About City & Guilds

As the UK's leading vocational education organisation, City & Guilds is leading the talent revolution by inspiring people to unlock their potential and develop their skills. We offer over 500 qualifications across 28 industries through 8500 centres worldwide and award around two million certificates every year. City & Guilds is recognised and respected by employers across the world as a sign of quality and exceptional training.

City & Guilds Group

The City & Guilds Group operates from three major hubs: London (servicing Europe, the Caribbean and Americas), Johannesburg (servicing Africa), and Singapore (servicing Asia, Australia and New Zealand). The Group also includes the Institute of Leadership & Management (management and leadership qualifications), City & Guilds Land Based Services (land-based qualifications), the Centre for Skills Development (CSD works to improve the policy and practice of vocational education and training worldwide) and Learning Assistant (an online e-portfolio).

Area	The Level 2 Travel and Tourism suite of qualifications
Who are the qualifications for?	The suite of qualifications has been designed to meet the needs of candidates who work or want to work in holiday centres, tour operator companies, travel agencies, tourist information offices, tourist attractions, cruise line companies or conference events organisations.
What do the qualifications cover?	The units which form the qualification allow candidates to learn, develop and practise the skills required for employment and/or career progression in the travel and tourism sector.
Are the qualifications part of a framework or initiative?	The 4976 suite of qualifications does not form part of a framework or initiative. The apprenticeship offer for travel and tourism will continue to use the technical certificate 4876-25.
Why have the qualifications been developed?	The suite of qualifications provides valuable accreditation of skills and/or knowledge for candidates, without requiring or proving occupational competence. The structure of the Level 2 Award, Certificate, Extended Certificate and Diploma in Travel and Tourism has been designed to maximise the choices of units and length of qualifications for both candidates and employees. The 4976 suite of qualifications replaces the 4876 suite of qualifications with the exception of the technical certificate.

1.3 Opportunities for progression

On completion of these qualifications candidates may progress into employment or to the following City & Guilds qualifications:

- Level 3 Award/Certificate/Extended Certificate/Diploma/Extended Diploma in Travel and Tourism
- Level 2 NVQ Diploma in Travel Services
- Level 2 NVQ Certificate in Tourism Services.
- Level 2 NVQ Diploma in Travel Services Apprenticeship

1.4 Qualification support materials

City & Guilds also provides the following publications and resources specifically for these qualifications:

Description	How to access
Promotional materials	www.cityandguilds.com
Fast track approval forms/generic fast track approval form	www.cityandguilds.com
Assessors' guide for centres	www.cityandguilds.com
Answer pack for centres	www.cityandguilds.com

2 Centre requirements

This section outlines the approval processes for Centres to offer these qualifications and any resources that Centres will need in place to offer the qualifications including qualification-specific requirements for Centre staff.

2.1 Approval

Centres already offering City & Guilds qualifications in this subject area

Centres approved to offer the Award/Certificate/Diploma in Travel and Tourism (4876) will receive automatic approval for the new Level 2 Award/ Certificate/ Extended Certificate/ Diploma in Travel and Tourism (4976).

Centres NOT already offering City & Guilds qualifications

To offer this qualification, new centres will need to gain both centre and qualification approval. Please refer to the Centre Manual - Supporting Customer Excellence for further information.

Centre staff should familiarise themselves with the structure, content and assessment requirements of the qualification before designing a course programme.

2.2 Resource requirements

Human resources

Staff delivering these qualifications must be able to demonstrate that they meet the following occupational expertise requirements. They should:

- be technically competent in the area for which they are delivering training and/or have experience of providing training. This knowledge must be at least to the same level as the training being delivered
- have recent relevant experience in the specific area they will be assessing
- be occupationally knowledgeable in the area of [eg Travel and Tourism] for which they are delivering training. This knowledge must be at least to the same level as the training being delivered
- have credible experience of providing training.

Centre staff may undertake more than one role, eg tutor and assessor or internal verifier, but must never internally verify their own assessments.

Continuing professional development (CPD)

Centres are expected to support their staff in ensuring that their knowledge remains current of the occupational area and of best practice in delivery, mentoring, training, assessment and verification, and that it takes account of any national or legislative developments.

2.3 Candidate entry requirements

Candidates should not be entered for a qualification of the same type, content and level as that of a qualification they already hold.

There are no formal entry requirements for candidates undertaking these qualifications. However, centres must ensure that candidates have the potential and opportunity to gain the qualification successfully.

Age restrictions

There are no age restrictions for this qualification.

3 Course design and delivery

3.1 Initial assessment and induction

Centres will need to make an initial assessment of each candidate prior to the start of their programme to ensure they are entered for an appropriate type and level of qualification.

The initial assessment should identify:

- any specific training needs the candidate has, and the support and guidance they may require when working towards their qualification. This is sometimes referred to as diagnostic testing.
- any units the candidate has already completed, or credit they have accumulated which is relevant to the qualification they are about to begin.

City & Guilds recommends that centres provide an induction programme to ensure the candidate fully understands the requirements of the qualification they will work towards, their responsibilities as a candidate, and the responsibilities of the centre. It may be helpful to record the information on a learning contract.

3.2 Recommended delivery strategies

Centre staff should familiarise themselves with the structure, content and assessment requirements of the qualifications before designing a course programme.

Centres may design course programmes of study in any way which:

- best meets the needs and capabilities of their candidates
- satisfies the requirements of the qualifications.

When designing and delivering the course programme, centres might wish to incorporate other teaching and learning that is not assessed as part of the qualifications. This might include the following:

- literacy, language and/or numeracy
- personal learning and thinking
- personal and social development
- employability.

Where applicable, this could involve enabling the candidate to access relevant qualifications covering these skills.

5 Units

Structure of units

The units in this qualification are written in a standard format and comprise the following:

- City & Guilds reference number
- level
- credit value
- unit accreditation number
- unit aim
- learning outcomes which are comprised of a number of assessment criteria
- guided learning hours
- endorsement by a sector or other appropriate body
- information on assessment
- notes for guidance.

Unit 201

Worldwide travel and tourism destinations

Level: 2
Credit value: 10
UAN number: J/601/5421

Unit aim

The aim is to develop the learner's knowledge and skills so they can locate important tourist destinations worldwide as well as provide information needed for travel.

Learning outcomes

There are two learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Know tourism destinations of the world
2. Understand tourism destinations to inform travellers

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 72 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an online multiple choice test. Candidates are permitted to take into the exam a published world travel atlas and a visitor/tourist attraction guide.

Unit 201 Worldwide travel and tourism destinations

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those working towards Travel Destinations at Level 2 are likely to come from a variety of backgrounds and have differing knowledge of the subject. Whereas at Level 1 it is only reasonable to expect the learner to locate information on destinations, at Level 2 we expect them to locate and also provide additional information on travel destinations worldwide. It is therefore expected that the learner will have some prior learning. The key to understanding this qualification is to be able to find information and interpret it from the various sources that are available. The learner is expected to research information and provide simple analysis of destinations worldwide and provide effective comparisons between the various destinations.

The unit should be delivered in an interactive format encouraging the learner to practice using the world travel atlas and any other manuals to source the answers as much as possible. Learners should be encouraged to examine visual references of destinations and their features. These should not only include the usual methods such as travel atlases and maps, but also videos, photographs and pictures of destinations and attractions (as used in brochures and guidebooks). For example, learners should be able to associate pictures of attractions (ie the Eiffel Tower) with cities (Paris, France).

Although, not, in any way, a definitive list, it is recognised that the range of travel destinations etc provided is very extensive. At this level, the range provided is what a learner would be expected to know were they entering the industry. Please note that it is not expected that learners will remember all the items in the range provided. However, learners should be able to locate any item within the range with the use of appropriate support materials. Assessors should note that learners will only be assessed on the items listed in the range statements.

Learning and support resources

There are a wide variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use whatever they feel most comfortable with. However in this fast-moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilized. Examples of resources, which could be used, include:

Unit 203

Customer service and selling skills for travel and tourism

Level: 2
Credit value: 9
UAN number: L/601/3105

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to provide the learner with an introduction to the selling skills required when assisting travel and tourism customers.

Many of those choosing a career in the travel and tourism industry are likely to find themselves in a sales role. This may be as a travel agent where selling a product to meet the customers' needs is a key activity. On the other hand, it may be in a role such as a historic house tour guide or airline cabin crew, where selling may not be the main focus. In either case, it is essential that employees are equipped with the basics of the sales process.

The unit takes the learner through the essential steps needed to get from an initial customer enquiry to a completed sale for a satisfied customer.

As a first step, learners look at how to establish a rapport with a customer and their personal responsibility for promoting this part of the process. From here, learners are encouraged to investigate the customer's requirements in an appropriate manner and then look for products and services to meet those individual needs.

To help them do this, learners are required to identify the range of resources which they will use to identify appropriate products and services, and to become familiar with them.

To achieve a sale, the learner needs to know the main features of the products and services suggested and to be able to explain how these will benefit the buyer.

Finally, the unit looks at perhaps the most difficult part of the sales process; how to close a sale. When taken as a whole the unit should provide the learner with an insight into selling at a junior level and provide a springboard for future learning and development.

Learning outcomes

There are seven learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Be able to establish a rapport with travel and tourism customers
2. Be able to serve travel and tourism customers
3. Be able to develop positive relationships with customers and suppliers
4. Be able to establish the wants and needs of travel and tourism customers
5. Be able to select products and services to satisfy customers' wants and needs
6. Be able to present products and services to travel and tourism customers
7. Understand how to close a travel and tourism sale

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 82 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Complete the sale

Summarise sale details, confirm with suppliers, take payment, issue receipt, complete paperwork.

Unit 203 Customer service and selling skills for travel and tourism

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those working towards Selling Skills for Travel and Tourism at level 2 may fall into one of several categories. Learners may have already completed a level 1 award and are progressing to level 2. Learners may have joined a programme of study directly at level 2 or they may already be working at a junior level within the travel and tourism industry and are undertaking an initial customer contact role. By whatever path a learner comes to be studying Selling Skills for Travel and Tourism, at level 2 it is vital that they understand the basics before progressing.

Whilst delivering and assessing the outcomes, it is important to focus on Selling Skills issues within the Travel and Tourism industry. It should be made clear to learners that good selling skills are essential to the travel and tourism industry and are one of the things that differentiate one provider from another and one employee from another. It should be made clear to learners that good selling skills are essential to the financial success of a business and that being able to demonstrate such skills may well have a direct effect on the learner's future employment prospects.

The unit should be delivered in an interactive format, engaging the learner in a full range of diverse learning opportunities. Activities such as class discussion where learners can share experiences they have had as customers is always a good point from which to start the unit. Teachers should give examples from their own experience and encourage learners to become observers of sales people whilst outside their learning environment. As learners become more aware of the basics of what customers should expect they become more critical of what they observe. This will heighten their own self-awareness and encourage them to recognise and implement good practice.

To underpin delivery and give the learner the best chance of successfully completing this unit, it is strongly recommended that, wherever possible, learners be given access to real working practice in the travel and tourism industry. However, where this is not practicable, simulated situations will need to be used instead. Where simulated situations are used, it is essential they are conducted within a realistic travel and tourism context and that they reinforce the attitude, behaviour and skills required to work within the industry successfully

Practical work experience will be of benefit for learners to demonstrate their abilities in a real life environment and build their confidence. Work placements should be encouraged in local travel agencies, tourist offices, visitor attractions, or tour operation environments where access to the public is possible. Visits to airports, visitor attractions, tourism shows and conferences should be encouraged.

Unit 204

Interpersonal skills for the travel and tourism workplace

Level: 2
Credit value: 7
UAN number: J/601/3152

Unit aim

Effective workplace skills are the key to success in most jobs and in most industries. This is especially true of the travel and tourism industry where good interpersonal and communication skills are a major part of everyone's role.

This unit is concerned with increasing the learner's knowledge in relation to effective workplace skills within the travel and tourism industry in the United Kingdom. Those choosing a career in this industry will benefit from a greater understanding of its framework to enable them to move forward both in their own career and in the levels of knowledge and service they are able to offer in the workplace.

Whether it is selling a holiday, giving directions or taking a message on the telephone, employees need to demonstrate effective communication skills in speaking, writing and listening. The services provided to customers can only be as good as the skills and knowledge that employees have developed. An excellent product knowledge is of little use if the employee does not have the necessary skills to pass the information on. Equally, good speaking and presentation skills are of limited use if the travel consultant cannot find out the information the customer requires.

By the end of the unit learners should be aware that those working in the travel and tourism industry must not only deal with each other but also with the public and that the ability to interact and communicate is vital not only to their success but also the success of the organisation they are working for.

Learning outcomes

There are four learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Be able to communicate effectively in travel and tourism workplaces
2. Be able to promote a positive self-image
3. Be able to present information effectively to others
4. Be able to work as part of a team

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 60 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 204

Interpersonal skills for the travel and tourism workplace

Outcome 1

Be able to communicate effectively in travel and tourism workplaces

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. communicate effectively with colleagues and customers using different communication methods.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify methods of communication
2. explain the importance of good communication
3. identify when to use different methods of communication
4. identify barriers to effective communication
5. describe how to overcome barriers to effective communication.

Range

Methods

Written (letters, emails, memos, itineraries, presentations, ATOL certificate, other electronic forms), verbal (speaking, listening), non-verbal (body language, sign language)

Barriers

Verbal (language, culture, dialect, clarity, jargon), written (poor spelling, grammar or structure, unclear meaning to communication, inability to use communication equipment), non-verbal (personal appearance, gender, age).

Unit 204

Interpersonal skills for the travel and tourism workplace

Outcome 2

Be able to promote a positive self-image

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. use body language to promote a positive self image.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify basic body language signals
2. describe positive body language
3. describe negative body language
4. explain how body language can be used effectively in communication.

Unit 204

Interpersonal skills for the travel and tourism workplace

Outcome 3

Be able to present information effectively to others

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. present information effectively to others.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify different methods of presenting information
2. explain the importance of presenting information effectively
3. describe factors to be considered when selecting effective mediums of communication
4. identify communication skills to present information effectively to others.

Range

Methods

Written (letters, emails, memos, itineraries, presentations, ATOL certificate, other electronic forms), verbal (speaking, listening), non-verbal (body language, sign language)

Factors

Content, audience, legal, location, resources available

Communication skills

Clarity of voice/language, active listening, presentation skills.

Unit 204

Interpersonal skills for the travel and tourism workplace

Outcome 4

Be able to work as part of a team

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. work effectively in a team.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the importance of teamwork
2. identify skills required for good teamwork
3. explain how skills are used to promote effective team working.

Range

Skills

Practical, time-keeping, motivation, people related, problem-solving, organisation, and communication.

Unit 204 Interpersonal skills for the travel and tourism workplace

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those working towards the Workplace Communications Skills at level 2 may fall into one of several brackets. Learners may have already completed the level 1 workplace communications skills unit and are progressing to level 2 unit. Learners may have joined a programme of study directly at level 2 or they may already be working at a junior level within the travel and tourism industry and are undertaking basic workplace skills. By whatever path a learner comes to be studying workplace communications skills at level 2 it is vital that they understand the basics before progressing. By taking this approach it will ensure that the learner has a broader base of knowledge and understanding of customer relations within the travel and tourism industry.

It should be noted that completion of this unit can provide sufficient portfolio evidence in relation to the Level 2 key skills unit in communications.

Whilst delivering and assessing the outcomes, it is important that learners understand that communication between people is a two way process, ie both parties use communication to impart information and to receive information.

Learners need to be aware that verbal communication is more than just speaking and listening. It is about speaking in a way that will help the receiver understand what is being said by using language and style appropriate to the needs of the listener and by reinforcing the verbal message with positive body language. Different listeners will have different needs and learners need to appreciate that the language and style they use will have to be adapted to suit each listener's needs. Equally, when listening learners need to show the speaker that they are interested in what is being said and confirm our understanding through the use of appropriate body language and by responses such as acknowledging and reflecting back main points and ideas or by asking questions to clarify points or move ideas forward.

Similarly, learners need to be aware that written communication is not just about reading and writing. In business, we all read for a purpose and learners need to appreciate that the purpose of reading at work is to extract those pieces of information that are important in a work context. Learners need to understand that before starting to read a particular document, they need to identify and understand the specific purpose of reading the document (eg a holiday brochure, foreign office advisory, monthly target figures etc) so that they can identify, extract and summarise the relevant information.

At this level, learners should also be able to recognise the purpose of any discussion (eg to exchange information, express ideas or opinions, or to present an argument) and the intentions of the different speakers in the group (through the speakers' manner, choice of vocabulary, tone of voice and body language), so that they can respond.

Learners should be encouraged to make a clear and relevant contribution to discussions and adapt what they say to suit different situation (eg by varying how much they say, their manner and tone of voice) and use varied vocabulary and expressions to suit the purpose of the discussion.

When carrying out presentations learners should be encouraged to speak clearly in a way suited to the subject of the talk and the situation (eg room size, background noise level) in which the talk is delivered. They should be able to adapt the language, pitch and pace of the talk to suit the situation, the status of their audience and the audience's familiarity with the subject. Within the presentation learners should be able to structure their talk to help listeners follow what they are saying by presenting information and ideas in a clear, logical sequence.

Learners should be encouraged to use relevant images (eg pictures, charts, diagrams, sketches, models) to illustrate main points and help the listeners understand what is being said. It is not enough that an image illustrates a point; it must also aid the listeners understanding of written text or the spoken word (eg a graph or bar chart showing sales figures over a period of time used to accompany the details of the sales figures given by the speaker will allow the audience to get a much clearer picture of year on year sales and sales trends). It is important that learners understand that images are only of value if they help the listener/reader gain a better understanding of the ideas contained in the written or spoken text.

When looking to obtain relevant information learners should explore a variety of different sources (eg reference books, brochures, textbooks, manuals, magazines, newspapers). Learners should be able to identify the main points from texts and the lines of reasoning in support of those points.

When producing written documents, all documents should be fit for purpose and presented in a suitable form and style. For key skills purposes learners should produce at least one document of not less than 500 words about a straightforward subject. Documents should be structured in a logical sequence using paragraphs and features such as headings, sub-heading or bullet points where appropriate. At least one document should contain an image to help readers gain a better understanding of the points in the text. Learners should ensure that the text uses correct punctuation and that words are correctly spelt. The benefits and limitations of using automatic spell checkers for IT based work should be demonstrated and discussed with all candidates.

There is a wide variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. However in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Examples of resources, which could be used, include:

Unit 205 UK travel and tourism destinations

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those working towards UK tourism locations at level two are likely to have a poor knowledge of the tourist destinations of the United Kingdom, a subject often cited by industry representatives as a weakness in newly qualified travel and tourism students. This is a practical unit that will give learners an opportunity to learn about the UK and key destinations for both domestic and inbound tourists.

In choosing which destinations to be studied learners should be reminded that the UK covers the whole of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. As part of the unit is to get learners more familiar with other parts of the UK, they should be discouraged from simply investigating destinations that are nearby or that they have visited.

Given the large number of destinations in the UK used by tourists, this unit should be viewed as an introduction to the UK, helping to improve their knowledge of destinations, what facilities they have to attract tourists, how to obtain information about them and how to plan an itinerary for specified groups of people.

Visits or residentials are an excellent way of introducing learners to areas of the UK that are outside their normal experience. The use of quizzes, games, atlases and road maps and the internet will help learners to locate and understand the appeal of destinations.

Learning and support resources

There are a wide variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to develop learners' knowledge of the workings of the travel industry in the United Kingdom. Those choosing a career in this industry will benefit from a greater understanding of its framework to enable them to move forward both in their own career and in the levels of knowledge and service they are able to offer to customers.

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand the history and development of the UK travel industry
2. Know the components of the UK travel industry
3. Understand the chain of distribution within the travel industry

Price of holidays and associated products, marketing/selling of products, distribution network

Consequences

Price of products, marketing/selling of products, distribution network

Methods

Direct to supplier, via agent.

Unit 206 The structure of the UK travel industry

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those studying this unit may fall into one of several brackets. Learners may have already completed previous learning on the travel and tourism industry. Learners may have joined a programme of study directly at level 2 or they may already be working at a junior level within the travel and tourism industry. By whatever path a learner comes to be studying the structure of the UK Travel Industry at level 2 it is vital that they understand the basics before progressing.

When approaching the first learning outcome teachers should first explain why learners are being asked to look back at the history of the industry before moving forward to the present. One approach to this outcome could be for learners to produce a chronology which could be undertaken in groups. The time line exercise should be fun and gives opportunities for learners to express themselves both verbally and visually.

In outcome two learners should be taught the wide range of components that make up the travel industry, this should include: accommodation providers, retail travel companies, business travel companies, tour operations, transport providers, Insurance companies, car hire companies, foreign exchange services and providers and passport and visa services available to customers. Learners should be given the opportunity to investigate a range of local and national transport and accommodation suppliers. Visits to local coach companies, hotels, tour operators, travel agents etc will prove useful. Asking learners to compare local with national provision is one way of demonstrating the size of the UK travel industry. Where practical a visit to the World Travel Market, held annually in London, is also an excellent way of demonstrating the size of the industry. It is essential that teachers keep up to date with industry trends and developments that may impact on the currency of topics. It is suggested that current copies of trade newspapers and journals are available to inform teaching and learning materials and activities. There are also websites available that are a good source of up to date information. It is important that learners are made aware that there is more to the retail travel industry than what they see on the high street. Teachers can give examples from their own experience of being asked to travel on behalf of their employer as compared to booking a personal holiday whether through an agency or through other means.

In the last learning outcome learners should be given a clear definition of the terms vertical and horizontal integration before moving on to look at companies that are integrated. When approaching this part of the unit teachers should ensure that the information they are giving learners is current as the UK travel industry moves fast and often. To cover the topic of integration learners could provide a flow chart of one such organisation and then perhaps present this information verbally. This would provide assessment opportunities and highlight further discussion points.

The unit should be delivered in an interactive format engaging the learner in a full range of diverse learning opportunities. Activities such class discussion where learners can share experiences they have had whilst on holiday is always a good starting point from which to start the unit. Teachers should give examples from their own experience as both a traveller and as a customer of the various principals. They should encourage learners to become observers of tour operators, travel agents and their suppliers whilst outside the formal learning forum and be prepared to discuss these experiences with each other.

Guest speakers, from the travel and tourism industry, are also recommended as a way of reinforcing learning and placing it firmly within an industrial setting.

To underpin delivery and give the learner the best chance of successfully completing this unit, it is strongly recommended that, wherever possible, learners be given access to real working practice in the travel and tourism industry.

Learning and support resources

There is a wide variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. However in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Examples of resources, which could be used, include:

Unit 207

Retail travel services

Level: 2
Credit value: 7
UAN number: R/601/3154

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to enable the learners to provide information on various types of package holidays and package cruise holidays, including calculating a costing and completing a ATOL certificate, and to give information on suitable additional products. This will prepare learners to feel comfortable with selling a package holiday or cruise.

Learning outcomes

There are five learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand UK package holidays to destinations within the UK and overseas
2. Understand specialised package holidays
3. Understand cruise holidays
4. Be able to cost package and cruise holidays
5. Be able to provide information on additional products

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 60 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 207

Retail travel services

Outcome 1

Understand UK package holidays to destinations within the UK and overseas

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the major components of a package holiday
2. identify types of package holidays
3. identify tour operators who provide the different types of package holidays
4. identify information contained in a package holiday brochure.

Range

Major components

Transportation, accommodation, transfers, any other significant element

Types

Long haul, short haul (Europe, Worldwide), domestic (to include short breaks, weekend breaks, excluding or including transport of any means)

Tour operators

Mass-market, specialist

Information

General layout of brochures, descriptions of hotels and resorts, general information given at the front and back of the brochure, additional information given eg climate charts, recommendations, price panel information including selecting the basic cost of a holiday (ie for one/two adults with no supplements).

Unit 207

Retail travel services

Outcome 2

Understand specialised package holidays

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify tour operators providing specialised package holidays
2. explain additional services available on skiing, boating, camping and motoring holidays
3. explain the importance of obtaining relevant information on additional services required by customers prior to booking specialised package holidays
4. identify what additional information should be given to the customer.

Range

Specialised

Ski, boating, camping, motor

Additional services

Clothing hire, special insurance, itinerary planning, welcome packs, children's services, electrical items, ski packs, lift passes, ski school

Motoring

Car, campervan, caravan

Information

Skiing (ski/snowboard lessons, lift passes, ski carriage, level of expertise)

Boating (party size/breakdown, car parking, damage waiver, level of expertise)

Camping (accommodation type, self-drive, damage deposits)

Motoring (ferry route/timings, car details, driver details, supplements)

Additional information

Documentation, insurance, equipment, legal, driving regulations, customs and practices, transfer times.

Unit 207

Retail travel services

Outcome 3

Understand cruise holidays

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify major cruise areas throughout the world
2. describe types of accommodation offered on board cruise ships
3. describe types of facilities available on board cruise ships
4. identify activities available on board cruise ships
5. identify key features of different cruise products
6. explain the importance of matching cruise products to differing customers.

Range

Cruise areas

Scandinavia, Baltic, Black Sea, Mediterranean, Red Sea, Caribbean

Accommodation

Inside/outside cabins, cabins with upper and lower berths, superior cabins, suites

Facilities

Theatres, cinema, restaurants, casinos, gyms and other sports, shops, hair, beauty and spa, bars, pools, children play areas, library, medical

Key features

Age group, formality, child friendly, educational, ports of call, ship facilities, duration.

Unit 207

Retail travel services

Outcome 4

Be able to cost package and cruise holidays

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. calculate the cost of package and cruise holidays
2. issue an ATOL certificate.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify elements of package and cruise holiday costings
2. explain the reasons for booking conditions for package and cruise holidays
3. identify the main terms of booking conditions
4. explain the importance of issuing an ATOL certificate
5. identify information included on an ATOL certificate.

Range

Elements

Room supplements, flight supplements, seasonal supplements, under occupancy supplements and any other supplements mentioned in brochure

Information

As per the ATOL certificate, full details of the holiday plus name, initial and title for each passenger.

Unit 207

Retail travel services

Outcome 5

Be able to provide information on additional products

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. calculate of the cost of additional products for package and cruise holidays
2. provide information to customers relating to additional products.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify additional products which may be sold to complement package and cruise holidays
2. identify advantages and disadvantages to the customer of booking overnight accommodation, local to the departure point, prior to a holiday
3. identify the advantages and disadvantages to the customer of booking car hire at time of booking
4. define terminology related to the cost of car hire
5. explain why it is important for customers to have travel insurance.

Range

Additional products

Train tickets to airport, coach/bus to airport, UK hotel, UK car hire, airport parking, overseas car hire, overseas excursions, pre and post cruise stays

Terminology

Unlimited mileage, time and mileage, drop off charge, one way rental, all inclusive, CDW, PAI, SLI.

Unit 207 Retail travel services

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

Learners working towards Retail Travel should have a good understanding of the UK package tour market. They should also have studied a variety of different brochures covering different segments of the market. This unit should be delivered in an interactive format. Familiarisation of brochures may be achieved by using:

- role plays – customer/agent scenarios
- case studies – details of the type of holiday that a customer requires
- general quizzes on information featured in a brochure
- information scrambles – learners have a set period of time to scan a brochure for relevant information
- group presentations about a particular brochure

Visits to travel agents and tour operators are helpful and guest speakers are also recommended as a way of reinforcing the learning. A basic knowledge of maths is required to calculate holiday/cruise costings. Learners will benefit from a checklist of all the possible supplements that may be payable.

Learning and support resources

There is a wide variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to provide learners with a basic knowledge of travel transport, within the UK and beyond. When the learner has completed the unit they should have a good understanding of transport systems and the integral role they have within the tourism industry, not only as a means of travel to a destination from the traveller's place of origin and back again, but also as a means of travelling around the destination for exploration and sightseeing and when the transport itself is the main feature.

Learning outcomes

There are two learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand different methods of transport used by tourists
2. Understand the regulation and impact of transportation in the UK

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 32 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering the knowledge.

Unit 209

UK Transportation for travel and tourism

Outcome 1

Understand different methods of transport used by tourists

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain reasons why people travel
2. explain the importance of transportation in relation to tourists
3. explain different forms of transport used by tourists
4. identify major historical developments for different forms of transport
5. describe what is meant by the term 'transport network'
6. identify different methods of transport used by tourists
7. identify advantages and disadvantages of different methods of transport
8. identify major carriers for the different methods of transport
9. identify likely future developments in methods of transport.

Range

Why

Purpose of travel – including holiday, business, medical, visit friends and family

Importance

Travel to destination, travel around destination, main feature

Forms of transport

Land, water, air

Historical developments

Including steam locomotives to bullet trains and Channel tunnel services. From world-wide mainline shipping to floating hotel resorts. From chain ferries to hovercraft, catamarans and 'superferries'. Early commercial passenger aircraft such as prop-jets to wide-bodied aircraft and supersonic

Transport network

Land (ie road, rail), water (ie shipping lanes) and air routes (ie air corridors), terminals and interchanges (bus/rail stations, ports and airports)

Methods of transport

- Air
Scheduled, charter, budget, private charters
- Water
Ocean liners, cruising, ferry, sailing, private charter, inland waterways
- Land
Channel Tunnel, rail (public, private, international, light-railways, subway/underground), road (coach, private car, tram)

Advantages and disadvantages

Speed, cost, comfort, convenience

Future developments

Including replacements for supersonic aircraft, extensions to Channel Tunnel rail links, major road developments, cruise ship developments, space travel.

Unit 209

UK Transportation for travel and tourism

Outcome 2

Understand the regulation and impact of transportation in the UK

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain why the transportation industry is regulated
2. identify organisations involved in the regulation of transportation
3. explain effects of de-regulation
4. describe possible impacts transport networks have on a place or area
5. identify stakeholders involved in the development of transport networks
6. explain how those opposed to transport systems act to restrict developments.

Range

Why

Safety, legal, provision of certain services, statutory legislation, voluntary legislation

Organisations

Including: the Civil Aviation Authority (UK), the Civil Aeronautics Board (USA), the European Commission, International Air Transport Authority (IATA), Rail Delivery Group (RDG), Confederation of Passenger Transport (CPT), British Inland Waterways (BIW), Passenger Shipping Association (PSA)

Effects

Prices, increased competition, mergers, monopolies

Impacts

Environmental, economic, positive, negative, short-term, long-term

Place

Building (domestic or other), village, town, city

Stakeholders

Government, local government, developers, local community, environmental groups

Act

Petitions, protests, lobbying.

Unit 209 UK Transportation for travel and tourism

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

Teachers and learners may have an interest in one or more modes of transport, as a means of travel for holidays or business. They should be encouraged to discuss their experiences and to share these with their peers.

Teachers should encourage learners to study available reference resources to develop their knowledge and understanding of the transport sector. Legislation and regulation of the transport industry is underpinned by various Parliamentary Acts and policies, learners should be taught the basic fundamentals of these and how they shape the transport industry. Visits to and guest speakers from transport providers are recommended as a way of reinforcing learning and placing it firmly within an industrial setting.

The environmental impacts of transport modes and transport networks (infrastructure) are far reaching. Teachers are advised to concentrate on ONE area/region per transport system, i.e. the 5th terminal at London Heathrow or cross-rail links in London, or a local development in response to increased tourist numbers. Investigations into environmental and economic impacts may identify both positive benefits and negative outcomes.

Current developments are reported in the Travel trade press and in National newspapers. These are available via the Internet and also in paper version. Learners should be encouraged to use these, and where possible, discuss with transport providers.

Learning and support resources

There are a range of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. Unit aim

The aim of this part of the unit is to provide the learner with a basic knowledge of both travel insurance and general travel advice.

Learning outcomes

There are five learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand how to provide information on passport and visa requirements for overseas journeys
2. Understand how to provide health information for overseas tourist destinations
3. Understand how to provide Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office safety and security information
4. Understand how to provide foreign exchange information
5. Understand how to provide information on travel insurance

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 41 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering the knowledge and a short-answer question paper. This test is open book and candidates are permitted to take any resource material into the exam.

Unit 210

Travel and tourism support services

Outcome 1

Understand how to provide information on passport and visa requirements for overseas journeys

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify sources of information for passport and visa requirements
2. explain passport and visa requirements for British passport holders when travelling on overseas journeys
3. explain circumstances when UK citizens may hold more than one passport
4. identify visa information required for holders of non-British passport holders when travelling on overseas journeys
5. explain the difference between tourist, business and transit visas.

Range

Passport and visa requirements

Access to certain destinations, restrictions, special requirements, validity requirements

Visa information

Use information from long haul brochures, government websites.

Unit 210

Travel and tourism support services

Outcome 2

Understand how to provide health information for overseas tourist destinations

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify sources of health information for travellers
2. explain health information for holiday destinations
3. identify the vaccinations required/recommended for tourist destinations
4. describe precautions to be taken with regard to drinking local water.

Range

Sources

World Travel Guide, World Health Organisation, Travel Clinics, consult own G.P, vaccination centre

Vaccinations required/recommended

Must have, advisable

Precautions (local water)

Drink bottled water, do not have ice cubes in drinks, beware salads washed in local water, use purifying tablets, boil water.

Unit 210

Travel and tourism support services

Outcome 3

Understand how to provide Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office safety and security information

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify where to obtain Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office information
2. explain safety and security advice for destinations based on Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office information
3. explain general security precautions for overseas journeys
4. explain the purpose of the Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office 'Locate' register.

Range

Where

<https://www.gov.uk/government/organisations/foreign-commonwealth-development-office>

General security precautions

Using hotel safes for valuables, keeping to well-lit areas, not displaying expensive jewellery/cameras, making photocopies of passports and other documents, airport/airline security.

Unit 210

Travel and tourism support services

Outcome 4

Understand how to provide foreign exchange information

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify sources of information on foreign currency and pre-paid credit cards
2. identify the countries which use the euro as their unit of currency
3. identify the unit of currency used in non-euro zone destinations
4. explain the advantages and disadvantages of different forms of payment when travelling overseas
5. explain the difference between 'sell at' and 'buy at' exchange rates.

Range

Non-euro zone destinations

USA, Mexico, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Turkey, Dubai, India, Singapore, Thailand, South Africa, Norway, Switzerland, Bulgaria, Croatia, Romania, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Czech Republic.

Forms of payment

Foreign currency, pre-paid credit cards, credit cards, debit cards.

Unit 210

Travel and tourism support services

Outcome 5

Understand how to provide information on travel insurance

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the importance of travel insurance to travellers
2. explain situations when travellers may require different levels of insurance cover
3. explain the difference between using an European health insurance card and a travel insurance policy for medical purposes
4. outline terms and conditions that impact on the purchase of travel insurance.

Range

Importance

Protection against loss, damage, accident, illness or other illness or misfortune while away from the home

Terms and conditions

Pre-existing conditions, age restrictions, country of domicile, location of destination, duration of stay, members of the party, hazardous activities.

Unit 210 Travel and tourism support services

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those working towards the additional travel and tourism services may fall into one of several brackets. Those learners already working at a junior level within the travel and tourism industry are likely to have some awareness of insurance and the other areas covered in the unit. Learners without industry experience are likely to have limited knowledge of insurance but maybe able to relate to health, passport and currency information from past experience.

By whatever path a learner comes to be studying the additional travel and tourism services it is vital that they understand the principles of travel insurance, so that they are able to inform potential clients when they are in the industry. It is important that learners are aware of the range of insurance services available, but realise that most travel and tourism organisations will have preferred vendors who provide their insurance services.

It is increasingly important that learners have an understanding of the broad travel and tourism picture in relation to health advice and security, especially given recent world events (ie SARS, Foot and Mouth, September 11). It is suggested that learners studying for this unit would benefit from keeping up to date on recent world events in relation to travel and tourism. Students should be encouraged to read the national and trade press and assessors could designate learners to report any findings back on a weekly basis to the rest of the learners.

Where possible the unit should be delivered in an interactive format engaging the learner in a full range of diverse learning opportunities. Activities such as class discussion where learners can share experiences they have had whilst on holiday is a good starting point from which to start the unit. Teachers may illustrate situations using their own experiences as both a traveller who has had the need to make a claim and as a customer buying insurance.

Visits to local travel agencies and tour operators are useful as learners can observe at first hand the way insurance is sold and the types of incident that have lead to insurance claims. Guest speakers from the travel and insurance industries are also recommended as a way of reinforcing learning and placing it within an industry setting.

Learning and support resources

There are many resources available to support the delivery of this unit. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. However in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Examples of resources, which could be used, include:

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Level: 2
Credit value: 10
UAN number: R/601/5423

The aim of this unit is to enable learners to construct a range of fares for given journeys/itineraries. It is designed to provide competence in fares and ticketing and learners will study the itinerary planning, Fares, Ticketing and Mileage System. Learners will also explore different documents that are available and the knowledge needed to interpret them correctly. This course must be taught using an approved training course.

Learning outcomes

There are eight learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Know IATA codes
2. Know IATA areas
3. Understand IATA terms and definitions
4. Understand fare types
5. Be able to select appropriate fares
6. Be able to construct fares using the mileage system
7. Be able to interpret air travel documentation
8. Know baggage allowances, taxes, fees and charges

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 80 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an online multiple choice test. This test is open book, candidates are permitted to take into the exam any support materials they require. An appendix for use in the test is available to download on the City and Guilds website.

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Outcome 1

Know IATA codes

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. encode and decode IATA codes

Knowledge

1. identify IATA codes.

Range

Codes

Airport, city, airline, currency, country, state.

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Outcome 2

Know IATA areas

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify IATA areas
2. define IATA sub-areas

Range

Areas

TC1, TC2 and TC3

Sub-areas

Europe, Africa, Middle East, South Atlantic, Mid Atlantic, North Atlantic, Asia, South West Pacific.

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Outcome 3

Understand IATA terms and definitions

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain what is meant by the term Global Indicators
2. explain how Global Indicators are used when planning journeys
3. define stopovers
4. define pricing units and fare components.

Range

Global indicators

EH Eastern Hemisphere; WH Western Hemisphere; AP Atlantic Pacific; TS Trans Siberian; AT Atlantic

Stopovers

24 hr stopover definition.

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Outcome 4

Understand fare types

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. interpret rules for fare types
2. interpret different fare basis codes
3. combine fares of more than one type/rule/airline.

Knowledge

1. explain restrictions for fare types

Range

Rules

Standard conditions

Fare types

Super APEX/APEX, Super PEX/PEX, Excursion, Secondary Levels, Normals

Fare basis codes

Class Code, Seasonal Code, Part of the Week Code, Part of Day Code, Fare and Passenger Type Code, Fare Level Identifier

Restrictions

Stopovers, minimum and maximum stay, advanced purchase, changes to reservations, Combinations.

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Outcome 5

Be able to select appropriate fares

Assessment Criteria

Practical Skills

The learner can:

1. use reference materials to source fares
2. select appropriate fare type for a given itinerary
3. calculate passenger type discounts.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain how to use reference materials
2. explain fare restrictions for fare selected
3. explain fare discounts for passenger types.

Range

Fare types

Super APEX/APEX/Super PEX/PEX, Excursion, Secondary Levels, Normal

Passenger types

Child, infant, ship's crew, senior citizen, youth, student

Restrictions

Stopovers, minimum and maximum stay, advanced purchase, changes to reservations.

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Outcome 6

Be able to construct fares using the mileage system

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. construct normal fares for itinerary
2. show fare constructions in an appropriate format.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the mileage system
2. explain the use of the Neutral Unit of Construction (NUC)
3. explain how the IATA Rates of Exchange (ROE) are used in calculating fares
4. explain how to use Rounding Units.

Range

Format

Linear/automated, manual/ladder

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Outcome 7

Be able to interpret air travel documentation

Assessment Criteria

Practical Skills

The learner can:

1. interpret documents used in air travel.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain different documents used in air travel
2. identify terminology used on documents
3. explain information displayed on documents
4. identify different payment methods.

Range

Documents

E-ticket, ATB, OPTAT/TAT, Electronic ticket, MCO, MPD

Terminology

Codes, abbreviations, technical terms

Payment methods

Cash, pre-paid credit card, credit card, debit card, invoice.

Unit 212

Air fares and ticketing

Outcome 8

Know baggage allowances, taxes, fees and charges

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify free baggage allowances
2. identify excess baggage charges
3. identify taxes, fees and charges.

Range

Baggage allowances

Weight, number of pieces

Taxes, fees and charges

departure, arrival, food, airport tax.

Unit 212 Air fares and ticketing

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It is likely that those working towards the City & Guilds Level 2 Air Fares and Ticketing qualification will come from a variety of backgrounds. At Level 2 learners are expected to be able to provide and interpret fares and ticketing information. The delivery of this unit should therefore be approached that the candidate has some prior learning.

This unit should be delivered in a structured way allowing candidates plenty of opportunity to practice exercises. Candidates should be encouraged to keep a careful record of notes during the course, and to have a clear understanding of all aspects of each outcome before progressing on.

Learners should be made aware that the key to understanding this qualification is to be able to extract information and interpret it using the Passenger Air Tariff.

In summary, Level 2 gives candidates a thorough grounding in fares and ticketing completion. If candidates wish, they can move onto Level 3 which gives candidates the ability to calculate complex fares and issue tickets for multi-sector journeys.

Learning and support resources

The following suppliers produce training course materials. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. However in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised.

Unit 213

Visitor attractions

Level: 2
Credit value: 4
UAN number: M/601/3159

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to provide the learner with a general knowledge and awareness of visitor attractions.

Visitor attractions are a vital part of the travel and tourism industry and are often a major motivating factor in why people decide to travel. Although it is impossible to give a full picture of the attraction sector, this unit aims to provide the learner with the opportunity to study a range of popular attractions both in the UK and overseas.

The range of man-made attractions is vast. This unit focuses on a number of the world's leading attractions according to categories as defined by Visit Britain. However, it also encourages learners to investigate the variety of local attractions on their doorstep.

It is important for learners to be aware of the host of employment opportunities that the attractions sector offers. The unit should raise awareness of a whole range of employment opportunities that may not otherwise have been considered.

Learners will also examine the appeal and popularity of attractions and the factors that ultimately affect their success or failure. The unit also encourages learners to investigate all the factors that need to be considered when an attraction is being developed, and they will have the opportunity to plan and design their own attraction.

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will be able to:

1. Understand how visitor attractions are classified
2. Understand the appeal and popularity of visitor attractions
3. Understand considerations in the development of visitor attractions

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 30 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering the knowledge.

Unit 213

Visitor attractions

Outcome 1

Understand how visitor attractions are classified

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain what is meant by the term visitor attraction
2. describe types of visitor attraction
3. identify different visitor attractions according to category within the UK, Europe and worldwide
4. explain why some attractions are free and some charge admission.

Range

Types

Natural, man-made

Category

- country parks
- farms
- gardens
- castles
- historic properties
- leisure/theme parks
- museum or art galleries
- steam/heritage railways
- visitor/heritage centres
- wildlife attractions/zoos
- industrial or craft premises
- places of worship
- other attractions (attractions that do not fit into any of the categories outlined above).

Unit 213

Visitor attractions

Outcome 2

Understand the appeal and popularity of visitor attractions

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify the appeal of individual visitor attractions
2. identify features that attract people to visitor attractions
3. identify popular visitor attractions in a local area
4. identify factors that can affect the success or failure of visitor attractions
5. describe the type of visits and visitors to attractions.

Range

Appeal

Nostalgia, learning something new, value for money, status, accessibility, exercise, excitement, entertainment, peace/quiet, variety, opportunities to purchase

Features

Key features (ie rides, exhibits, viewing areas), extra features (ie shops, children's playground), special events/activities, catering facilities, other facilities (ie for visitors with specific needs)

Popular

Visitor numbers, trends

Local area

Within own county or within an area to enable coverage of all categories in the range of visitor attractions

Factors

Visitors: disposable income, free time, interests/hobbies, past experiences, word of mouth, mobility, trends

External: marketing information, weather, special events, location, accessibility

Visits

Day visits, repeat visits, holidays, short breaks

Visitors

Individuals, families, couples, over 50s, special interest, people with specific needs, groups, local, national, overseas.

Unit 213

Visitor attractions

Outcome 3

Understand considerations in the development of visitor attractions

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the stages in developing a visitor attraction
2. explain the importance of location to the development of visitor attractions
3. explain the importance of accessibility to the development of visitor attractions
4. explain the importance of good design for a new visitor attraction.

Range

Stages

Ideas, research, options available, planning, development, funding, decision making, implementing, reviewing.

Location

Proximity to population and markets, transport links, available land, other facilities (ie suppliers, hotels, other attractions).

Accessibility

Parking and transfer facilities, available transport options, opening times and dates, admissions prices.

Design

Buildings (eg size, colour, material), layout (eg buildings, spaces), routes (eg footpaths, signposts, litterbins), support services (shops, toilets, catering outlets, retail outlets, car parking), environmental considerations.

Unit 213 Visitor attractions

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

The term visitor attraction is a broad one and there are many definitions of the term. For the purpose of this unit we have concentrated on man-made attractions and have used the definition as given by Visit Britain.

The categories of attractions have been taken from Survey of Visits to Visitor Attractions carried out annually by the national tourist boards of England, Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

Although learners need to be aware of visitor attractions throughout the world, at this level it is expected that assessors will concentrate on local attractions that are more accessible. If learners, have visited overseas attractions this should be drawn out through classroom discussion so they may share their experiences.

The following list of attractions is provided for guidance. Assessors may study alternative attractions that are not in the list provided. Visitor numbers to attractions can be collected from the regional development agencies/ tourist boards and from Visit Britain. Please see the resources section for more information.

Visits to a wide range of visitor attractions is encouraged both locally and nationally and students should be encouraged to carry out questionnaires to aid their research (this should be done with the attractions permission).

When learners look at designing a visitor attraction, they should be encouraged to look at potential opportunities (ie disused land, empty buildings) in their local area. It is important to remember that at this level it is not the aim for learners to examine in detail the implications of areas such as costs and planning permission, although they should be made aware that they are critical factors in the development of any attraction. Learners should concentrate on the features of the attraction for their target audience.

Learning and support resources

There is a wide variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. However in this fast growing industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Example of resources, which could be used, includes:

Unit 214 Resort representatives

Level: 2
Credit value: 8
UAN number: D/601/3190

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to enable learners to improve their knowledge of the role of a resort representative and allow them to organise a welcome party, produce an information board and book and develop a range of skills and techniques to promote excursion sales. Learners will also develop the knowledge and skills to support their application for employment within the industry.

Learning outcomes

There are six learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand the role of resort represents
2. Understand the duties of a resort representative
3. Be able to carry out airport duties and transfers
4. Be able to prepare and present a welcome meeting
5. Be able to produce information resources for customers
6. Be able to promote and sell excursions and other services

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 64 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 214

Resort representatives

Outcome 1

Understand the role of resort represents

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the differing roles and responsibilities of resort representatives
2. explain the issues relating to working as a resort representative
3. explain the features of working in differing locations as a resort representative
4. explain differing seasonal duties of resort representatives
5. identify differing organisational structures for resort representatives
6. describe areas of personal welfare that are affected by working as a resort representative.
7. identify opportunities for career progression.

Range

Roles and responsibilities

Different categories of overseas staff (eg resort representative, campsite representative, head representative, assistant representative, transfer representative, chalet host), their differing roles and responsibilities, the working relationship between the UK and overseas offices/personnel

Issues

Company policies relating to contracts of employment, seasonality, insurance, health, repatriation, relationships, travel, training and accommodation, correct documentation including passports, visas, work permits and how to obtain them, medical requirements including vaccinations for different locations, banking arrangements and how to access money overseas, the implications of working on a temporary/seasonal basis, the ability to speak different languages, working in an environment with differing local customs and cultures

Locations

Hotels, apartments, villas, campsites, beach, city, rural location, ski resort, cruise ship

Seasonal

Winter, summer

Organisational structures

Working alone, as part of a large resort team, with or without support staff, differing demands on staff and responsibilities

Personal welfare

Advantages and disadvantages of living in a holiday resort/centre, realistic view of working as a resort representative, coping with homesickness, loneliness, basic living conditions, sharing accommodation, living, working and socialising with the same group of people, personal budget, diet, health, sexual liaisons with colleagues and customers, stress, personal safety

Career progression

Promotion, summer/winter work, training, updating industry knowledge, identifying opportunities for progression

Unit 214

Resort representatives

Outcome 2

Understand the duties of a resort representative

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain what routine duties resort representatives carry out
2. identify seasonal duties of resort representatives
3. identify what other duties are undertaken by resort representatives
4. identify the risks to health and safety that can be identified in resorts
5. explain the tour operators legal responsibility to the customer
6. explain organisational policies and guidelines on health and safety.

Range

Routine duties

Ongoing daily and weekly duties, hotel visits, quality control, health and safety checks, completing paperwork, liaison with suppliers, arrival and departure duties, welcome meetings, excursion administration, liquidations and guiding.

Seasonal duties

Acquiring resort and accommodation knowledge, checking brochure accuracy, recognising the importance of making contacts and supplier liaison.

Other duties

Identifying other duties in relation to customers needs, police visits, hospital visits, dealing with accidents, illness and death of passengers, lost and stolen property and accommodation bookings.

Risks to health and safety

Identification of potential risks to health and safety eg swimming pool safety, balconies, windows and patio doors, fire safety, children's play areas, cots, lifts, gas appliances, electricity, hygiene, cleanliness, food poisoning and water supplies. During excursions and or guided tours.

Legal responsibility

Recognising the tour operator's legal responsibilities to the customer under the Package Travel Regulations, Supply of Goods and Services Act and the Trades Description Act.

Organisational policies and guidelines

Recording and reporting incidents, frequency and content of health and safety checks, completing paperwork, distribution of paperwork, recognising likely content of organisational policies and guidelines.

Unit 214

Resort representatives

Outcome 3

Be able to carry out airport duties and transfers

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. carry out airport duties
2. escort customers during transfers

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the range of tasks involved in preparing for airport duties
2. explain the responsibilities of a representative on arrival transfers
3. explain the responsibilities of a representative on departure transfers
4. explain the importance of meeting and greeting customers positively
5. describe how a resort representative should respond to potential problems
6. identify the correct use of a microphone during the course of duty on transfers.

Range

Airport duties

The range of paperwork required, establishing working relationships with colleagues and other internal customers, recognising minimum standards for coach comfort and safety, the importance of first impressions, providing a welcome and promoting a positive company image.

Arrival transfers

Transfer list and their importance, providing an informative and suitable commentary for the duration of the transfer and the time of day, pointing out health and safety features on the coach, check-in at the accommodation, giving information regarding welcome meetings.

Departure transfers

Collecting customers from their accommodation, providing an informative and suitable commentary including information on check-in.

Respond

Ensure customers updated, arrange alternatives, provide refreshments, provide guidance and support

Potential problems

Flight delays both inbound and outbound, lost luggage, overbooking on flights and in accommodation, illness, drunken passengers, lost passengers, missed flights, strikes, breakdowns, lost documents.

Use

Clear voice, content of commentary, pace and language, technique, volume control.

Unit 214

Resort representatives

Outcome 4

Be able to prepare and present a welcome meeting

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. prepare welcome meetings for new arrivals
2. present welcome meetings to new arrivals.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the importance of the welcome meeting
2. explain when to have a welcome meeting
3. identify what to include in the welcome meeting speech
4. describe how to create the right environment for the target audience
5. identify information required for different customers and holiday settings
6. identify different audio visual aids that can be used
7. explain the preparation required for a welcome meeting
8. explain how to follow up from the welcome meeting.

Range

Importance

To create the right environment for your customers, to introduce self and colleagues, to give information on the accommodation and resort/area, to sell excursions.

What to include

Accommodation and destination information, health and safety information, excursions available, local attractions, company information.

Environment

Welcoming, ensuring room can accommodate all customers expected, provide refreshments.

Different customers

Single people, families, older customers, young people, groups.

Holiday settings

beach resorts, ski resorts, cruises, rural settings and cities.

Audio visual aids

Leaflets, information file, photographs, video/DVD, PA system, IT equipment.

Preparation

Check room availability, ensure audio visual equipment is available and working, prepare presentation, check that welcome packs are prepared and sufficient packs are available.

Follow up

ATOL certificate, customer queries.

Unit 214

Resort representatives

Outcome 5

Be able to produce information resources for customers

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. produce information resources on the holiday destination for customers reference

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify the types of information required for customers
2. explain why an information board is important
3. explain how key information should be displayed on an information board
4. identify the importance of an information file
5. identify content of an information file
6. identify where to find information for the information resources.

Range

Resources

Information board, information file

Types of information

Country information, resort information, accommodation information, health and safety information, company information, transport information, emergency contacts eg resort contact, doctors, chemist, police.

Why

To project the company image, to keep customers informed, to promote excursions.

Key information

Up-to-date flight/transport times, check out procedures, excursions, representatives, contact details, accommodation information, resort information, emergency contacts.

Displayed

Well-maintained displays, notices in consistent house style, up-to-date information.

Information file

To project the company image, to promote excursions, to provide information on local attractions, food outlets, shops and the local crafts and culture.

Content of an information file

Attraction leaflets, emergency contact details for doctors, hospital, police, chemist, resort representative, resort office, local map, car hire companies, information on local restaurants, supermarkets, shops, local craft outlets, local cultural information, places of worship, details of local markets, excursions and resort/area information, health and safety guidance.

Where to find information

By exploring the local environment, local tourist information offices, world travel guide and atlas, experienced staff, local contacts (eg accommodation staff, suppliers), end of season reports.

Unit 214

Resort representatives

Outcome 6

Be able to promote and sell excursions and other services

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. promote excursions and other services to customers
2. use a range of sales techniques to sell excursions and other services to customers.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the importance of sales of excursions and other services
2. explain how sales techniques are used by resort representatives
3. identify other products and services that customers may require
4. identify the associated paperwork to be completed following the sale of excursions or other services.

Range

Sales techniques

Promoting the sale – attitude, mannerisms, communication, features and benefits, handling objections, switch selling

Making a sale – when to close the sale, how to close the sale, follow up the sale

Importance

Their contribution to company profits, increase earnings through commission, to meet sales targets, to increase customer satisfaction

Other products and services

Car hire, merchandise, alternative transfers, future holidays, local information, children's clubs

Associated paperwork

Excursion tickets, car hire vouchers, receipts for money, sales records.

Unit 214 Resort representatives

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

This unit enables learners to gain knowledge and skills in relation to the role as resort representative. It is important that learners should be made aware that although many of the tasks involved in the role are generic. Many tour operators employing resort representatives are likely to have adopted these roles to suit their different operations and programmes offered. The role of a resort representative will also differ depending upon the size of the tour operator and the types of holiday offered.

The unit should be delivered in a very practical way and where possible learners own experience should be drawn out. Many television programmes are available which explore the role of the rep, often making the role more glamorous than it can actually be and in some instances reflecting upon the role badly. If learners have been on holiday it is likely that they will have some experience of resort representatives. Simulations and role-play are encouraged including welcome meetings, selling excursions, transfer speeches and paperwork.

When explaining how to prepare for employment learners should be encouraged to explore the range of opportunities available in a variety of tour operators (i.e. transfer reps, children's reps, ski reps, campsite couriers). Many large tour operators produce recruitment packs including application forms, job descriptions and details of the recruitment process, these are now available on many tour operator websites. Learners need to be made aware that some operators suggest age guideline on potential employees and learners should be made aware of other possible progression routes.

Learners need to be made aware of the long hours involved and the issues involved when working overseas, often working with different cultures and language.

Learning and support resources

There are a wide range of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. However in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Examples of resources, which could be used, include:

Unit 215

Responsible tourism

Level: 2
Credit value: 7
UAN number: M/601/3162

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to provide learners with a knowledge relating to all aspects of responsible tourism.

Tourism is the largest and fastest growing industry in the world. Travel and tourism is said to 'broaden the mind', to promote 'mutual understanding' between people, and even to bring about 'world peace'. Tourism is also advocated as a positive way of alleviating poverty and improving the lives of those in destination countries. Tourism can take various forms, and the people involved – tour operators, tourists and destinations – have differing points of view. However, when tourism is unplanned, it can have many negative economic, environmental, social and cultural impacts.

This unit introduces students to these dimensions of tourism. It questions the basic assumptions of tourism development and examines its different forms, showing how properly planned tourism can be a positive and responsible activity. Responsible tourism means ensuring that destinations, attractions and resources are well managed for the benefit of the tourism industry, for tourists and, most importantly, for the communities at the receiving end.

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand the structure of tourism
2. Understand the implications of irresponsible and responsible tourism
3. Be able to offer advice and assistance on responsible tourism

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 60 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 215

Responsible tourism

Outcome 1

Understand the structure of tourism

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify the global dimensions of the tourism industry
2. identify stakeholders involved in tourism
3. explain the importance of tourism to stakeholders
4. identify factors that stakeholders must consider when planning tourism developments
5. describe the impact of types of tourism on tourist attractions and destinations.

Range

Global dimensions

Growth of tourism; international, national and local tourism

Stakeholders

National/regional/local governments, tourist boards, tourism investors, tour operators, airlines, travel agents, tourists, host businesses, local communities, pressure groups (NGOs).

Importance

Developments of opportunities, opportunity for change, broaden the mind, remove cultural barriers, and improve quality of life.

Factors

Costs and benefits, economic, environmental, social, cultural.

Types of tourism

Mass tourism, individual/independent tourism, business tourism

Tourist attractions

Natural, man-made.

Destinations

Domestic, international, beach, fragile environments, cities.

Unit 215

Outcome 2

Responsible tourism

Understand the implications of irresponsible and responsible tourism

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain economic impacts of tourism
2. explain environmental impacts of tourism
3. explain social impacts of tourism
4. explain cultural impacts of tourism
5. explain the difference between responsible and irresponsible tourism practices
6. identify the benefits to stakeholders of responsible tourism practices
7. explain how responsible tourism benefits customers.

Range

Economic impacts

Negative - Leakage of revenue, cost of infrastructure, increased property/land prices

Positive - Multiplier effect, increased employment, regeneration

Environmental impacts

Negative - Inappropriate/over development, use of resources, loss of habitats, flora and fauna, erosion, pollution, noise, litter, water usage and sewage

Positive - Conservation, education of community / tourists

Social impacts

Negative - Overcrowding, anti-social behaviour –drugs, alcohol, HIV/Aids, crime, child/sex tourism, prostitution

Positive - improved quality of life, better infrastructure

Cultural impacts

Negative - Traditions versus modernisation, disruption of communities, ,

Positive - promotion of local culture - language, customs, religion, music and crafts, cuisine

Responsible tourism

Sustainable/planned development, low impact, fair trade tourism, green/eco-tourism, ethical tourism

Irresponsible tourism

Unsustainable/unplanned, high impact, lack of benefits for local residents

Benefits (stakeholders)

Economic, environmental, social and cultural benefits of responsible tourism for stakeholders (as Outcome 1)

Ethical reputation, access to funding via government initiatives

Benefits (customers)

Economic - value-added, Environmental - pleasant surroundings, contribution to conservation, Social; non-disruptive, increased/better communications with hosts, Cultural; 'authentic' holidays, genuine experience, learning and understanding.

Unit 215

Responsible tourism

Outcome 3

Be able to offer advice and assistance on responsible tourism

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. offer advice on responsible tourism practice.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify sources of information appropriate to different customer needs
2. explain how sources of information can be used to assist customer choice towards responsible tourism
3. identify types of responsible tourism practice
4. identify advice for tourists on their contribution to responsible tourism
5. explain how tourist activities can influence the tourism industry.

Range

Responsible tourism practice

green, sustainable, ethical, low impact, community, , fair trade , eco tourism

Sources of information

Brochures, advertising, television, printed media, internet, guide books, Tourism Concern, Tourism for Tomorrow Awards, World Tourism Organisation, Green Globe, Association of Independent Tour Operators, Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office

Advice for tourists

Codes of conduct; WTO Guidelines, Tour Operator Initiative, FCO Know Before You Go campaign, World Travel and Tourism Council, Green Globe

Activities

Ethical consumer initiatives, fair trade groups, environmental and tourism campaigns, international and local pressure groups.

Unit 215 Responsible tourism

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

There are many terms used throughout the travel and tourism industry when it comes to talking about responsible tourism. These should be discussed with learners at the start of, and throughout, the course.

Questions arise as to whether the ideal of 'responsible tourism' is achievable, because of issues concerning where responsibility lies and the enormity of the tourism industry. It is therefore more useful to locate responsible tourism within the context of wider debates, processes and strategies aiming for sustainable development in general.

Students' own experiences as tourists, travellers, backpackers or as residents of tourist destinations can provide a rich primary learning resource. They should be encouraged to discuss what responsible tourism might mean in these contexts. Role-play is a particularly good vehicle for such discussions.

Likewise, many locations in the UK are important tourism destinations, whether urban, rural or coastal settings. Informal or formal class visits to these would give students an opportunity to experience tourism at first hand and to apply some of the course's theoretical topics to real situations. Where visits are impractical, or as a comparison between similar destinations, case studies are useful. Students can be encouraged to carry out primary research such as investigating tourist literature in travel agents, at tourist boards, or in the media (printed, audio-visual or internet). Television holiday programmes are also a good source of material for exploring responsible/irresponsible tourism.

Learning and support resources

There is a large variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. However, there are relatively few resources aimed specifically at this level. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with and be prepared to adapt them accordingly; students' own experiences, as tourists or otherwise, can provide a rich learning resource for case studies. Examples of resources include:

Unit 216

Tourist information services

Level: 2
Credit value: 4
UAN number: H/601/3191

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is for learners to understand the role of the tourist information service and the procedures for assisting customers. It will also provide learners with an understanding of what the work of a tourist information assistant entails and give them basic levels of vocational knowledge and skills necessary to seek employment in a tourist information role.

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand services provided by tourist information centres
2. Be able to provide information on tourist accommodation
3. Be able to provide information relating to visitor attractions

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 40 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 216

Tourist information services

Outcome 1

Understand services provided by tourist information centres

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify services provided by tourist information centres
2. explain accommodation booking services offered by tourist information centres
3. explain other booking services offered by tourist information centres
4. identify sources of information used by staff in tourist information centres
5. explain the importance of using up-to-date sources of information.

Range

Services

Information display, information provision (including provision face-to-face, telephone, electronic, post), accommodation booking services, retail services.

Other booking services

Coach, tours, attractions, events.

Sources of information

Local accommodation listings, national accommodation guides, tourist guides and directories, maps and atlases, timetables, indexes, information leaflets, local event listings, theatre programmes, cinema listings, websites.

Unit 216

Tourist information services

Outcome 2

Be able to provide information on tourist accommodation

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. provide information on accommodation to meet customer needs.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify different categories of accommodation available to tourists
2. explain advantages and disadvantages of each category of accommodation
3. identify ratings for different categories of accommodation
4. explain what criteria are used to award each rating for different categories of accommodation
5. identify the details of the national accessibility scheme denoting different levels of accessibility
6. describe types of bedrooms available for tourists
7. identify standard symbols used in brochures to denote the features and facilities of accommodation.

Range

Customers' needs

Type of accommodation, customer's price range, number of people for whom accommodation is required, duration and timing of the intended stay, type of location required, any special feature or facilities required, any special needs (including access requirements, facilities for children, special diets, facilities for pets, including Guide Dogs for the Blind and Hearing Dogs for Deaf People)

Categories of accommodation

Hotels, guest accommodation (including guesthouses, bed & breakfast establishments, inns and farmhouses), self-catering accommodation, holiday parks, touring caravan and camping sites, bunkhouses (including camping barns and bunk barns)

Ratings

Star ratings for hotels, Diamond ratings for guest accommodation, star ratings for self catering accommodation, the star and pennant ratings for holiday, camping and caravan parks, the 'RTB inspected' scheme for bunkhouses, gold and silver awards

National accessibility scheme

Property accessible to an independent wheelchair user, property accessible to a wheelchair user with assistance, property accessible to someone with mobility difficulties but able to walk up a maximum of 3 steps

Types of bedrooms

Single, double, twin, family, en-suite, disabled

Standard symbols

In relation to general information in brochures, in relation to serviced accommodation, in relation to self catering accommodation, in relation to camping and caravanning

Unit 216

Tourist information services

Outcome 3

Be able to provide information relating to visitor attractions

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. provide information relating to visitor attractions to customers.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify visitor attractions available in the local area
2. describe standard symbols used in brochures to denote features and facilities available at visitor attractions
3. identify different tourist opportunities likely to appeal to different categories of tourists
4. explain the importance of matching customer requirements to available tourist opportunities.

Range

Visitor attractions

Natural, man-made, events, walks, tours

Categories of tourists

Young singles, young couples with no children, young families with children, families with teenage children, mature adults with no children, elderly couples, business person with free time in the evenings/weekends.

Unit 216 Tourist information services

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It is important that learners have an understanding of the different services provided and of sources of information used to provide such services. A pre-arranged visit to a local tourist information centre or guest speaker is highly recommended.

Learners also need to have a clear grasp of different kinds of accommodation and bedrooms available to tourists, different accommodation rating schemes, the national accessibility scheme and standard symbols used in relation to accommodation, so that he or she can make informed judgements about the suitability of particular accommodation to meet specific customer needs. Again, a visit to local accommodation providers is recommended, alternatively, learners could be divided into groups to explore local accommodation services and report back to fellow learners. It is important that learners have an understanding of the broad tourism picture and tourism infrastructure in the UK along with a detailed knowledge of tourism opportunities in their own immediate area and a general understanding of tourism opportunities within a radius of 50 miles..

Unit 217 Tour operations

Level: 2
Credit value: 7
UAN number: T/601/3180

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to provide the learners with a clear understanding of the UK tour operations business and its obligations under UK and European legislation.

The origin of tour operations can be traced back to the 18th Century. Although the choice of holidays offered has increased dramatically, the concept of tour operators putting together the component parts of a holiday and selling them as a package remains the same. In the same way, travel agencies increasingly act as tour operators when they use dynamic packaging to create a holiday to meet specific customer requirements.

This unit is particularly useful for anyone intending to work in a UK or overseas based role within a tour operator as well as providing excellent background knowledge for those students who wish to work in a travel agency.

This unit is concerned with the role of the tour operator and the services they can provide. It examines the increasing links between operators and agents and explores the legislation to which all tour operators must adhere.

The unit also examines the wide range of products that tour operators offer and how these products can be sold to customers. The unit will also give students an insight into the numerous and diverse roles which are available in a tour operating business (both in the United Kingdom and overseas).

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will be able to:

1. Understand the role of tour operators
2. Understand tour operators' products and how they are sold
3. Understand the functions and roles within a tour operator

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 60 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering the knowledge.

Unit 217

Tour operations

Outcome 1

Understand the role of tour operators

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain what is meant by the term 'tour operator'
2. explain the difference between the role of the 'tour operator' and the 'travel agent'
3. explain how tour operators combine elements to create holidays
4. explain what is meant by the term integration in relation to tour operators
5. identify additional services that may be offered by tour operators as part of a package
6. identify the different types of tour operators
7. identify trade organisations to which tour operators may become members
8. explain legislation which is applicable to tour operators in the UK
9. explain the importance to a tour operator and the public of an ATOL licence.

Range

Tour operator

A person or organisation which bulk purchases the separate items that make up a package holiday, combines them and then sells the final products

Elements

Transportation (Air, Land, Sea), accommodation, ground arrangements and transfers, additional services

Integration

Horizontal, vertical, benefits of each

Additional services

Car hire, airport hotels, airport parking, insurance, excursions, other options (ie welcome packs, ski schools, equipment hire), tailor-made

Types of tour operators

Inbound, outbound, domestic, independent, specialist, integrated, mass-market

Trade organisations

Association of British Travel Agents (ABTA), the Federation of Tour Operators (FTO), the Association of Independent Tour Operators (AITO), UK Inbound, Civil Aviation Authority (CAA)

Legislation

Package Travel Regulations, Data Protection Act, Disability Discrimination Act, Trades Description Act, Supply of Goods and Services Act, Consumer Protection Act, Unfair Contract Terms Act, Fair Trading Act, ABTA Code of Conduct, Air Travel Organisers' License (ATOL), Civil Aviation (Air Travel Organisers' Licensing) Regulations.

Unit 217

Tour operations

Outcome 2

Understand tour operators' products and how they are sold

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the difference between a short-haul and long-haul product
2. explain the types of holiday products sold by tour operators
3. identify ways in which holidays are sold to the public
4. describe different reservation methods customers can use to book holidays
5. explain considerations when producing travel brochures
6. describe the content of travel brochures
7. identify external factors that can affect the success of tour operators' products.

Range

Short-haul/Long-haul

Generally short-haul is less than 5 hours flying time from point of departure

Holiday products

Summer sun, winter sun, short-break, twin-centre, lakes and mountains, escorted tours, camping, late-deals, winter sports, fly-drive, seat only, adventure, safari, weddings & honeymoons, all-inclusive, cruises, particular age groups, sports, stopovers, special interest, tailor-made

Sold

Travel Agent, Teletext, call centres, direct sell, internet, TV advertising, TV travel channels/programmes

Reservation methods

By agents through Viewdata or the Internet, by the public via the Internet, direct to tour operator via telephone

Considerations

Size, quality, colour, layout, photographs, target market

Content

Features, benefits, descriptions, terms and conditions, costs, timings, methods of transport, dates, durations

Factors

Environmental (eg weather, natural disasters such as earthquakes, hurricanes), Political/Economic (eg acts of terrorism, war, political situation, exchange rates).

Unit 217

Tour operations

Outcome 3

Understand the functions and roles within a tour operator

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. describe the function of departments found within a tour operator
2. describe major UK based roles within a tour operating organisation
3. describe major overseas based roles within a tour operating organisation
4. identify the qualities required for job roles within a tour operator.

Range

Departments

Research/planning, contracting, pricing, marketing, selling, reservations, administration, overseas

UK based roles

Marketing, flight contracts, brochure production, distribution, reservations, administration, agency sales support, customer services

Overseas based roles

Accommodation contracts, overseas representatives, couriers, entertainments officers, child care staff, resort and area managers

Qualities

Education, skills, restrictions

Job roles

UK, overseas.

Unit 219

Promotional activities in travel and tourism

Level: 2
Credit value: 4
UAN number: M/601/3193

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to introduce learners to the principles of marketing and how they are applied generally and in the travel and tourism industry in particular.

In today's dynamic marketplace it is becoming increasingly important for all those involved in the industry to have an awareness of marketing and how it can be applied.

This unit introduces the learner to marketing processes in relation to the travel and tourism industry. This includes the principles of marketing including customer needs and wants, target markets and how the marketing mix can be applied to travel and tourism organisations.

Learners will also investigate how travel and tourism organisations benefit their business by using a range of promotional methods. Researching and reviewing an organisation's existing promotions will allow them to learn how all the principles that they have explored come together. They can then select and develop a range of promotional materials, showing their understanding of how these can be effective in meeting their targeted purpose, such as raising customer awareness or increasing sales.

Learning outcomes

There are two learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand the promotion of products and services in travel and tourism
2. Be able to promote travel and tourism products and services

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 30 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 219

Promotional activities in travel and tourism

Outcome 1

Understand the promotion of products and services in travel and tourism

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain how the marketing mix is used by travel and tourism organisations to raise awareness of products and services
2. identify how customers can be divided into market segments
3. explain how products and services offered by travel and tourism organisations meet the needs of different market segments

Unit 219 Promotional activities in travel and tourism

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those working towards 'Promotional Materials for Travel and Tourism' at level 2 may fall into one of several brackets. Learners may have already completed a level 1 award and are progressing to level 2. Learners may have joined a programme of study directly at level 2 or they may already be working at a junior level within the travel and tourism industry. By whatever path a learner comes to be studying 'Promotional Materials for Travel and Tourism' at level 2 it is vital that they understand the basics before progressing.

The unit should be delivered in an interactive format engaging the learner in a full range of diverse learning opportunities. Activities such as class discussion where learners can initially share ideas of what they perceive as marketing is always a good point from which to start the unit. Teachers can point out all sorts of marketing within the classroom such as branded sportswear the learners may be wearing, posters or advertising on the pens they are writing with.

Teachers should encourage learners to become observers of travel and tourism organisations whilst outside the formal learning environment and be prepared to discuss what they observe with each other. A visit to any high street will allow learners to see the promotional activities of a range of travel agents and teachers could ask learners to compare and contrast what they see in one window with what they see in another. By asking learners to watch the television or listen to commercial radio and noting down every time they notice a travel or tourism related advertisement, learners will begin to appreciate how much advertising is going on all around them.

When approaching the delivery of this unit it should be noted that a certain amount of classroom input will be required. This may take the form of 'chalk and talk' together with handouts to reinforce the necessary marketing jargon that learners will need to know. With regard to the '4 P's' a game of 'stations' can be played where price, place, product and promotion are used and learners are asked to rush towards which one they think is right under a given scenario. Case studies are a good way of getting learners to understand market segmentation as well as collecting a variety of brochures, leaflets and flyers and asking learners to say which segment of the market they think the product is aimed at. Conversely teachers can ask learners to collect information which they think is aimed at either themselves or a stated market segment and then ask them to verbally explain their reasoning to the whole class.

When looking at outcome two, a case study of a successful marketing campaign is a good starting point and where possible teachers should try to collect any promotional materials to support the case study. It is important that this is a recent campaign so learners can relate to it.

From here learners can then move forward and undertake a small promotional campaign for themselves. This should be linked to travel and tourism providers. This is an opportunity to ask a guest speaker from a chosen company to talk to the learners about what marketing they do and how they evaluate it. This company then becomes 'the client' and provides a focus for the practical activities. It is appreciated that this will not be practical for all centres delivering this unit and it may well be that the teacher will need to set up a realistic scenario instead.

From here a marketing 'campaign' can be undertaken following the correct stages. Learners can have great fun designing posters, leaflets, brochures etc and could even write and possibly tape record their own 'radio advert' depending on resources available. Direct mail shots could be devised and press releases written. This whole exercise may be undertaken by breaking down the class into pairs and/or small groups and allocating one task to each. The teacher then acts as a 'campaign manager' to ensure all runs to time and budget. Once complete the class can present their ideas to each other and hopefully the 'client'.

For those working within a scenario, setting self and team evaluation will be necessary. This could consist of a series of written questions to be completed individually and a team evaluation exercise where all learners comment positively on all aspects of the campaign. Conclusions are then drawn highlighting the best aspects of what they have done and commenting on what they would change if they undertook the exercise again.

Visits to local travel agencies, tour operators, transport providers etc are always useful. Guest speakers, from the travel and tourism industry, are also recommended as a way of reinforcing learning and placing it firmly within an industry setting.

Learning and support resources

There is a wide variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with. However in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Examples of resources, which could be used, include:

Unit 220 Business travel planning

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those working towards the Introduction to business travel practices unit at level 2 may fall into one of several brackets. Candidates may have already completed a level 1 qualification in travel and tourism which may have touched on the business travel sector. Alternatively candidates may have been working in a junior role within a business Travel Management Company and have a greater knowledge of the sector.

By whatever path a candidate comes to be studying introduction to Business Travel Practices at level 2 it is vital that they understand the basics before progressing and therefore it is recommended that Outcome 1: Introduction to Travel Management is explored first. This outcome should involve lots of research by the candidate and should lead to plenty of discussion on the role of the business travel agent. By taking this approach, candidates will acquire a broader base of knowledge and understanding of business travel management and how it fits into the overall industry.

It is strongly recommended that an employer in the business travel sector be involved with the delivery of this unit, as a guest speaker or to provide visits to a business travel centre. The Guild of Travel Management Companies can assist with developing links with business travel companies.

It is strongly recommended that where possible candidates have access to a Computer Reservation System (CRS) to enable them to prepare and produce itineraries to the standard expected in the business travel environment, and as required by the corporate client.

It is recommended that Candidates be provided with opportunity to undertake a period of work experience in a Business Travel Centre or other business travel office. Practical work experience will be of benefit for candidates to demonstrate their abilities in a real life environment and build their confidence. Work placements should be encouraged in local business travel management companies. (The Guild of Travel Management Companies can assist with this, where appropriate, and available).

Learning and support resources

There are a variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with, however in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Unit 221

Global distribution systems

Level: 2
Credit value: 3
UAN number: F/601/3182

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to provide the candidate with a summary of Global Distribution Systems (GDS) used in the travel industry and to make use of practical entries on a live system to create a booking file.

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand different Global Distribution Systems (GDS) used in the travel industry
2. Understand the functions of a Global Distribution System
3. Be able to create a booking file using a Global Distribution System

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 26 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 221

Global distribution systems

Outcome 1

Understand different Global Distribution Systems (GDS) used in the travel industry

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the role of Global Distribution Systems (GDS) within the travel industry
2. identify the main Global Distribution Systems (GDS) used in the travel industry
3. explain differences between various Global Distribution Systems (GDS)
4. describe the history of Global Distribution Systems (GDS)
5. describe the organisational structure of Global Distribution Systems (GDS)

Suppliers

Hotels, airlines, car hire companies, rail, cruise, ferry, government, insurance

Terminology

Point & click, front-end, user friendly, native language, front office, back office, vendors, desktop, mainframe, interface, booking file, PNR.

Unit 221

Global distribution systems

Outcome 3

Be able to create a booking file using a Global Distribution System

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. plan and build basic two sector return itineraries
2. use encode and decode entries
3. check and display flight availability
4. sell seats from the flight availability display
5. add mandatory fields to a booking file
6. produce fare prices for booking files
7. end itineraries.

Range

Itineraries

Passenger name, flights, phone fields, ticketing field, received field, end transaction

Encode and decode

City/airport, airline

Flight availability

Date, departure city, arrival city, airline, time, class of travel

Mandatory fields

Name, phone, ticketing, 'received from', itinerary (dependant on GDS used)

Fare price

Fare price itinerary class as booked.

Unit 221 Global distribution systems

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

It should be recognised that those working towards the Introduction to Global Distribution Systems in the Travel Industry at level 2 are unlikely to have knowledge of Global Distribution Systems unless they have some prior experience of working in the industry.

Whilst delivering and assessing the outcomes of this unit it is important to focus on why a GDS is used in the travel industry. It should be made clear to learners that good information Technology skills are essential to the travel and tourism industry and that being able to demonstrate such skills is vital to the candidate's future employment prospects in the industry.

This unit should be delivered in an interactive format to engage the candidate in a full range of diverse learning activities. Activities such as brainstorming and class discussion where learners can share any prior knowledge of reservation systems used in the travel industry is a good starting point. This will lend itself to research based learning and this would be best conducted in small groups, so that learners can use a wider range of resources to help their investigations.

To underpin delivery of outcome 3 and give the learner the best opportunity of successfully completing this unit it is vital that candidates are given access to a 'live' or 'simulated' GDS. It is recommended that centres contact one of the organisations below who will be able to provide centres with details of the systems that they offer for candidates learning about Global distribution systems. Centres must therefore ensure that they have the necessary resources in place before offering this unit and ensure that the systems they have chosen are compatible with the content of the unit.

Practical work experience will be of benefit for candidates to demonstrate their abilities in a real life environment and build their confidence. Work placements should be encouraged in local leisure and business travel agencies, tour operators, airlines, hotels, car hire companies.

Learning and support resources

There are a variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with, however in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Unit 222

Meet and greet services travel and tourism services

Level: 2
Credit value: 1
UAN number: T/601/3194

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to provide the candidate with the skills needed to meet, greet and direct travel and tourism customers.

This unit introduces candidates to the skills needed to meet, greet and direct travel and tourism customers. Some examples of where guests may require meet and greet services could be at airports, coach tours, car hire, and information desks.

Customers will often evaluate an entire company, place or event by the first person they come into contact with and it is therefore paramount that the customers' first point of contact is a positive experience. Consequently, those choosing a career in the frontline of the travel and tourism industry need to develop the best possible skills for the role.

Initially, this unit looks at the importance of making a good first impression focussing on creating a positive personal image through physical appearance and use of body language. From here candidates move on to look at making all customers feel welcome.

This unit is concerned with enabling customers to find their way or ensuring they are pointed in the right direction. Therefore, in the final outcome candidates learn about guiding customers to a place, seat or person who can best help them.

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand how to meet and greet travel and tourism customers
2. Understand how to make travel and tourism customers feel welcome
3. Know how to provide information to travel and tourism customers

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 10 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by a short-answer question paper.

Unit 222

Meet and greet services travel and tourism services

Outcome 1

Understand how to meet and greet travel and tourism customers

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the reasons why first impressions are important to travel and tourism organisations
2. describe positive body language
3. describe the importance of using positive body language
4. explain the effects that body language may have on customers
5. explain the importance of recognising body language in others
6. describe how to meet travel and tourism customers
7. explain the importance of meeting travel and tourism customers appropriately to the customer and the organisation.

Range

Unit 222 Meet and greet services travel and tourism services

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

Those choosing to work towards Meet and Greet Services in Travel and Tourism at level 2 may come from a variety of backgrounds. For some it may be part of an overall level 2 programme of learning in travel and tourism but for others it may be offered as a stand alone qualification. For some this will be the very first time they have considered the concept of any type of customer service. Other candidates may already be working in the travel and tourism industry and would like to either formalise their learning or use this as a refresher course. By whatever path candidates come to be studying Meet and Greet Services in Travel and Tourism at level 2, tutors will need to tailor their delivery according to the needs of the individual or group of learners. However, the focus for all delivery should be the customer.

The unit should be delivered in an interactive format engaging the learner in a full range of diverse learning opportunities. Activities such as class discussion where learners can share experiences they have had as a customer is always a good starting point. Teachers may choose to give examples from their own experience and should encourage learners to observe the level of customer service on offer whilst outside the classroom. This critical approach often serves to heighten the candidates' self-awareness.

Asking candidates to think about appropriate physical appearance for an assortment of occasions is often a good way of getting them to think about the work situation. Asking candidates to design uniforms for a variety of 'fun' roles can often help to reinforce the point. Body language can often be observed within the group itself and actually getting candidates to practice smiling at each other is a simple and effective learning experience.

Exercises such as asking each other for verbal directions from the place of study to each others' homes get candidates thinking about how to give directions. Taking that further and asking them to mark the same route on a map often goes to show it's not as easy as they think it might be. Using diagrams of theatres or stadium and asking candidates to pinpoint a particular seat can be useful. In some cases it may be appropriate to ask candidates to act as guides within their place of study for events such as open nights where visitors need escorting to a particular room.

There are a variety of videos available which can often be used as either a springboard or to reinforce learning.

Role play within a travel and tourism context is an excellent way of building confidence and especially useful in advance of any work placement. Practical work experience will be of benefit for candidates to demonstrate their abilities in a real life environment. Work placements should be encouraged in any travel and tourism environment such as local travel agencies, tourist offices or visitor attractions where candidates would have the opportunity of working as part of a team.

Where work experience is not practicable, simulated situations can be used, but it is essential they are conducted within a context that reinforces the attitude, behaviour and skills required to work successfully within the travel and tourism industry.

Learning and support resources

There are a variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Teachers should use those they feel most comfortable with, however in this fast moving industry it is imperative to ensure that the latest edition of any resource is utilised. Examples of resources, which could be used, include:

Unit 225

Travel planning

Level: 2
Credit value: 6
UAN number: J/601/3183

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is for learners to gain the skills and knowledge needed to plan travel arrangements. A range of sources of information will be used to identify individual services which can be combined to make an itinerary tailored to meet customer's requirements. The learners will also be able to identify additional guidance and advice about a journey and destination to enhance the traveller experience.

Learning outcomes

There are four learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will:

1. Understand the travel planning process
2. Be able to use sources of travel planning information
3. Be able to produce travel plans that meet customer requirements
4. Be able to provide additional information on travel and tourism arrangements

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 40 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 225

Travel planning

Outcome 1

Understand the travel planning process

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. describe the travel planning process
2. explain factors which affect travel planning
3. explain benefits of advance travel planning.

Range

Process

Establish needs and wants, investigate possible routings and services, select best options, provide advice

Factors

Time constraints, budget, specific needs, availability of services, customer preferences

Benefits

Cost, choice.

Unit 225

Travel planning

Outcome 2

Be able to use sources of travel planning information

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. locate travel and tourism information using reference sources
2. interpret abbreviation codes used in travel planning.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify potential sources of travel planning information
2. explain the importance of abbreviation codes.

Range

Information

Transportation, routes, timings, costs, facilities, accommodation, destination features

Sources

Timetables, brochures, leaflets, internet websites, manuals, guidebooks, atlases, local maps

Abbreviation codes

Company, airport, city, aircraft, facility.

Unit 225

Travel planning

Outcome 3

Be able to produce travel plans that meet customer requirements

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. identify customer requirements using effective questioning
2. research options that meet customer requirements
3. create travel itineraries that meet customer requirements.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify components of travel and tourism itineraries
2. explain the importance of offering alternative travel and tourism arrangements
3. explain the importance of comparing alternatives prior to presenting travel itineraries to customers
4. identify additional factors to consider when recommending travel itineraries.

Range

Customer

Leisure traveller, business traveller, overseas visitor, family, senior citizen, specific needs, groups

Requirements

Budget, departure/journey time, convenience, preference

Components

Transportation, (air, road, rail, sea), accommodation, activities

Unit 225

Travel planning

Outcome 4

Be able to provide additional information on travel and tourism arrangements

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. provide additional travel and tourism information to customers.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify additional information relating to transport arrangements required by customers
2. identify destination information which may be of benefit to customers
3. describe how to present information on travel and tourism arrangements to customers.

Range

Information

Security procedures, restrictions, check-in/journey times, documentation required, facilities

Destination information

Location of key buildings/facilities, visitor attractions, currency, climate, culture/customs.

Unit 225 Travel planning

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

Learners studying this unit are likely to have an interest either in a career in the travel and tourism industry or an interest in travelling themselves and, in either case, should be aware of the benefits of careful planning and research in making the most effective travel plans.

Knowledge of a wide range of source material and the ability to compare and combine elements of a journey to best meet travellers' needs are the key to success in the unit. The most obvious suggestion may not be the best alternative – there may be a new service which can be identified by research which would improve the itinerary planned. Access to the internet will make a wide range of information readily available and familiarity with both road and travel atlases will support awareness of alternative routes.

Journeys may range from domestic to international. When recommending a proposed itinerary, it is important to recognise that every traveller may not have the same priorities.

Study of the variety of arrangements available to suit types of traveller such as the business traveller, family, or student on a budget may best be approached with the use of case studies. This will show how requirements can be met by considering different forms of transport, journey times, costs, and levels of comfort.

A useful activity would be to suggest that learners plan a journey for their own potential gap year, looking at routes, choices of accommodation and transport, and the information they would need to be prepared for the trip.

Guest speakers from retail and business travel may be helpful to add examples of itineraries from real situations, and learners and teachers are encouraged to discuss their own travel experiences to give more detailed information about different journeys.

Where day or residential visits are planned, practical involvement in planning the journey and visit arrangements can be beneficial in raising awareness of the implications of each mode of transport and element considered.

Resources

There are a wide variety of resources available to support the delivery of this unit and it would be impossible to create a definitive list. Unit 226

Activity tourism in the UK

Level: 2
Credit value: 5
UAN number: A/601/3195

Unit aim

The aim of this unit is to develop learners' understanding of activity holidays and how they relate to current trends in the travel and tourism sector.

This enables learners to relate the importance of the location where the activities are pursued, the type of environment in which the activities are offered and the type of facilities and equipment required for the activity. It also enables them to highlight the benefits to potential customers when making recommendations on activity breaks.

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will be able to:

1. Understand the activity tourism product
2. Understand the characteristics of activity tourists
3. Be able to recommend activity breaks for customers

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 40 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by an assignment covering practical skills and knowledge.

Unit 226

Activity tourism in the UK

Outcome 1

Understand the activity tourism product

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. define activity tourism
2. identify activities available to tourists
3. identify environments where activity tourism is available
4. identify facilities required for activities
5. explain resources required to participate in activities
6. identify organisations who provide organised activity tourism
7. explain the importance of regulation of providers of activity holidays
8. explain the advantages of activity tourism to host areas
9. describe the impacts of activity tourism on host areas.

Range

Activities

Water sports (sailing, water-skiing, surfing, canoeing)

Fell walking, climbing, cycling, mountain biking, horse riding, orienteering, quad-biking

Sport (rugby, football, golf, cricket)

Environments

National parks, coastal areas, lakes, waterways, mountains, countryside, towns and cities

Organisations

Local authority activity centres, private sector activity centres, Ramblers Association, National Trust, Field Studies Council, Youth Hostels Association, providers listed on British Activity Holiday Association www.baha.org.uk

Unit 226

Activity tourism in the UK

Outcome 2

Understand the characteristics of activity tourists

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain reasons why people participate in activity tourism
2. identify benefits of participation in activity tourism
3. describe expectations of activity tourists
4. identify the needs of activity tourists in a host area
5. explain how the needs of activity tourists can be met.

Range

Benefits

Increased confidence, team work, communication/interpersonal skills, leadership, personal development, sense of achievement, health and fitness, environmental awareness

Expectations

Warm welcome from staff, professional and qualified staff, provision and hire of equipment, relevant instruction to suit customers, drying facilities if outdoor activities, local information for when not participating in activities, changing/toilet facilities

Needs

Facilities, information (eg weather, maps, accommodation).

Unit 226

Activity tourism in the UK

Outcome 3

Be able to recommend activity breaks for customers

Assessment Criteria

Practical skills

The learner can:

1. recommend activity breaks for customers
2. communicate to customers all aspects of organised activity breaks.

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify considerations when researching activity breaks
2. explain the importance of choosing activities that match customers' interests
3. identify sources of information for activity breaks.

Range

Aspects

Advantages, benefits, features, costs, schedules, requirements (eg equipment/clothing)

Considerations

Age, ability/experience, mobility, budget, interest, location, access.

Unit 226 Activity tourism in the UK

Notes for guidance

Suggested good practice

Activity holidays are becoming increasingly important in the overall makeup of the outdoor industry. Individuals, schools, outdoor centres and other providers offer the outdoor activities of mountain walking, rock climbing, caving, kayaking, canoeing and sailing plus activities that are more accessible, need less skill and equipment and are generally simpler and cheaper to deliver. It is important that tutors include a range of organisations who offer outdoor activity holidays within their delivery, including those for group holidays as well as those travelling independently or who may wish to link with people of the same interest. Many local authorities own or operate outdoor education centres that can be used to investigate this type of holiday. Learners' would benefit from participating in an activity break to enable them to experience the activities which can be linked to the team building in unit 204 Interpersonal skills for the travel and tourism industry.

Learners' should develop a good understanding of the range of activities and their benefits to customers. Learners' should cover the traditional land and water based activities as well as corporate and group building activities. The learner will develop an understanding of the different characteristics of activity holidays, the pursuits available at different location and be able to explain why they are different. Tutors should cover the importance of the location where the activities are pursued, the type of environment, water, land or air in which the activities are practiced and the type of equipment and facilities required for the activity. Learners will explore the importance of placing activity holidays in the context of the outdoor environment and be able to explore the impact of activity holidays on destinations which could also be investigated through a visit to an area in which this type of holiday is offered.

With all outdoor and adventurous activities, clearly defined aims and objectives are important in directing and in ensuring that the activities are delivered in a controlled safe manner. Adaptation of outdoor pursuits to the different environments has been a key influence in how activities are developed and practiced.

Unit 227

Principles of customer service in hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism

Level: 2
Credit value: 1
UAN number: T/600/1059

Unit aim

To meet the requirements of the Hospitality, Leisure, Travel and Tourism sector in providing staff who engage with internal and external customers with introductory knowledge in customer service.

Learning outcomes

There are three learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will be able to:

1. Understand the importance to the organisation in providing excellent customer service in the hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism industries
2. Understand the role of the individual in delivering customer service in the hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism industries
3. Understand the importance of customers' needs and expectations in the hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism industries

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 10 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body (if required, otherwise omit)

This unit is endorsed by People 1st.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by a short-answer question paper.

Unit 227 Principles of customer service in hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism

Outcome 1 Understand the importance to the organisation in providing excellent customer service in the hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism industries

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. describe the role of the organisation in relation to customer service

Provide relevant product information to the customer to help them make a decision or answer any questions, explain products to the customer to give a professional impression and increase trust with the customer, cross-sell and up-sell, match the customer's needs with the correct product specification, increase referrals/repeat business/ increase sales

Organisational procedures

Service standards, feedback systems, complaints procedures, emergency procedures.

Unit 227 Principles of customer service in hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism

Outcome 2 Understand the role of the individual in delivering customer service in the hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism industries

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify the benefits of excellent customer service for the individual
2. describe the importance of positive attitude, behaviour and motivation in providing excellent customer service
3. describe the importance of personal presentation within the industries
4. explain the importance of using appropriate types of communication
5. describe the importance of effective listening skills.

Range

Benefits

Recognition within the organisation, motivation, engaging/building relationships with customers makes the interaction more satisfying, job satisfaction, financial rewards or incentives, receiving compliments, increased sales, improved career prospects, positive performance review

Personal presentation

Create a good first impression, follow relevant dress codes, personal hygiene, verbal and body language, approach and attitude, behaviour

Types of communication

Face-to-face – includes eye contact and active listening, written communication includes letter, email, memos and reports, telephone communication

Effective listening skills

Paraphrasing, clarifying, probing, verifying and summarising.

Unit 227

Principles of customer service in hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism

Outcome 3

Understand the importance of customers' needs and expectations in the hospitality, leisure, travel and tourism industries

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. identify what is meant by customer needs and expectations in the industries
2. identify the importance of anticipating and responding to varying customers' needs and expectations
3. describe the factors that influence the customers' choice of products and services
4. describe the importance of meeting and exceeding customer expectations
5. describe the importance of dealing with complaints in a positive manner
6. explain the importance of complaint handling procedures.

Range

Customer needs

Information eg directions, facilities, price, availability, health, safety and security, assistance eg for parents, those with disabilities, level of service eg that timescales are met, promises kept, value for money, quality presentation, specific needs, products and services eg customers' expectations, identification of needs, knowledge of products and services

Expectations

Level of service, value for money, hygiene and health and safety, luxury factor

Factors

Price, value for money, reputation/brand, past experience and recommendation

Complaints

Price-value, quality, speed of service/deliver, level of service, poor staff attitude, breakdown

Dealing with complaints

Keeping calm, empathise with customer, keep customer informed, arriving at a mutually acceptable solution, follow up with customer and/or with staff

Complaint handling procedure

Acknowledging the complaint, apologising for inconvenience, prompt attention to situation, identifying questions to answer, investigate the complaint, identifying problems to resolve.

Level: 2
Credit value: 1
UAN number: H/502/0132

Unit aim

This unit will provide candidates with knowledge of the parameters of basic food safety practice as relevant to the catering industry. Achievement of the unit at level 2 will enable learners to identify how to make changes to catering practice in order to improve the safety of the catering service as a whole.

This unit provides candidates with a range of food safety skills directly relevant to the catering and hospitality industry.

Learning outcomes

There are four learning outcomes to this unit. The learner will be able to:

1. Understand how individuals can take personal responsibility for food safety
2. Understand the importance of keeping him/herself clean and hygienic
3. Understand the importance of keeping the work areas clean and hygienic
4. Understand the importance of keeping food safe

Guided learning hours

It is recommended that 9 hours should be allocated for this unit, although patterns of delivery are likely to vary.

Details of the relationship between the unit and relevant national standards

These qualifications are based on NOS which have been developed by the SSC People1st. Titles are as follows:

- Level 2 NVQ in Hospitality.

Support of the unit by a sector or other appropriate body

This unit is endorsed by People1st, the sector skills council for Hospitality, Leisure, Travel and Tourism.

Assessment

This unit will be assessed by a multiple choice online test covering the knowledge

Unit 228

Food safety in catering

Outcome 1

Understand how individuals can take personal responsibility for food safety

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. outline the importance of food safety procedures, risk assessment, safe food handling and behaviour
2. describe how to report food safety hazards
3. outline the legal responsibilities of food handlers and food business operators.

Range

Importance

Potential to harm people (customers, colleagues, any other people), legislative requirements (personal responsibilities), risk to business (legal action, reputation), risk to self (legal action)

Food safety procedures

Receiving deliveries (farm to fork), storage, preparation, holding of prepared food, sickness procedures (reporting), accident reporting, difference between detergents, disinfectants, sanitizer, sterilization

Risk assessment

Recognition of the likelihood of a hazard occurring

Safe food handling

Use of 'best practice' in the handling of food, to ensure the production of safe food

Behaviour

Good level of personal hygiene, (washing hands after coughing, sneezing, touching face, nose blowing, touching raw food waste products, cleaning materials, toilet breaks, smoking breaks), taking care over food, awareness of and reporting of unacceptable behaviours

Food safety hazards

Physical, biological, chemical, allergenic

Legal responsibilities

Food handlers – personal hygiene, illness (reporting, appropriate time away from food – 48 hours after last symptoms), understanding of food poisoning (anything which when ingested will cause harm), understanding of food hygiene (steps taken to prevent food poisoning)

Food business operators – appropriate food hygiene practices, requirement of food businesses to be registered with local authorities, compliance with EHO

Unit 228

Food safety in catering

Outcome 2

Understand the importance of keeping him/herself clean and hygienic

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain the importance of personal hygiene in food safety including its role in reducing the risk of contamination
2. describe effective personal hygiene practices, for example, protective clothing, hand washing, personal illnesses, cuts and wounds.

Range

Importance

Prevention of the transmission of pathogenic bacteria (in particular staphylococcus aureus) /objectionable matter from an individual into the food chain, routes and vehicles to avoid cross contamination

Practices

Protective clothing, not wearing jewellery, short, clean nails, no nail biting, no smoking, appropriate practice when dealing with contact dermatitis.

Unit 228

Food safety in catering

Outcome 3

Understand the importance of keeping the work areas clean and hygienic

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. explain how to keep the work area and equipment clean and tidy to include cleaning and disinfection methods, safe use and storage of cleaning chemicals and materials, and waste disposal
2. state how work flow, work surfaces and equipment can reduce contamination risks and aid cleaning
3. outline the importance of pest control.

Range

Work area and equipment

Food handling area and all equipment associated with it, hand touch points (eg door handles), food preparation surfaces

Cleaning and disinfection methods

Work area – clean as you go, low risk and high risk areas in food preparation environments, work surfaces, correct cleaning procedures to prevent contamination, traditional stages of cleaning (pre-clean, main clean, rinse, disinfect, rinse, dry), ‘clean, rinse, sanitise’ method. Double-sink washing up, pre-clean, main clean using detergent, second sink to disinfect water above 82C. Single use cloths or colour-coded cloths

Equipment – cleaning in place (static equipment eg beer lines, ice machines, dishwashers), move out and clean behind equipment which is easy to take apart

Safe use and storage of cleaning chemicals and materials

Chemicals – COSHH, lockable storage away from foods (restricted access) storage in original containers, labelling, dilution, mixing of chemicals, manufacturers’ instructions, PPE, avoiding chemical contamination/cross-contamination (eg over-spray), appropriate cleaning and disposal of chemical spillages, safety data sheets

Materials – appropriate storage areas away from food, avoiding prolonged soaking of materials, single use and colour-coded cloths

Waste disposal

Regular disposal, no over-night storage, use of bin bags, waste containers kept clean and in good condition, clean as you go, separating food and general waste eg glass policy, external waste storage (covered waste container, impervious surface, away from direct sunlight, kept clean and tidy to avoid odours and so as not to attract pests).

How work flow, work surfaces and equipment can reduce contamination risks and aid cleaning

Work flow – clear separation between low and high risk areas (dirty areas, eg storage and food preparation and cooking areas, clean areas, eg final preparation and service areas), good visibility

Work surfaces – smooth, impervious, non tainting, easily cleaned, no crevasses, resistant to corrosion, fit for purpose (eg for commercial use)

Equipment – easy to take apart, in good state of repair, installed as to allow adequate cleaning of surrounding areas, easily cleaned, impervious, non-tainting, resistant to corrosion, fit for purpose

Importance of pest control

Legislative requirements, to avoid contamination (pathogenic bacteria, spoilage bacteria), to avoid spread of disease, loss of reputation and profit, to prevent drop in staff morale, to avoid damage, wastage of food.

Unit 228

Food safety in catering

Outcome 4

Understand the importance of keeping food safe

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. state the sources and risks to food safety from contamination and cross-contamination to include microbial, chemical, physical and allergenic hazards
2. explain how to deal with food spoilage including recognition, reporting and disposal
3. describe safe food handling practices and procedures for storing, preparing, cooking, chilling, reheating, holding, serving and transporting food
4. explain the importance of temperature controls when storing, preparing, cooking, chilling, reheating, holding, serving and transporting food
5. describe stock control procedures including deliveries, storage, date marking and stock rotation.

Range

Sources and risks to food safety

High risk groups – pregnant, young, old, sick (those with a weakened immune system)

Microbial – pathogens (salmonella, staphylococcus aureus, clostridium perfringens, bacillus cereus, clostridium botulinum, e-coli), food-borne diseases (campylobacter enteritis, bacillary dysentery, typhoid/paratyphoid, listeria), spoilage organisms (moulds, yeasts), harmless organisms, viruses, toxins

Chemical – cleaning chemicals/materials, pesticides (eg rodenticides, insecticides)

Physical – mercury, plasters, equipment (nuts, bolts), bits of clothing or PPE, flaking paint, glass

Allergenic – nuts, wheat, dairy, gluten, fish/shellfish, plants/fungi, green sprouting potatoes, any other potentially allergic food stuff/substance

How to deal with food spoilage

Recognition – visual (mould, colour), smell, texture

Reporting – to supervisor/line manager

Disposal – clearly labelled ('Not for human consumption'), separated from general waste, disposed of away from food storage areas/kitchen

Safe food handling practices and procedures / Importance of temperature controls

To meet 'due diligence' criteria, EHO requirements

Temperatures checked with a clean, sanitized probe; temperature logs for fridges and freezers, and serving cabinets

Danger zone for food = 5°C – 63°C, responsibility to ensure food is heated through danger zone as quickly as possible, or chilled through danger zone as quickly as possible

Preparing – defrosting at bottom of fridge overnight, or in thawing cabinet (best practice), core temperature not to go above 8°C; held outside of correct storage temperature for as little time as possible

Cooking – cooked to 75°C or higher unless this is detrimental to the quality of the food, cooking to appropriate temperature to kill spores

Chilling – food must be chilled below 8°C within 90 minutes of cooking to avoid multiplication of bacteria (danger zone)

Reheating – best practice is to reheat above 75°C core temp for two minutes, reheat once only, best practice in Scotland is reheat above 82°C core temp for two minutes, reheat once only
Holding – correct temperature (core temp of 8°C or lower for cold food, 63°C or higher for hot food)
Serving – served at appropriate temperature (cold = below 8°C, hot = above 63°C)
Transporting – transported in vehicle specifically designed for the purpose, and at the correct temperature (ie whether for frozen, chilled, cold or hot)

Stock control procedures

Deliveries – food should be probed for correct temperature at point of delivery, food should be stored within 15 minutes of receipt, checked against delivery note, check of use by/sell by dates, check of quality

Storage – labelling (ie clarity of what commodity is), off floor, suitable dry conditions, pest proof, raw food stored separately (eg in separate fridges, or at the bottom of a fridge also containing cooked food to avoid drip contamination), correct temperature (best practice is to set fridges between 1°C and 5°C to ensure 8°C core temperature for chilled; -18°C core temp for frozen), dry goods may be stored at ambient temperature

Date marking – labelling (ie storage date / use by date / best before date)

Stock rotation – effective stock rotation (FIFO – first in, first out)

Unit 250

Contribute to the delivery of an entertainment activity in travel and tourism

Level: 2
Credit value: 6
UAN number: L/504/2870

Unit aim

Entertainment is a popular part of the holiday experience, meeting customer expectations can be a challenge. The aim of the unit is to support learners to know how to respond to customer needs when contributing to the planning, preparation and delivery of an entertainment activity.

Range

Objectives

SMART (specific, measurable, achievable, realistic, time-bound).

Unit 253

Event review and evaluation

Outcome 3

Understand the tools that can be used to evaluate events

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. Explain the difference between formal and informal feedback
2. Outline how the following methods could be used to evaluate an event:
 - a) SWOT analysis
 - b) questionnaires
 - c) interviews
3. Describe at least 2 electronic feedback methods.

Range

Objectives

SWOT (strength, weakness, opportunity, threat).

Interviews:

Peer, customer, participant, observer.

Unit 253

Event review and evaluation

Outcome 4

Produce an event evaluation plan for an event of their choice

Assessment Criteria

Knowledge

The learner can:

1. Produce an event evaluation plan for a scheduled event. Include:
 - a) objective setting
 - b) potential sources of information
 - c) appropriate tools / methods to obtain information

Range

Objective setting

Specific, measurable, achievable, realistic, time-bound

Sources of information

Self, colleagues, customers, participants, observers

Tools

Questionnaire, survey, attendance data

Methods

Written, verbal, electronic.

Appendix 1 Relationships to other qualifications

Links to other qualifications and frameworks

City & Guilds has identified the connections to previous qualifications. This mapping is provided as guidance and suggests areas of overlap and commonality between the qualifications. It does not imply that candidates completing units in one qualification are automatically covering all of the content of the qualifications listed in the mapping.

Centres are responsible for checking the different requirements of all qualifications they are delivering and ensuring that candidates meet requirements of all units/qualifications. For example, units within a QCF qualification may be similar in content to units in the NQF qualification which the candidate may have already undertaken and this may present opportunities for APL.

This qualification has connections to the:

The following documents contain essential information for centres delivering City & Guilds qualifications. They should be referred to in conjunction with this handbook. To download the documents and to find other useful documents, go to the Centres and Training Providers homepage on www.cityandguilds.com.

Providing City & Guilds qualifications – a guide to centre and qualification approval contains detailed information about the processes which must be followed and requirements which must be met for a centre to achieve ‘approved centre’ status, or to offer a particular qualification. Specifically, the document includes sections on:

- The centre and qualification approval process and forms
- Assessment, verification and examination roles at the centre
- Registration and certification of candidates
- Non-compliance
- Complaints and appeals
- Equal opportunities
- Data protection
- Frequently asked questions.

Ensuring quality contains updates and good practice exemplars for City & Guilds assessment and policy issues. Specifically, the document contains information on:

- Management systems
- Maintaining records
- Assessment
- Internal verification and quality assurance
- External verification.

Access to Assessment & Qualifications provides full details of the arrangements that may be made to facilitate access to assessments and qualifications for candidates who are eligible for adjustments in assessment.

The centre homepage section of the City & Guilds website also contains useful information such on such things as:

- Walled Garden
Find out how to register and certificate candidates on line
- Qualifications and Credit Framework (QCF)
Contains general guidance about the QCF and how qualifications will change, as well as information on the IT systems needed and FAQs
- Events
Contains dates and information on the latest Centre events
- Online assessment
Contains information on how to register for Evolve assessments.
