learning and Development
- tutors and assessors are regularly observed carrying out their roles
- assessors are supported, get feedback on their practice and take part in standardisation activities
- record keeping is maintained as required
- all members of the team maintain their CPD year on year
- communication with City & Guilds is effective.

External quality assurance

External quality assurance for the qualifications will be provided by City & Guilds. This includes:

- approval of centres
- monitoring of learning delivery
- monitoring of assessment practice
- monitoring of internal quality assurance practices.

Learner entry requirements

Learners should not be entered for a qualification of the same type, content and level as that of a qualification they already hold.

City & Guilds has not set entry requirements for these qualifications. However, centres must ensure that learners have the potential and opportunity to complete and achieve them.

In some of these qualifications, learners must have the opportunity to demonstrate their competence in a real environment with genuine learners in order to be able to meet all the requirements.

Anyone engaged in assessing and quality assuring other units or qualifications must meet the specific requirements of the assessment strategy related to those units and qualifications.

Age restrictions

Learners undertaking the qualification must be aged 19 and over.

Opportunities for progression

These units have been designed to be achieved individually or together as a qualification.

All of the units that make up the Certificate in Managing Learning also appear in the Level 4 Diploma in Learning and Development. So there is a progression route through to the Level 4 Diploma in Managing Learning but it is not mandatory that the units are done in any order.

Centres must carry out in-depth initial assessment and guide learners to undertake the most appropriate units or qualification for their particular role and situation at that time.

3 Delivering the qualification

Initial assessment and induction

Centres will need to make an initial assessment of each learner prior to the start of their programme to ensure they are entered for an appropriate type and level of qualification and also to ensure that they undertake the most appropriate unit.

The initial assessment process should identify:

- any specific learning needs the learner has, and the support and guidance they may require when working towards their qualifications. This is sometimes referred to as a diagnostic test or skill scan
- any units the learner has already completed, or credit they have accumulated which is relevant to the qualifications they are about to begin
- any units or parts of units that may cause difficulties for the learner eg if their job role or level of experience is not sufficiently wide-ranging for them to meet the requirements.

City & Guilds recommends that centres provide an induction programme to ensure that learners fully understand the requirements of the qualification(s) they will work towards, their responsibilities as a learner, and the responsibilities of the centre.

It may be helpful to record the information on a learning contract.

Further guidance about initial assessment and induction as well as a learning contract that centres may use can be found on the City & Guilds website.

Learning delivery strategies

City & Guilds does not prescribe how centres deliver the learning on these qualifications providing that all requirements are met.

Centre staff should familiarise themselves with the structure, content and assessment requirements of the qualifications before designing any learning programme. In addition there is guidance information in most units that centre staff would find very useful when designing learning programmes for these qualifications.

Learning and assessment approaches

To assist centres the guidance included for assessment and evidence is based on activity based learning and assessment. It is recommended that the delivery and assessment of these qualifications should be approached holistically whenever possible.

In most centres learning will be delivered through a combination of:

- applied practice
- coaching
- experience
- training
- support and advice.

The provision of learning opportunities remains the responsibility of the centre (not the learner). Centres must ensure they have the right staff teams to deliver learning by the methods they decide, to meet learner's needs. Formative assessment of each learner's progress will monitor their development and indicate when summative assessment is appropriate.

When assessing the applied or competence based units such as 'Identify individual learning and development needs' the mandatory observation of practice will additionally provide opportunities to capture some knowledge as it is demonstrated through performance.

The recommended process for assessment involves:

- planning and learner preparation
- assessment
- analysis
- decision taking
- recording
- feedback to the learner throughout the process
- engaging with the quality assurance process throughout.

This approach reduces the burden on the assessor and the learner as it removes the need for the learner to 'gather' separate evidence for assessment – the evidence falls naturally from the activities being undertaken.

Storage of evidence and 'portfolios'

Evidence of learning and evidence of competence

'Portfolios' come in many forms – some are electronic, some paper based, others a combination of both. It is important to remember that the 'Portfolio of evidence' should be precisely that and contain only the records of assessment and evidence that confirm achievement. It should not contain training materials, assignments for developing the learner and other information and guidance that formed part of the 'learner journey'.

However, many learners want to maintain a personal record of their learning. They can maintain a 'Learning File' containing all the information and materials that chart their development. This 'Learning File' will not, however, form part of the assessment or quality assurance processes – but the learner would have a valuable personal record of their journey and progress.

More about 'Portfolios of evidence'

Ofqual has long maintained that evidence where it is in paper or material form, can be left in its natural location, for example the workshop, office or building site. This is a sensible approach as much 'product' evidence cannot for a variety of reasons go into a 'portfolio' (eg a brick wall which has been built, sensitive records from a care home etc). In the same way, it is not necessary to print off and present paper copies of policies and procedures if those can be left in their usual location and checked by assessors, Internal Quality Assurer (IQA) and External Quality Assurer (EQA) 'in situ'.

However, if this approach is adopted then the assessment record must state:

- who and what was assessed by whom
- the date, and location of assessment
- the assessment methods used
- the assessment decision
- the units, learning outcomes and assessment criteria achieved
- the location of the supporting evidence.

One 'portfolio' may actually comprise evidence in a number of locations, linked by the audit trail provided through the assessment and quality assurance records. There are however practical implications to consider:

- if evidence is left in its usual location then the internal and external quality assurers will both have to sample it in its usual location. This will require QA staff to plan for and carry out visits to other premises as part of their sampling
- the QA audit trail still has to be clear, trackable through the evidence and the planned sampling must be carried out as required by the qualification
- it is crucial that the evidence is kept safely in its usual location and is readily available for sampling whenever the external quality assurance sampling takes place. It is the responsibility of the centre to organise this – it is not the responsibility of the External Quality Assurer to have to locate evidence.

Recording documents

Learners and centres may decide to use a paper-based or electronic method of recording evidence.

City & Guilds endorses several ePortfolio systems, including our own, Learning Assistant, an easy-to-use and secure online tool to support and evidence learners' progress towards achieving qualifications. Further details are available at: www.cityandguilds.com/eportfolios.

City & Guilds has developed a set of recording forms including examples of completed forms, for new and existing centres to use as appropriate. Amendable (MS Word) versions of the forms are available on the City & Guilds website.

Although new centres are expected to use these forms, centres may devise or customise alternative forms, which must be approved for use by the external quality assurer, before they are used by learners and assessors at the centre.

4 Assessment

Summary of assessment methods

Different units in these qualifications will include different assessment requirements and methods – all of which will be familiar to existing assessors and quality assurance staff.

For units where practical activities (competence) are being assessed methods will include:

- observation of performance in the work environment by an assessor or witness
- examining products of the learner's own work
- questioning the learner
- discussions with the learner
- use of others (witness testimony)
- looking at learner statements
- recognition of prior learning.

Evidence for practical activities should be gathered from naturally occurring evidence collected in the work-related environment. Evidence for any knowledge-only units, such as assignments, case studies, project etc, must follow City & Guilds guidelines and be agreed in advance with the centre's External Quality Assurer.

General assessment guidance

There must be valid, authentic and sufficient evidence for all the assessment criteria. However, there is no requirement for each unit, learning outcome or assessment criteria to be assessed separately. It is recommended that holistic assessment is used whenever appropriate.

Wherever possible, one activity should be used as evidence for learning outcomes and assessment criteria for other units. See the content of individual units for further detail.

Recording assessment activities

Recording of assessment decisions and evidence may be undertaken in a range of formats. However regardless of the form of recording used, the guiding principle must be that all information relating to assessment must comply with legal requirements and best practice in the sector. This will include ensuring confidentiality of information which can, however, still be tracked for internal and external quality assurance purposes.

Recognition of prior learning (RPL)

Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) is a process of using an individual's previous achievements to demonstrate competence within QCF. This is not a new process but expands on previously used processes such as the Accreditation of Prior Learning (APL), the recognition of experiential learning and the validation of informal learning by incorporating all types of prior learning and training.

The regulatory arrangements for the Qualifications and Credit Framework define RPL as a method of assessment that considers whether a learner can demonstrate that they can meet the assessment requirements for a unit through knowledge, understanding or skills they already possess and do not need to develop through a course of learning. In the context of the QCF, the definition of RPL is quite specific and relates to assessment leading to the award of credit.

Assessment for RPL is conducted against the learning outcomes and assessment criteria of a unit and is subject to exactly the same quality assurance requirements as any other kind of assessment within the QCF.

The RPL process is relevant where an individual has previously learnt something but may never have received formal recognition for this learning through a qualification or other form of certification. Within the QCF an individual is able to 'claim' that he or she knows or can do something already and does not need to learn it again.

If he/she can prove this claim (through assessment of relevant evidence), then credit can be awarded for that achievement in the same way as any other credits.

RPL refers to an opportunity for learners to present competence or knowledge evidence which comes from a period prior to their registration for a particular qualification. The evidence presented - eg certificates, witness testimonies etc. - will need to provide sufficient detail to allow the assessor to apply the RPL assessment process.

Assessors assess the relevant learning outcomes and assessment criteria ensuring that all are covered, using relevant methods for RPL such as: witness testimony, reflective accounts, professional discussion, etc.

In considering the appropriateness of any single piece of evidence the following should be considered:

- Content – the degree to which the content of any previous learning meets the requirements of the National Occupational Standards against which it is being presented as evidence.
- Comprehensiveness of Assessment – ensure that all the learning derived from the content has been assessed. If only a proportion has been assessed, then the learning for the ‘non-tested’ areas cannot be assumed.
- Level – the degree to which the level of learning offered and tested relates to that required by the level of the qualification/units being claimed.
- Learning outcomes and Assessment criteria – the degree to which the previous learning covered both. Some learning will only have offered and tested the latter, in which case the Recognition of Prior Learning can only cover the knowledge aspect. Performance will require further assessment. Although unlikely, the reverse (performance tested but not knowledge) could be true in which case knowledge and understanding would need further assessment.
- Model of learning – difficulties can arise in mapping learning gained from non-competence based learning programmes into competence based models.
- Relevance of Context – the degree to which the context of the learning gained and assessed relates to the current context of the learner’s role. If the context was different, assessors will need to satisfy themselves of the learners’ ability to transfer the learning gained into the current context.
